Facilities of Mr. Willingham came fast today.

Prominent cotton men of the south, many of them creditors of Mr. Willingham, met in Atlanta and reorganized the Shippers' Compress company, not only insuring the continuation of the operations of the compresses in the southeast this season, but also insuring Macon banks holding Willingham's collateral against loss.

That the Shippers' Compress company was solvent was indicated early in the week at conferences of creditors and it was then predicted that this part of the former Willingham properties would be kept in operation.

At 12:15 o'clock this afternoon the W. J. Marshall company and others brought the first action in court against any of the Willingham properties. It was a petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed against the R. F. Willingham corporation, which operates a half million dollar cannery at Franklinton (old Camp Wheeler).

Petitioners' Claims.

The petitioners' claims were as follows:

L. O. Benton, Jasper county, $284.25 for draft on which payment had been refused; W. J. Marshall, Bibb county, $10,000 for merchandise sold and delivered; Simpson & Doelger Co., Baltimore, Md., $18,000 for labels sold and delivered; J. Bateman, Bibb county, $5,000 for fruits sold and delivered.

This petition set forth that on July 19 the R. F. Willingham corporation, while insolvent, committed an act of bankruptcy by transferring valuable goods and property to the Roughton-Halliburton company of Macon, with intent to prefer said creditors. The petitioners also declared that they had reason to believe that other valuable property had been similarly transferred to other creditors with intent to create preference.

R. K. Hines, J. F. Brook and O. C. Hancock were the lawyers for the petitioners.

At 1:50 o'clock another petition in involuntary bankruptcy also was filed against the R. F. Willingham corporation in the United States district court by O. B. Andrews company and others. The Andrews company is from Chattanooga, Tenn.

The claims of this set of petitioners were as follows: C. B. Andrews company, Chattanooga, $21,334.50; John T. Moore & Sons, Macon.

Preference Charge.

These petitioners charged that on July 19 the R. F. Willingham corporation paid to the F. O. Stone Baking company $42.72, and on July 21, paid to the Barker Baking company $50.49, and on July 26, paid to the Macon Electric company $80.

All of these payments, it is declared, were on "past due" accounts and were made with intent to prefer said parties over other creditors.

On or about July 23, it is stated further, the R. F. Willingham corporation paid to the Bank of Charleston $5,000, and on July 29, turned over to the Bank of Charleston 408 barrels of sugar, valued at more than $25,000 to prefer the bank over other creditors.

Allison Lynch, Phillips were the lawyers representing the O. B. Andrews company and Moore representing the other petitioners.

At 2:50 o'clock the third petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed against the R. F. Willingham corporation in the United States district court by C. B. Andrews company, Barron, Cline & Barron and H. J. Clark, all fruit growers, of Houston, Tex.

It is claimed that the R. F. Willingham corporation, who is the lawyer for these petitioners.

Claims of the set of creditors are as follows: Clark, Barron, $1,116.42 for peaches sold and delivered; Cline & Barron, $577.42 for peaches sold and delivered; H. J. Clark, $75 for services in checking fruit.

The first petitioners immediately appealed to Referee in Bankruptcy J. N. Tally for the appointment of a receiver, and a hearing was held in the matter at his office in the Grand building, at which all of the creditors represented in the different petitions were in attendance. J. A. Strever, vice president and general manager of the Willingham corporation, also attended the meeting.

Monthly Payroll Paid Due.

Mr. Strever was questioned about the conditions at the cannery factory. He said that the monthly payroll was due and had not been met. This, he said, would amount to nearly $2,000. He thought that the firm should be continued in operation, and that every effort should be made to market the $105,000 worth of canned peaches in the corporation's warehouses.

The creditors took the same view of the situation, instructing Mr. Strever, after he had been named as one of the receivers, to conserve wherever possible to the interest of all the creditors. He was authorized to negotiate a loan of $2,000 to meet the payroll, to protect the property at Franklinton, to prepare the canned peaches for market, and to dispose of the same.

The commissary will be one of the things maintained, it was stated, as this is the money-making enterprise.

There is a considerable amount of live stock at the corporation's farm, which needs constant attention, also, and guards have to be maintained over the company's property.

Mr. Strever was questioned about the sugar transaction, to which there is reference in one of the petitions, but he said that he knew nothing of this. It was a transaction with which he was not familiar, he added.

The inside affairs of the financial difficulties of Richard Willingham, one of the largest cotton men in the south, began to leak out to the public last night, following a week of conferences in which banks and cotton men from New York to New Orleans have figured.

Efforts have been made to save the properties in which Mr. Willingham has been interested and keep the compresses in the southeast and the big cannery corporation at old Camp Wheeler in operation. Mr. Willingham's near relatives have pitched into the pool in an effort to save him from complete ruin, close to a half million dollars, it is reported.

$2,000,000 Liabilities.

Willingham's financial difficulties in which more than $2,000,000 are involved as liabilities, with assets yet to be determined, will not have any grave or even serious effect upon the banks of Macon, it is learned from reliable sources.

Moneys borrowed by Mr. Willingham upon his three enterprises, the R. F. Willingham corporation at Franklinton, Willingham's warehouse and the Shippers' compress, were obtained from banks in Savannah, Atlanta, New Orleans and Winston-Salem, N. C., with a small portion estimated to be about $200,000 divided between three Macon banks. The local bankers have stated that they are satisfied with collaterals and have no doubt as to making collection on the papers held.

It has been learned that the Shippers' compress, formed through the merger of the Macon bonded warehouse and the old Atlantic Compress company, and the purchase of Atlantic compresses in a half dozen cities of Georgia and Alabama, is solvent.

Compress Company Solvent.

Mr. Willingham's financial embarrassment became known a week ago Friday, after he had called for on or loans approximating $500,000 with a bare sixty days' notice. Since that time, creditors have been held daily by creditors and other parties interested, and a conference yesterday in Atlanta of members of the Shippers' Compress company, revealed the fact that corporation is solvent, with approximately $1,000,000 of assets to the good.

Efforts are also being made to keep the warehouse out of the courts, in the hope that it may be liquidated and operated as a going concern. Mr. Willingham's embarrassment is said to have come from three sources:

Money stringencies. He has been called within the past week for $500,000, his inability to finance the corporations upon the large scale he had intended; outlay at the cannery factory of $700,000.

Most of the money which has been borrowed, totalling more than a million and half dollars, was obtained in cities outside of the state. Less than 50 per cent having been borrowed in Georgia. One bank in Atlanta had notes for $200,000. The president of the three Macon banks involved let it be known today that they could not lose the amounts Mr. Willingham's enterprises owed them and still not feel the loss. All expect to get their money.

Shippers' Compress Solvent.

The Shippers' compress appears to be solvent, the liabilities totalling approximately $2,250,000, with assets in physical properties of $3,500,000. The physical properties of the compresses located in Macon, Augusta, Bufala, Ala., Montgomery and one or two other cities in Georgia and Alabama are worth $3,000,000.

The Shippers' Compress company was one of Mr. Willingham's biggest undertakings.

The movement started a season ago, when he purchased the Macon bonded warehouse and the Atlantic Compress here, merging the two enterprises and operating them as the Shippers' Bonded compress. He operated these two for one season. Mr. Willingham then interested prominent cotton men of Atlanta and Alabama in the organization of a company to take over all the Atlantic Compress company's properties.

The Willingham corporation, capitalized at $400,000, is also attributable to Mr. Willingham's difficulties. On a capital stock of $300,000 he sold $30,000 on the outside and took about $170,000 himself, leaving about $80,000 worth of stock unsold.

The cannery corporation cost far more than he had expected to spend. He put $700,000 cash into the proposition, $400,000 of which was borrowed from Willingham's warehouse. Bare outstanding debts of $150,000, making total estimated liabilities of $550,000, beside the capital stock. Quick assets are $220,000, including $105,000 worth of canned stuff in the warehouse at Franklinton, and sugar and other materials which have been purchased for canning. In addition to this, the physical properties, including the buildings, etc., are to be taken into consideration. It is estimated that if they were valued at $350,000 at the least, the company would be solvent, with proper financing for continuing as a going concern.

The liabilities of the warehouse were given as $365,000 owed to the Shippers' Compress company, and $900,000 due on notes. The assets of Willingham's warehouse are not known, as it will take an audit to ascertain the amount.

The Willingham crash came as a distinct shock to not only the entire city, but the entire state and the south. Mr. Willingham was a director in the American Cotton association, a $100,000,000 corporation, in the Southern Cotton association, a $30,000,000 corporation, and in the three enterprises which he also heads as president. He was rated as one of the richest young men in the state.

McClaren J & D Brand Tires

In-Built Endurance Is Tire Insurance

Buying tires on surface appearance only is poor policy.

You buy tires expecting them to endure, and endurance must be built into tires.

The construction of McClaren Tires insures the user long miles of trouble proof travel.

In the McClaren factory only the most approved methods, covering over twenty years of tire building knowledge, are used. Materials, workmanship, machinery are the best.

For example: exhaustive tests show that a certain kind of fabric has a tensile strength of 50 to 70 pounds greater. This fabric is used in McClaren Tires.

The McClaren tread stock consists of the highest quality and most expensive rubber employed for this use.

The side walls are made of the same thick and sturdy stock. Here is extra strength, tougher side walls that protect the carcass—double insurance against chafing, rim cuts, and blow outs.

The methods employed in building McClaren Tires insure the user long time tire endurance.

De Valera didn't sail.

Suspicion that De Valera would sail with the archbishop ran high until just before the ship moved out. Escorted by his secretary, the Irish "president" stepped aboard the liner more than an hour before sailing time and took his place with the prelate. A dozen special detectives surrounded the archbishop and a number escorted him as far as Sandy Hook, returning by pilot boat.

Appearance aboard ship of De Valera instantly aroused the crowd to nervous enthusiasm. Admirers passed along the word that the Irish "president" planned to smuggle himself overseas and run a British gauntlet.

Excitement continued as the last call ashore was sounded and De Valera still remained, for time and again he had refused to say whether he planned to sail.

Suddenly, escorted by a steward, he went below to a state room and observers cried:

"See, I told you so."

But in the course of a few moments he reappeared and stood with the archbishop on the promenade deck until a few minutes before the gangplank was hoisted aboard.

BECOMES CANDIDATE FOR SOLICITORSHIP

R. E. CHURCH.

R. E. Church, an Atlanta attorney, yesterday announced his candidacy for solicitor general of the Atlanta circuit against John A. Boykin, the incumbent, and W. S. Curn, who have announced as candidates for the office.

Mr. Church has practiced law in the city of Atlanta for the past thirteen years and at the present time holds the position of special tax investigator for the state, having been appointed by the state tax commissioner on recommendation of the governor.

He enlisted in the army, was injured in line of duty and discharged on this account.

business. He was widely known in the city as a "good fellow" and regarded as a ready spender. He started the plan of selling diamonds on the installment plan of $1 down and $1 a week.

His Marital Troubles.

The diamond merchant's marital troubles, his quarrels with his brother and his escapades in the night life of Chicago, gave Loftis a picturesque career. In 1907, Loftis was shot by his brother in a quarrel over partnership and two years later was expelled from one of Chicago's best known clubs because he slapped his wife's face while on a dance floor. Later they were divorced.

The coroner's inquest will be held Monday or Tuesday, it was said tonight.

HARDWICK CRITIC BUT NOT BUILDER

In a Ringing Address, Speaker Holder Characterizes Ex-Senator as a Force for Destruction in Georgia.

Byron, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—Charging that Thomas W. Hardwick is "not a builder but a critic and destroyer" in public affairs, Speaker John N. Holder addressed here today a large and friendly audience in the interest of his campaign for governor. He added that Mr. Hardwick has expressed so much bitterness in his public utterances that, if elected governor, he cannot be just to the people of Georgia.

Speaker Holder began by reviewing briefly the great achievements of the democratic party during the past seven years and emphasized his allegiance to the party, its candidates and platform. He said that there was every reason why the party, standing on the record it had made, should be victorious at the polls this fall.

After paying a splendid tribute to the wonderful victory by American boys which assured liberty to the world under the democratic administration, he took up Mr. Hardwick's record during that critical period.

Hardwick's Record.

"In the great progress of constructive legislation did Mr. Hardwick do anything to help achieve this result?" he asked. "Instead of being noted for constructive statesmanship, he is noted for his opposition to much of the great legislation enacted during his incumbency of the highest office with the gift of the people of Georgia. He sought to defeat the big things that were attempting to do in the public interest, rather than to construct anything for our country's welfare. He offered nothing better than that which was offered by others. He is not a builder, but a critic and a destroyer. What has he proposed or offered to do that will be of any benefit to the state?"

In one of his speeches he asked where I stand on national questions. My reply is that I stand for the democratic ticket and the democratic principles enunciated by the patriotic men gathered from every part of our land and country, who have given us a platform that is far superior to that given by his opponents.

"On state matters I issued a platform of principles which speaks for itself. Only one matter of state interest does Mr. Hardwick advocate and that is a longer term for the common schools and better pay for the teachers. When did Mr. Hardwick become so tremendously interested in the educational welfare of the masses? Have you ever heard before of his being interested in the masses of our people or the common schools?"

Offers No Remedy.

"What remedy is he offering for the financial situation of our state at the present time? Absolutely none of Georgia's financial distress there is one of two things she can do; she can add to the burden of taxation by which the owner of visible property is already weighted down, or she must find some other resource to take better care of her schools, providing for her teachers and to give to the confederate soldiers, those grand old heroes, the pensions to which they are entitled."

"I for one am unalterably and emphatically opposed to putting an additional burden upon the property that is already bearing its full share of the burden of taxation. But do I stop there? No. The legislature now has before it bills, which, if passed and ratified by the people, will enable the state to raise sufficient funds to meet every fair and just demand without increasing the tax rate of the state one penny. In fact, we are now working on a tax system which, I believe, will ultimately reduce the tax rate of our state to about one-half of what it is today. It simply proposes that the property that is not now bearing its share of the burden of the government must aid in sustaining her institutions and supporting her schools, paying her standing on the water tower and meeting every obligation. While I am standing on the water tower to prevent any increase in your tax rate, and endeavoring to get legislation necessary to the Georgia schools their needs, my opponents are both making anything from one to three speeches a day. I do not believe the people of Georgia are going to punish me for staying at my post and doing my full duty."

Foundation Laid.

"I tell you now that in this legislation, we have placed on the statute books laws that will ultimately result in giving Georgia one of the best educational systems of any state in the south. We have provided for longer terms for our schools, better pay for our teachers, and have done much else that will drive away from the shores of our state the clouds of illiteracy and gloom. We have also passed laws that will give to the state of Georgia in years to come more roads and better roads than any other state I know of in our land. While Mr. Walker is talking about favoring these things, I, as a member of the legislature, have helped to get them."

"Mr. Hardwick says that if he is elected he will turn the rascals out. I do not know to whom he refers. The governor does not have the appointing of any of the distinguished citizens who hold office in Georgia except his own executive force and a few judges and solicitors in the courts of the state. He has been quoted as saying that if elected he will turn out the state executive committee, make a clean sweep and run everything from the governor's office. For me, I desire to say that the state executive committee is elected by the democracy of Georgia. They only have that inherent right. If I am elected governor the democracy of the state will have my support, without attempting dictation or domination on my part; and I shall occupy the office of governor with an earnest desire to look after the people of Georgia and to administer the affairs of that office with impartiality and equal rights to all."

Opposes Radicalism.

"I favor the right of free assembly, but when there is a gathering of people who propose to destroy our institutions, burn down our homes, wreck and ruin our properties, and above all seek the destruction of our democratic government, then the law steps in and says you must stop. You must disband. And the law can come in further and say you must be punished. On this great question the platform adopted at San Francisco voices the very heart and life of democracy."

Mr. Hardwick in his public utterances manifests such feeling of bitterness toward many of the people of Georgia that if he were elected governor they could not receive justice at his hands. If I am elected Governor of Georgia I will bear malice towards none. It will be my earnest desire to give equal recognition to all of the citizens of the state, being fair and impartial to every one and to every interest."

Hans Rieg Named.

Washington, July 31.—Reappointment of Hans Rieg, of Chicago, as director of the naturalized citizens' bureau of the democratic national committee was announced today by Chairman White.

WALKER DELIVERS TWO ADDRESSES

Statesboro, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—Clifford Walker, candidate for governor, addressed two gatherings in this county today. In the courthouse here this morning at 11 o'clock, and at Porterdale at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He was introduced by Fred T. Lanier.

Short talks were made by Col. A. M. Deal, Leroy Cowart, and Fred T. Lanier, all of whom ridiculed Thomas W. Hardwick's record.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR MOTOR CONCERN

New York, July 31.—Federal receivers were appointed today for the Middle Motor Car company of this city, a corporation organized in Delaware.

The appointment followed filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy at three creditors with claims totaling $96,000.

The company's liabilities were estimated at $375,000. Although the concern had book assets of $275,000 the opinion was expressed that their nominal value would not exceed $50,000. Because they comprised chiefly parts for the Biddle car.

A double ended locomotive in use in Tasmania carries the boiler and firebox on one set of wheels in the center and cylinders and driving wheels under tenders at each end.

HELD FOR SHORTAGE IN FUNDS OF BANK

Birmingham, Ala., July 31.—Ottie C. Gaskins, 29 years old, bookkeeper in the Bessemer National bank, and William H. Phelps, 13, were at liberty under $1,000 bail each today to answer charges of embezzlement.

The boys were arrested yesterday afternoon following the discovery of a shortage of about $1,000 in the bank's funds. It is charged that Gaskins failed to post checks and had them cashed twice.

4,000 P. O. CLERKS THREATEN TO QUIT

Chicago, July 31.—Four thousand clerks in the Chicago postoffice today threatened to resign if P. E. Butler, president of their union, and ten others who have been mailed charges from Washington, are dismissed. This action from Washington, it is said, is practically a dismissal, as employees are not given the right to a hearing. The clerks have called a meeting for tomorrow.

GET THEM!

Don't Be Envious; Become Slender!

If you desire a good figure, lighter weight; smaller waistline, abdomen, hips, etc.; if you wish to reduce your double chin to one of pleasing firmness, lose no time in obtaining a small box of KOREIN (pronounced koreen) and follow the pleasant, easy KOREIN system under money-back $100.00 Guarantee!

Reduce Weight Happily

No thyroid, no starving (eat as much as you need), no strenuous exercises, nothing to harm you. Become slender, like, vivacious, in a pleasant and graceful way. Lessons of persons both sexes, report reduced weight by Korein system. It is reliable, popular, rational and inexpensive.

Korein

The Gentle Way to Reduce

If you are over-stout, you know the discomfort of being so. You may be clever enough to make others imagine you are glad to be fat, that you are as happy as you outwardly seem, but you truly wish to be thinner. See the two shadow pictures. You need no longer sit idly by and watch slender persons enviously. Become supple, light and cheerful. Improve your physical and mental condition—add years to your life and life to your years!

The secret is in following Korein system. It is for both sexes, all ages. There is a pleasure in realizing that you are a little thinner, in better health and more attractive each day.

Follow the directions of the Korein system of weight reduction, they are simple, pleasant and healthful. Begin to feel the benefit at once!

A $100.00 Guarantee is enclosed in each box of Korein. Cash refund if you do not reduce 10 lbs. or more, pounds, as may be needed in your case. This is the right time to begin reducing weight. Let your health improve again. Become more attractive, vivacious and efficient.

Your figure will be more normal, attractive; you will realize the benefit of your new superior personality. Guide yourself and benefit! Busy druggists sell KOREIN. Also sold in many department stores. Accept no substitutes; there is nothing "just as good."

Children's School Dresses

Ginghams $4.39
Linen Poplins

Values to $10
Sizes 6 to 14

The fact that these little frocks are not perfectly fresh is responsible for this offer, otherwise we would hold them at the regular prices until school starts. Unusually pretty styles in plain colors, plaids and stripes. Long and short sleeves.

The linens were bought at old figures and prices and quality represent excellent value. You are fortunate indeed to be able to buy such really good linens at the same prices that prevailed months ago, in the face of the serious shortage threatened. From a Belfast trade paper we reproduce the following notice:

"Serious Shortage of Flax"

Famine conditions prevail in the flax industry—they have no parallel in history save in the instance of the cotton shortage in England following the American Civil War. In normal years Great Britain used about 107,000 tons of flax or raw material. Last year it received from all sources barely 33,000 tons. As a consequence of all these conditions linens are constantly becoming scarcer and prices will continue to rise.

In view of these facts we believe Atlanta housekeepers should not hesitate to buy NOW, to supply their needs ahead, for there is no telling to what heights linen prices will advance.

GOVERNOR DORSEY

FOR U. S. SENATOR

Governor Hugh M. Dorsey has consented to enter the contest for the United States senatorship.

As everybody who has kept in touch with the political situation in Georgia knows, the governor has been averse to entering the senatorial campaign, his decided preference being to retire to private life upon the completion of his tenure as chief executive, after two consecutive terms of splendid constructive service.

It was with extreme reluctance that he yielded to the determined importunities of his friends and loyal democrats from every nook and corner of Georgia and consented to permit his name to go on the primary ballot as a candidate for senator, and in doing so he has subordinated his personal preference and interests to the

defense of the good name and political integrity of his state.

With a democratic administra-

party committed to an unqualified

indorsement of the brilliant record of achievement of that administration, and engaged in a titanic struggle, against formidable opposition, to retain its position of supremary in the affairs of government, and with the only other announced candidates for the senatorship in Georgia notoriously, and on record as being, not only out of sympathy with, but hostile toward, the administration, it was inevitable that some democrat of commanding prominence—one who had been tried and had proven to be wholeheartedly and aggressively in accord with the administration and the national platform—should take up the standard of loyal, true democracy in Georgia and carry it through this campaign.

No other Georgian more fully measures up to these requirements than does our distinguished governor—a man whose record is clean, whose loyalty is undoubted, who is able and courageous, and in whom the whole state has confidence.

Far from seeking the position he now occupies in the campaign, he is literally drafted into the service of the state.

Governor Dorsey enters the contest as the representative of the true, rock-ribbed democracy of Georgia and of the nation.

It is a patriotic response to the call of duty; and one that entails great personal sacrifice.

fitted for the great office for which he announces, and it may be confidently said of him that if sent to the senate, as he will be, he will never cast a vote that will challenge his democracy, or cast doubt upon his loyalty to either party or

TOO BIG NOW.

In view of the increase of the population of the United States during the last ten years, as shown by the 1920 decennial census returns, the national house of representatives is confronted with the

own membership from 455 to at least 500 or of eliminating a few congressional districts.

The house census committee is now at work framing the new apportionment bill; and, according to its chairman, Representative Siegel-

of New York, it is in a quandary as to what should be done.

The membership of the house should not be increased. If possible, it should be reduced.

Certainly 455 house membership is enough, and even that number makes an altogether too unwieldy

Fewer representatives would make better progress and perform more effective service than is possible under existing conditions.

Because of the very bigness of the house of representatives, the actual control of the body inevitably rests in the hands of a few men, known as the "leaders," and the bulk of the work accomplished rests upon them, and is shaped according to their ideas and

This situation would be accentuated by an increase in the membership. The effect would be to remove the house still farther away from the people and to further concentrate legislative power in the hands of a few men who are skilled in the arts and wiles of political maneuvering.

OUR Waning FORESTS.

According to statistics compiled by the American Forestry association, virgin forests of the United States covered 822,000,000 acres;

now, only one-sixth of that area remains in its original state of tim-

All classes of forest land in the United States today, including

cutover, cut-over, and burned areas, aggregate only 463,000,000 acres, or a little more than one-half of the nation's original forests.

"Of the forest land remaining and not utilized for farming or any other purpose," says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the Forestry association, in a public appeal

in behalf of forest conservation—

"approximately eighty-one million acres have been so severely cut and burned as to become an unproductive waste. This area is equivalent

many, Denmark, Holland, Belgium,

France, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal. Upon an enormous additional area the growth of timber is so small in amount or of such inferior character that its economic value is negligible."

Mr. Pack further points out that merchantable saw timber in the

numbers at 2,215 billion board feet, less than three-fourths of which is virgin stumpage, the remainder being second growth timber of relatively inferior quality.

Indicating the extent to which our timber supply is being reduced, and that the day when anything made of wood will be considered a luxury is not far distant unless something effective is done to conserve our timber supply, and rehabilitate our depleted forest areas, Mr. Pack goes on to say that—

"Every year there is now consumed or destroyed fifty-five billion board feet of material of saw timber size.

The total yearly consumption of all classes of timber is about twenty-six billion cubic feet. Our depleted forests are growing less than one-fourth of this amount.

Timber is not only being cutting heavily into its remaining virgin forests every year, but is also using up the smaller material upon which the future supply of saw timber depends much more rapidly than it is being replaced. The problem is one of the present as well as the future."

This situation directly or indirectly affects every industry, every line of activity, every citizen, of the whole country; for wood is second to no natural product—

with the possible exception of water and iron—in point of being a necessity to the welfare of the individual citizen and society in gen-

The newspaper print industry is

means is found whereby either to replenish and perpetuate the supply of pulp wood or to develop a substitute for wood in the manu-

Louisville Courier-Journal declares

in a recent editorial, while other materials can be used as a substitute for wood in the manufacture of many articles of daily use, thus to conserve timber, "the newspaper

The Courier-Journal calls attention to the alarming fact that

"pulp wood is being sold at $25 a cord in Canada; . . . being shipped 500 miles to mills, and paper is shipped much farther to consumers; and that, in the opinion of the American Forestry association,

"within twenty years the pulp wood supply of New England and the lake states will be about gone!"

The situation has reached an acute stage; and a remedy must be found. Speaking of their far-reaching influence, Mrs. Robinson who was herself one of the "walkers," says:

"The 'obstacle walks' were, I cannot help but think, strong factors in planting in the hearts and characters of the children who followed their leader, that indomitable pluck and determination which helped the ralliant sons and nephews of Theodore Roosevelt to go over the top on many a Plunder field. 'Over or through, never around!"

The children led the lesson as tion that is immediate and acute.

And this is a necessary development to which the national government can well afford to devote its attention.

As Mr. Pack further shows in his discussion of the forest situation in general—

"We are particularly fortunate in that the next president will be a man who doubtless has been hard pushed to keep going the business

by which he makes a livelihood, that of publishing a newspaper, because of the mounting cost of pulpwood and the consequent increased cost of print paper. Neither Mr.

Harding or Mr. Cox must be converted to the need of a national forest policy. Here is something they surely agree upon. If the winner will take active steps toward formulating a national forest policy he is assured of a place in the Hall of Fame."

This authority on our timber situation "very properly and appropriately calls upon all citizens of the country to join the forestry association in its worthy campaign to save the nation's forests from further depletion.

A KEEP-COOL BASIS.

Commenting on the stereotyped

"keep-cool" summer advice, The Baltimore American says that while that kind of keeping cool is good enough in its weather way,

"it doesn't suffice now."

The idea is to extend it beyond the limits of summer, and "to be cool for keeps" to bring a little more of philosophy to bear on the year-around worries of life.

That, of course, takes in the whole business of living, and hits

reformation may not be expected of "the born growlers," some good may result to themselves and others from experimenting with the

"keep-cool plan."

The great misfortune of the weather-wearing habit is that the state of mind of it is likely to be transferred to everything else that upsets one's little calculations—the mole hills are magnified to mountains; life's all storm, and no rainbows!

The high cost of living has long

hottest summer weather can never hope to match; but it's still with us, in various forms.

And many who, in a passion of protest, consigned it to warmer latitudes, overlooked the blessing

DISSENSION OF ALLIES ASSISTING RED GAINS

at Cross Purposes.
Peace With Bolshevism Called Utter Impossibility.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Beyond all else the collapse of Poland represents, aside from the bolshevik phase, a triumph for British policy and a defeat for French. As I have pointed out many times in these articles, it was the hope of French statesmanship to erect in Europe three Slav states, Poland, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, which in alliance with France might preserve the balance of power in Europe against a new German aggression. In such an alliance France would naturally have occupied the predominant role and, for the first time since the Franco-Prussian war, France would have obtained a position of independence, if not of ascendancy on the Continent.

British policy sought to prevent the liberation of French policy with the very obvious apprehension that France, thus strengthened, might become again a world power in the old sense, that is a rival of Britain, not alone in the Near East, where the Syrian question has from the moment of the armistice continued to poison Anglo-French relations, but on the continent of Europe. In a word, it was British purpose to prevent France from becoming too strong as a consequence of the victory over Germany and the temporary elimination of the German as a factor in the European situation.

The battle over Poland was one of the sharpest in the Paris conference and in it America was led into the rather humiliating situation of acting as a cat's paw to the British policy. A strong Poland meant a strong Polish-Polish alliance, a weak Poland in the nature of things meant a continuation of French dependency upon the British. France fought for the Polish cause, not alone from sympathy, which was very real, nevertheless, but also from policy.

British Opposed Poland.

As for the British, at all times under all circumstances Lloyd George opposed Poland. He did not merely stand out against Polish expansion into the regions which had been Poland's territory before the partition of 1773, regions in which Polish concern was political and strategic and her claims however strong historically, were ethically weak. His opposition was an emphatic one, as in Upper Silesia, there was not a question as to the predominance of the Polish tongue and race.

To take a parallel, which must leap to notice, the claims of Greece in western Asia Minor, sound as they are, are not stronger ethnologically than those of the Poles in eastern Galicia, they are not save in small areas as strong as those of the Poles in upper Silesia. But whereas British policy is served by the advance of the Greek in their ancient estates beyond the Aegean, British policy is at least in the opinion of those who guide it, injured by Polish expansion in similar fashion. Thus in Asia Minor British policy is one thing and in Lithuania and white Russia another, where, exactly the same moral issue is involved.

Poland was sacrificed, then, not as Americans at Paris and since have been led to believe, because of Polish refusal to abide by the appropriate fourteen principles, but because it was profitable from the British point of view to insist upon a rigid application of these principles in eastern Europe, but not in western Asia. Moreover, it will be recalled that Lloyd George was even more insistent than President Wilson on using the Wilson doctrine against the Poles.

So much for the fate of Poland, which I emphasize here, because so many Americans have failed to see in Poland as in Syria and in truth all over Europe, Asia and Africa, the so-called American ideas have not been either applied or adhered to in principle, but purely and simply as they were advantageous to British interests.

But the fact of Polish collapse must now be faced by all the British included, and it is no exaggeration to say that it has gone beyond British expectation or wish. What Lloyd George and those from whom he derived his Polish policy actually wished was a restricted Poland, but a Poland capable of maintaining the frontiers assigned to it, particularly against the Russian.

The arrival of the bolsheviks at the frontiers of east Prussia, perhaps in Warsaw itself, was no part of British policy.

In truth, the results of recent maneuvers have been disastrous to British interests. The gradual reintroduction of Russian influence to the Baltic provinces, where British policy was deeply engaged in setting up small states, nominal and then an actual return of these lands to Russian control, the natural allies of the outside world, barriers against German aggression, and Russian exit, all of the border states are now almost certain to return to the Russian orbit.

And this is the real bolshevik policy. Bolshevism, peace has already been made between the Lenin-Trotsky government and the Lithuanians, Letts and Estonians and frontiers have been granted to these several tribes which go outside of ethnic rights. But in giving them more than they asked the bolsheviks have at one time placated old enemies and prepared the way for ultimate Russian rule. These tribes have sought aid from the west, from the old allies, has failed to obtain it, and now they are, while nominally at peace and independent, confronted with the insupportable fact that they cannot rely upon the west to defend it against Russia, bolshevik or czaristic.

Now the Russians have extended this policy to Poland. The British government demands that the bolsheviks make peace with the Poles on the basis of those restricted frontiers imposed upon the Poles at Paris by the British. The Poles, their recent and disastrous war, but the Russians reply that they will make peace only with the Poles directly and then cleverly assert that the frontiers conceded by Poland's western allies are far more unfavorable to Poland than those Russia is prepared to admit.

What does this mean? It means beyond all else that the Poles, bitter at what they must regard as their betrayal by the west, hopeless now of realizing even the most modest of their old aspirations, find suddenly that it is more profitable to agree with the bolsheviks than to serve the west, what was unobtainable when Poland was playing western civilization may be had for the asking if Poland only chooses to turn east rather than west.

Meantime the Ukrainians, who allied themselves with the Poles against the bolsheviks, have been crushed with the Poles, Ukraine is almost all in bolshevik hands. But again bolshevik policy is disclosed in the assertion of Joffe, one of the Russian agents, that there is no question of autonomy to be conceded to the Ukraine, once peace is restored. What Germany failed to bestow upon the Ukrainians Lenin and Trotsky will give them.

Now consider what this means: A century and a quarter ago the French revolution, overflowing into central Europe, began the creation of a series of republics which in the lands which had anciently been the promised land for French aspirations, which were the ideas and the influence of the revolution were predominant. A little later the German revolution gathered into the French fold where they remained until after Napoleon's defeat.

If only it could be made clear to the American audience that bolshevism was a state of war, the real truth of the whole Russian problem would be simply established. Those who clamor for peace with Russia are without exception unwilling to concede the truth that while it is to abandon all effort to stop it, direct and indirect right, which has been so dishonest and deceitful because statesmen were afraid of their own constituents, there is no guarantee, there is no possible assurance that the bolsheviks will desist, too.

War is Life to Reds.

In truth Lenin and Trotsky can only desist by betraying their followers and their cause. They are seeking to overturn the western civilization, to conquer with ideas where arms are not available, but in fact to establish in the west the regime they have established in Russia. It is convenient for them not to make peace, just as it was convenient for them to make peace with Germany at Brest Litovsk. But their idea of peace is not an end of war making upon the west, but merely a change of weapons. They desire to corrupt, not to conquer, to use their own peculiar methods.

To make war upon Russia is stupid, so far as it has any purpose to do in Russia, to restore the czaristic regime, to establish some bourgeois control. Most of the failures so far have been due to the fact that the Russian revolution. But it is incapable so far as the Russians are concerned to make peace with the west, to lay aside their weapons while seeking to persuade the west to lay aside theirs. The trouble with the whole Russian problem from the armistice to the present moment, at least in the fact that the cowardice of western statesmen did not dare to make war openly, because of the opposition at home to any more war, and the deliberate use of the bolshevik cause by the labor movement in policies to fight the several governments.

Western statesmen perceived the fact that bolshevism was in fact a gospel of war upon the west, that peace was impossible because the enemy was seeking to destroy the western form of government and of industrial organization. But it lacked the courage to tell the truth, it sought at one time to make war and at another to make peace. The result was that it made war badly and deceived even less successful.

It would have been far better to have made peace with the bolsheviks, than it is to abandon all effort to fight them, even in the face of the fact that they would continue the battle, rather than to undertake to make war and pretend peace at the same moment. No one was deceived, but those whom the respective governments sought to deceive were naturally indignant and became more and more hostile and dangerous politically and at the same time one effort after another to wage war in disguise came to its inevitable failure.

So at last almost three years after the rise of bolshevism in Russia the situation is this: All the so-called domestic revolts, those of Kolchak, Denikin and Vidukha have failed. The effort to erect a cordon sanitaire about Russia, using the Baltic states, Poland and Rumania, has failed. Poland has been overrun and Rumania is directly under the effective arm, measured by western standards has been practically annihilated. The border states now are henceforth are and will be held by the upper hand on all her frontiers. The border states now are henceforth are and will be held by the upper hand on all her frontiers.

And if she chooses now to be generous and the matter of territorial concessions, this is giving what she can presently retake.

Between having a line of independent states extending from Finland to Rumania, capable combined of offering a desperate resistance to Russian aggression and, sustained by western arms able to hold back Russian armies, we have now only a collection of wretched states, each of them incapable alone of successful resistance, each of them convinced that it has nothing to expect from the western nations and therefore no incentive to resist, and every reason to make the best bargain that it can.

And this bargain is obviously to be based upon the bolshevik purpose to penetrate and permeate. Lenin and Trotsky are not content with the footprints of their czaristic predecessors, they are not seeking the restoration of Russia, but the destruction of nations. There is an international, not a nationalistic aspiration, bolshevism, a bolshevik Lithuania may include all of Europe, bolshevik Ukraine may have autonomy to the nth degree. What is important is that the bolshevik method, principle, ideas shall be applied as widely as possible.

And the infection, which has possessed Russia may pass the frontiers, begin its march westward. The political phases are still important; a Napoleon may follow the Russian revolution as Bonaparte followed the French, but this is another question.

Cause of Red Triumph.

It is a twofold reason that must explain the victory of bolshevism, one of the most astonishing victories in all history. First the division of the allied nations, the policy to restrain France, even by sacrificing Poland, the French desire to build upon the ruins of the vigorous French policy with the possible political ascendancy in Europe.

And the second explanation is found in the domestic policy pursued by the various leaders in the several allied nations. Terrified by the weariness of their publics, resulting from the world war, appalled by the insubordination in the armies, when the prospect of a new campaign opened, they have shrunk from facing the fact and informing their publics of the truth that bolshevism was a war, already declared upon the western nations and that the western nations must defend themselves or succumb.

Now the Russians have extended this policy to Poland. The British government demands that the bolsheviks make peace with the Poles on the basis of those restricted frontiers imposed upon the Poles at Paris by the British. The Poles, their recent and disastrous war, but the Russians reply that they will make peace only with the Poles directly and then cleverly assert that the frontiers conceded by Poland's western allies are far more unfavorable to Poland than those Russia is prepared to admit.

What does this mean? It means beyond all else that the Poles, bitter at what they must regard as their betrayal by the west, hopeless now of realizing even the most modest of their old aspirations, find suddenly that it is more profitable to agree with the bolsheviks than to serve the west, what was unobtainable when Poland was playing western civilization may be had for the asking if Poland only chooses to turn east rather than west.

Meantime the Ukrainians, who allied themselves with the Poles against the bolsheviks, have been crushed with the Poles, Ukraine is almost all in bolshevik hands. But again bolshevik policy is disclosed in the assertion of Joffe, one of the Russian agents, that there is no question of autonomy to be conceded to the Ukraine, once peace is restored. What Germany failed to bestow upon the Ukrainians Lenin and Trotsky will give them.

Now consider what this means: A century and a quarter ago the French revolution, overflowing into central Europe, began the creation of a series of republics which in the lands which had anciently been the promised land for French aspirations, which were the ideas and the influence of the revolution were predominant. A little later the German revolution gathered into the French fold where they remained until after Napoleon's defeat.

They are seeking to overturn the western civilization, to conquer with ideas where arms are not available, but in fact to establish in the west the regime they have established in Russia. It is convenient for them not to make peace, just as it was convenient for them to make peace with Germany at Brest Litovsk. To make war upon Russia is stupid, so far as it has any purpose to do in Russia, to restore the czaristic regime, to establish some bourgeois control. Most of the failures so far have been due to the fact that the Russian revolution. But it is incapable so far as the Russians are concerned to make peace with the west, to lay aside their weapons while seeking to persuade the west to lay aside theirs. The trouble with the whole Russian problem from the armistice to the present moment, at least in the fact that the cowardice of western statesmen did not dare to make war openly, because of the opposition at home to any more war, and the deliberate use of the bolshevik cause by the labor movement in policies to fight the several governments.

Western statesmen perceived the fact that bolshevism was in fact a gospel of war upon the west, that peace was impossible because the enemy was seeking to destroy the western form of government and of industrial organization. No one was deceived, but those whom the respective governments sought to deceive were naturally indignant and became more and more hostile and dangerous politically and at the same time one effort after another to wage war in disguise came to its inevitable failure.

whether through Persia or Armenia, his advance carries instant menace to Britain, to India and to Mesopotamia. It peace does not come it may be that a short time before the old Russian menace is revived in Central Asia and the "bear that walks like a man" will appear again in regions where the shadow was familiar before the advent of Edward VII and the change from Victorian to Edwardian foreign policy.

The world is tired of war and the talk of war. The masses who fought the last war and will fight all wars are in no mood just now to undertake a new burden. They believe about the bolsheviks and they are sustained in their own belief by the weak and fruitless deception practiced by their political leaders in recent months. They welcome the bolshevik triumph, only in small part perhaps because of any real sympathy with bolshevism, certainly with no adequate appreciation of what it means, but because it represents a defeat for their own rulers, whom they have obviously broken.

Since these things are true, it is useless now to expect an excited western policy by any statement of what the bolsheviks' successes might mean for them. Yet the truth is plain for all who care to see it. After three years the Russian revolution has completely as the French revolution suppressed the "fence," Lenin and Trotsky have passed its crest already, prophecy is idle. But at the least there is a new obstacle to the Russian advance in Europe and the British garrisons in Asia. By comparison with the Russian advance in the east, the allied and German conferences in the west are mere details. The shadow of an even greater conflict may now be seen in the future.

ALLEGED THIEVES HELD FOR TRIALS IN STATE COURTS

Eleven burglary and larceny from the house cases were tried by Judge Buchanan in police court Saturday, all of them charged with bound over to the state courts for trial. They were:

Will Russell, negro, accused of sawing the bolts off the safe of the A. L. & A. railroad in an effort to break in. He was held under $1,000 bond.

John Gilbert, negro, accused of larceny from a house, was held under a $200 bond.

Jessie J. Oliver and Madge Bridgman, white women, were charged with a large quantity of wearing apparel from Mrs. Goldstein's residence at 230 Transportation building, were held under $1,000 bond each.

Roy Williams, negro, was held under $1,000 bond for a burglary charge, while Robert Hill, negro, was placed under a $200 bond for larceny from the house of Elizabeth Armour, negro woman, was arraigned on a charge of larceny and held under a $100 bond.

A. C. Fleming, charged with car breaking, was bound over under a $500 bond, and W. L. West, charged with car breaking, was bound over under a $500 bond.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better. It is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh. All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other medicinal ingredients in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will give you a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas, stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets." Gainesville Girl Hurt.

Miss Josephine Holcombe, of Gainesville, Ga., was slightly injured Saturday morning at the corner of Forsyth and Hunter streets, when struck by a truck of the Morrow Transfer and Storage company. She was taken to the Grady hospital for treatment. Ed Mason, negro, who was driving the truck, is said to have abandoned the machine.

HARDWICK MAKES ADDRESS AT OCILLA

Ocala, Ga., July 31.—(Special)—Thomas W. Hardwick spoke at the court house here yesterday afternoon to 300 people. This speech had been thoroughly advertised one of the supporters of Mr. Hardwick having ridden for several days giving out posters of the speaker and personally urging the voters to come out and hear the speaker.

His speech met with little applause. He stated the Australian ballot system was necessary to prevent the poor white people in Georgia from selling their votes to the rich office seeker.

He paid a tribute to Thomas E. Watson.

Accused of Assault, Negro Leaps to Death From a Moving Train

Miami, Fla., July 31.—Herbert Brooks, arrested as a suspect in connection with the assault of an elderly white woman here yesterday, jumped from a moving train at Ormond today and killed himself, according to a telegram received this afternoon from Sheriff Monroe, of St. Lucie county.

The negro was being taken to Jacksonville for safe keeping, the sheriff of this county fearing mob violence.

Citizens of Georgia

It being the avowed purpose of the American Legion to uphold and promote 100 per cent Americanism, the time has come for us to take up the fight that has been launched against us, and the principles for which we stand, and prove to the world that patriotism in America still lives and surpasses selfish politics.

When American men had achieved the great victory in Europe in 1918 and were patiently waiting to be returned to America, a number of American enlisted men met with an equal number of American officers in Paris and formed the American Legion. It now has a membership of more than two million men. If we should grant that every man who was commissioned an officer during the entire duration of the war is now a member of the Legion, which is, of course, not true, there could not possibly be more officers, or approximately one-seventh of the present Legion membership. The Legion is governed by a majority vote, making any effort to brand it a secret society of officers ridiculous.

To accomplish our purpose to uphold and promote 100 per cent Americanism, it is essential that we make sure that men elected to public offices be proven loyal American citizens.

Mr. Thomas E. Watson, a candidate in Georgia for the United States Senate, and Mr. Thomas W. Hardwick, candidate for governor of Georgia, proved themselves to be disloyal to America and America's ideals during the late war with Germany, and we accept it as our duty to denounce these men to the people of Georgia and make public their records, which prove their disloyalty during the world war.

Be it definitely understood by all Georgians that we will fight these men on their records of disloyalty. WE WILL NOT espouse the cause of any candidate now in the race for either office, nor the cause of any man who may come into the race. We will fight our own fight for principles of right, that as loyal Americans have always done, and no man may claim our efforts in his selfish interest.

Nickels and Dimes

Built the Tallest Building in the World

Five and ten-cent sales of merchandise built the great Woolworth business and made possible the erection in New York of the Woolworth building—the tallest building in the world.

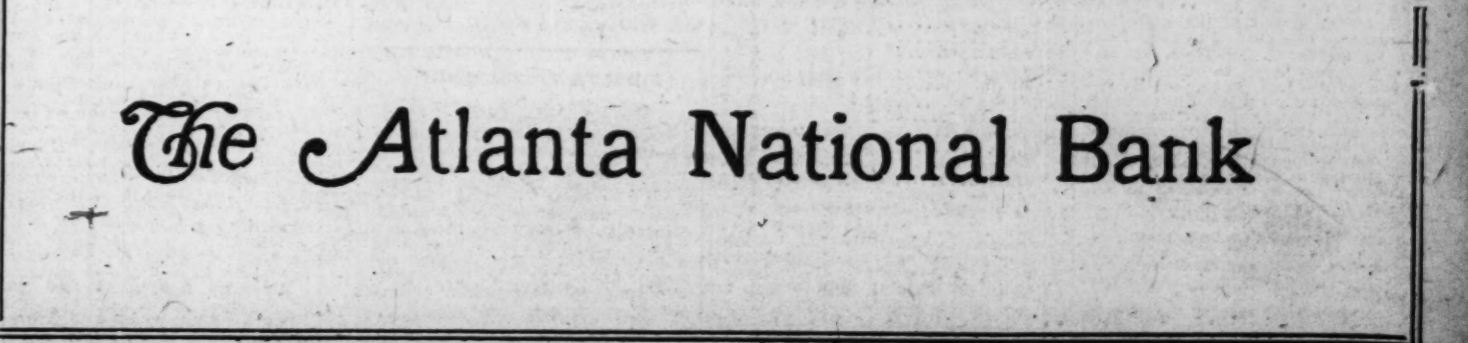

Those nickels and dimes were not worth much—by themselves—but in the aggregate they developed a latent power that has made the man with foresight enough to accumulate them known throughout the world.

The power of a reserve fund means the difference between success and failure. A reserve fund is the difference between income and expenditure. If this difference is in your pocket it will probably be spent. But if it is on deposit in THE SAVINGS DEPARTMENT of the ATLANTA NATIONAL BANK it is not only safe from momentary impulse, but it is drawing interest, compounded semi-annually.

Open an account with a $5 deposit NOW. Add a little each week, and you will be surprised at the ease with which you can establish a comfortable balance.

In addition to the interest you will receive the increased buying power of every dollar you save will increase as prices decline, which will add materially to your savings.

BOB JONES AND ADAIR

TO MEET

By Cliff Wheatley.
You may take your pick, gentlemen, between Bob Jones and Perry Adair to meet Richard Hickey in the finals of the championship flight for the Davis-Freeman cup at East Lake, as these two young men won their second matches locally yesterday afternoon at the country home of the Atlanta Athletic club.

Bob drew as opponent Keith Conway and beat him 7-6. Conway had been playing a really great clip until his parings with the southern champion was announced.

Hill Saville played a good game against Perry, but he took a bad break in the eighth hole and a fight rise to the stragglers who braved the heat to make up a gallery for the contest. The crowd was estimated to win by a greater margin.

Now the scene will shift to Bob and Perry, ancient rivals, whose feud the Davis-Freeman cup is considered to have started. The old cup's history dating back to the days when Bob and Perry were taking their first lessons at the ancient swimming palace was a disgrace to the game. It was time to give the cup something like the dignity to the cup. And the battle this afternoon is certain to be a great one, as both golfers have carved a couple of holes in the record books. The winner—making one more to go, as the trophy will belong to the player who gets three grasps on it.

The race between Bob and Perry was the Davis-Perry trophy before the Davis-Perry trophy was made. I told you about it.

The other party to the finals, Richard Hickey, hasn't yet succeeded in getting a leg on the trophy, but a rock-bottom dollar can be bet that Richard will make a supreme effort to accomplish the trick when he faces Bob or Perry in the his last week. He is now on his way to the finals by defeating Miss Alexa Stirling, 3-1, in their match Friday. Richardson is a former champion. Babe Ruth would hammer a rub out of him that split the plate, and Miss Stirling would be left after calling away from the tees. Richardson would overcome the advantage of his left hand and win. Richardson is a former champion.

"I don't know what time Bobby and Perry will get off this afternoon, but it is going to be a match between two of the best players in the dope sheet, discredited because of a fibbed more times this year than any other player in the game. The winner of the Jones-Adair fight will sail through to permanent prize money."

What Mr. Hickey has to say to them we aren't informed, but when they get to the clubhouse, it is probable that he is concerned in what they do. If it is not, it is because Richardson wants to win the big man's cup, and whether he loses or wins, he can't be thrown out of the clubhouse.

Druid Hills Tourney.
The second round in the Memphis tournament for the G. W. Willis cup was completed yesterday afternoon at Druid Hills, but the scores of the matches were not given out last night. We are informed that the semi-finals of this tourney will be reached by Wednesday, while the finals will be played Saturday.

At West End Club.
Sixty-odd golfers of Atlanta are gathering at the West End Golf course, and the battle will be decided during the week.

here the Americans won the match and, in addition, captured five first prizes in individual competitions. During their shooting clay targets over the English bay, according to mail advices received today, excellent scores and records were made by the Americans, who were competing with the best men identified with English Clay Bird Shooting Association.

Following is a summary of what American gunners accomplished in England:

Frank M. Troeh, Vancouver, B. C., broke 108 straight on July 15; 106 on July 16; broke 138 straight. He was the best previous long run in the world.

English clay-bird champion-was won by Troeh with a score 9 out of forty. In this titular Jay Clark, Jr., Worcester, was second; Forest W. Mc-Houston, Texas, third, and Eric Arle, Champaign, Ill., fourth.
The grand aggregate of the meet-the gold star and the silver was won by Forest McNeir with straight.

The international shield, at 120 birds, was won by the United team, which defeated the sh by ten birds. On the first of the meeting the United States broke 59 out of 60, a new and remarkable record.

On S. Donnelly, New York, won double rise championship (tar-thrown from a tower), break-the ten birds straight, also a d.

Frank M. Troeh won the champion live-bird meeting, at chill, with fifteen straight in

Against Watson and Hardwick Legionnaires Solemnly Warn

Flood of Communications From Ex-Service Men Indorse Stand of Local Legion Post Committee.

"A clear-cut, definite fight against Tom Watson and Tom Hardwick, in the coming election, is what we are conducting," stated the special committee of Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion, Saturday. "We do not now espouse the cause of any man either race, and we do not intend to espouse the cause of any man who might enter."

This statement was made at a meeting of the committee Saturday afternoon, when further plans were perfected to carry the fight to all corners of the state. It was brought out that the fight of Atlanta Post No. 1, of the American Legion, is to be conducted on a basis of loyalty and that the only motive which has prompted the fight is the attitude assumed by Watson and Hardwick during the world war.

Scores of letters and telephone calls were received by members of the committee following the attack made on Watson and Hardwick published Saturday.

Committee's Letter.

The committee, which is composed of R. B. Troutman, Trammell Scott and William A. Simon, issued the following open letter to the voters of Georgia:

"Enemies of your state are seeking at your hands the most important offices in your power to bestow. Men who you reviled, men who during the war you recognized as enemies, are striving by every means to make you forget their war records and to have you believe that they are guardians of freedom, and that they alone can safeguard your liberty. Neither a regard for truth nor common decency limit the means which they are using this end. Tom Watson's statements in which he calls President Wilson, the chief executive of our country, the monster of the white house, is proof conclusive of this.

The American Legion is not a political organization. It has no desire to become one. It is an organization of men who have demonstrated their love of country, and who have given proof of their loyalty. Not by being willing to accept political office, not by smooth words, but by offering their lives, simply and without reservation, is proof of that fact, and proof that an applicant has discharged well and faithfully his duty to his country.

The American Legion is not excitable or easily alarmed. Most of its members were cured of that failing in France.

Warn the People.

"The American Legion is governed strictly by majority rule. For the majority of its members were in the army. This could not be otherwise when the rank of private predominated in our army.

The American Legion now believes that it is its duty to warn the people of Georgia of the danger confronting them. It has not been deceived by Tom Watson or Tom Hardwick. It knows that despite the camouflage of these men the people of Georgia are not fools. It does not ask to be believed, or to be heeded, because of your gratitude for their past services for you. It only asks that you believe in the sincerity of its efforts.

The American Legion will expose the war-time records of these two men who seek election at your hands. It asks that you be the judge. It asks that you consider these records and vote as your conscience dictates.

Almost 95 per cent of its inhabitants live within one-third of the area of China with a density of population of about 200 to the square mile.

SUNSET PARK, ABOVE THE CLOUDS

THE CAMPER'S PARADISE.

Located at the very top of Sunset Mountain, this beautiful park commands an unequalled view over the famous Swannanoa valley, with towering mountain peaks on both sides. Just to the north and west is the Craggy range, Grayboard, Pinnacle and Mount Mitchell, the highest peak east of the Rockies, altitude 6,711 feet.

Sunset Park is reached by good motor road from Black Mountain village, 15 minutes' drive, and about one hour from Asheville. (A magnificent concrete highway is being constructed all the way from Asheville.)

Sunset Park is centrally located, being about an equal distance (3 miles) from the Presbyterian assembly at Montreat, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. assembly hall, "Blue Ridge," also known as Robert E. Lee hall, and the Baptist assembly grounds and Pritchelle hall at Ridgecrest, where entertainment of the highest order is available at all times. All of the above are in plain view from Sunset Park.

No meals are served, but furnished cottages and rooms for light housekeeping or camping may be secured at reasonable rates. Groceries, milk, fruit and vegetables sold to tenants at cost. Motor tourists are especially invited. Further information from owner, A. M. Griffin, P. O. Box 107, Black Mountain, N. C.—(adv.)

YOU ARE doing yourself and your purse an injustice if you fail to visit our store and make Furniture purchases during this—

The Greatest

Hundreds of People

Have taken advantage of the opportunity our crowded condition has made necessary. They have visited our store and have been amazed at the wonderful values we are offering—and they have unhesitatingly made large selections from our big stock.

Furniture Sale

Ever Offered to the People of the South

Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of the largest assortment of Furniture in the entire South is on our floors—and everything is included in this sale.

We Have Told You Why—We Tell You Again

An unfinished new warehouse, where we had planned to take care of our tremendous stocks, is responsible for our congested condition. Our old warehouse was removed to make way for the new, and having to remove our reserve stock, it has jammed us almost to the doors. These stocks are all fresh and the very latest models from the leading furniture manufacturers of the country. BUT OTHER SHIPMENTS ARE ARRIVING DAILY, so the only alternative was a sale—A REAL SALE, WITHOUT PROFIT TO US, therefore.

You can buy a suite of furniture or a single piece in this sale---at retail---for the same price we pay in carload lots---WHOLESALE!

This means that we cannot buy again, even at wholesale, this same furniture for less than we offer it to you in this sale.

We Will Take Care of Your Needs

Of course, in a sale of this magnitude—where profits have been practically eliminated—we cannot be expected to make usual liberal terms—at the same time, if you will come in and compare our truly wonderful prices with the prices on other fine furniture, we will help you in every reasonable way to secure the furniture you desire.

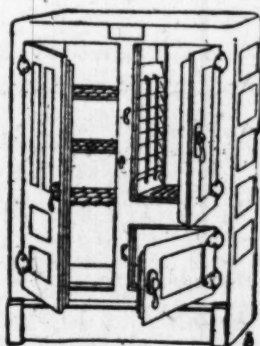

Out-of-Town Customers

Will find this the golden opportunity to refurnish your home with fine furniture at prices far less than you have at any time imagined. Make it a point to come to Atlanta—to take advantage while this sale lasts.

With Furniture Prices Advancing

the opportunity we are giving to thousands in this wonderful sale to beautify and better their homes at small cost cannot help but be appreciated. With a car shortage and with proposed increased freight rates, there will not come a time—at least, not soon—when you can make the SAVING on Furniture that you can make here now. We reserve the right to call off this sale—and will do so—just as soon as we are relieved of our crowded condition.

REMEMBER—Our entire stock of Furniture and Rugs—and we have ten big crowded floors—is included in this marvelous sale.

ROUTE FOR AIR DERBY AROUND THE WORLD

New York, July 21.—A route has been mapped out for the first aerial derby around the world—for which no date has been announced—by a special joint commission of the Aero Club of America, and the Aerial League of America, which recently returned from a tour of the world.

A test flight, preceding the derby, will start in London, moving east to Tokyo and thence to Seattle and New York. It was announced tonight, but the date of test flight also was not given. This flight will be made in an airplane with a capacity for ten passengers to ascertain the exact flying conditions of the proposed route. It was said. The tentative route of the round-the-world derby follows:
New York to Seattle to Yokohama, to Shanghai, to Bangkok, to Rangoon, to Karachi, India; to Calcutta and Delhi; to Bagdad, to Rome, to the Irish coast, to London, New Foundland and New York. The total distance is 22,207 miles.

The Added Points

COMPARE the new Velie Model 48 with other cars—and you will be struck with the Velie's many added points of quality. In the Authoritative Style its leadership is everywhere recognized. In the great reserve power of its sturdy motor it sets a new pace—with suppleness that gives you a thrill in its perfect ease of handling—with economy found only in the Velie's internally heated vaporizer developing exceptional power on low-grade fuel. Here is more room, more comfort, more taste, more convenience, than was ever before embodied in even the Velie. Six models, open and closed. Let us show you.

CHALMERS

HOT SPOT and RAM'S HORN, which have made Chalmers one of the few great cars of the world, accomplish such results as these:

Quality First

- A—Make an engine practically carbon exempt.
- B—Prevent the chief cause of spark plug fouling.
- C—Eliminate the chief cause of burned bearings and scored cylinders.
- D—Give extended gasoline mileage.
- E—Reduce vibration.

They develop engine efficiency to a new peak and bring motor car up-keep to a new low level.

For Hot Spot and Ram's-horn convert the raw, inferior gasoline of the day into a fuel vapor, from which is extracted, without harm to the engine, the power that nature centuries ago stored away in gasoline.

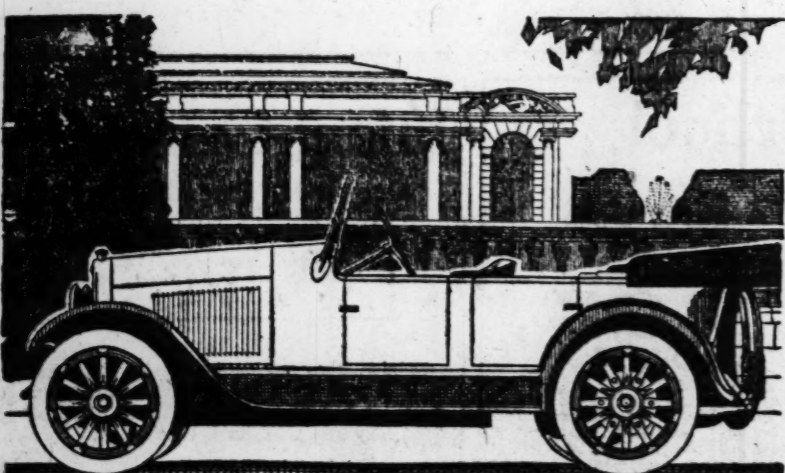

Spend a few minutes with a Chalmers owner. Talk with him about his car. He will tell you Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

HARDING STUMPS FROM FRONT PORCH

Heard Senator's Speech.
Stresses Mutuality of Interest of All Americans.

Marion, Ohio, July 31.—Turning aside from the political issues that have been in the forefront of the campaign, Senator Harding took for the theme of his first front-porch speech today a plea for solidarity of the nation's highest destinies. He pleaded that east, west, north and south and the jealousies of class and selfish interest be forgotten in peace as they had been in war.

Only a spirit of "commingling friendship," he said, could produce the full realization of mutual interdependence necessary to attainment of the nation's highest destinies. He pleaded that east, west, north and south and the jealousies of class and selfish interest be forgotten in peace as they had been in war.

In a passing reference to wartime taxation, the senator declared the excess profits tax schedule should be modified to accord with peace requirements, and that he would not hesitate to ask congress for prompt action to that end. He added, however, that he was "not yet prepared to suggest an equitable substitute."

Spoke From Front Porch.

The speech was delivered from the front porch of the Harding residence to a delegation from Mansfield, in a neighborhood Ohio county, which came up in marching order and serenaded the candidate with four brass bands. In the crowd, which filled the lawn and overflowed into the street, were many known personally to the candidate, and they cheered him as he held up their conception of neighborliness as a model for the nation.

In a short address of greeting, E. B. Capelier, of Mansfield, told Senator Harding that many democrats were in the delegation, and that hundreds more in Richland county were going to help "the boys and girls" of other counties to carry Ohio and the nation for the republican ticket in November.

After the nominee's response he came down the steps with Mrs. Harding, who had stood a few feet behind him during the speech, and they shook hands for a half hour as the crowd filed by.

Today's speech marked the formal opening of the front-porch campaign, which is expected before the summer is over to bring to Marion many thousands of republican voters. Two more Ohio delegations are to be received during the coming week, and two later dates already have been announced.

Senator Harding's Speech.
In the opening speech of his front porch campaign Senator Harding said that the greatest usefulness of the nation demanded a leveling of class and sectional barriers and a realization of the "interdependence and mutuality of interest of all our people."

The great war, he said, had helped toward such a realization. Closer co-operation in industry and complete assimilation of the foreign-born, he suggested as pointing the way to a fuller national accord.

Urging also a readjustment of taxation, he expressed doubt whether the war-time excess profits levy was in harmony with peace requirements, but added he had not yet worked out the details of a revision tax system.

"We ought to make wealth bear its full share of taxation," he said, "and we ought to have this thought in mind and also thinking of the excessive cost of living, among our men and women has departed. We are a democratic people."

There is a disposition of some to inveigh against one section or another, as selfish interest may suggest, but the broad national welfare contemplates no east and no west no north and no south. Pride of locality is most commendable, but patriotism is not sectional. Politically we may divide as God gives to see the right, but materially, socially and economically we must be an entirely-united, harmonious and interdependent.

"I rejoice to recall that when the great world war summoned our sons to duty and to death, perhaps there was no question about geography. The boys of the north 'dressed front' with the sons of the south, and all went triumphantly forward to undying fame, never questioning the origin or the environment, much less the locality of their comrades."

"If the great world war held for us nothing else, it did teach us that there is something more than gain to be striven for in this world."

We can hail the lofty and blessed rule of commingling friendship. Having given our splendid lesson, let us present to the world another example, that of concord among ourselves, and make America safe for Americans and the loftiest example of representative democracy."

The harbor of Odessa, in South Russia, is formed by several stone piers and a long breakwater and is protected in every direction. It is the only port in southern Russia where ships drawing 30 feet can come directly to the docks, and the docks are larger and better equipped than those of any other Black sea port. The depth is 25 feet on one side and 18 to 17 feet on the other.

To save the miners' time a canten has been placed 500 feet below ground in a coal mine in Europe.

ed that you come not only as republicans, but as neighbors and friends. We need to cultivate friendliness and neighborliness. I sometimes think in this busy, workaday world we are neglecting those little acts of neighborliness that make life sweet and worth while. We should not forget that life's greatest joys lie in the social converse of friends and neighbors.

Mutuality of Interest.
"The special thought in my mind today is the interdependence and the mutuality of interest of all our people. The tendency to class consciousness is a product of developing fortunes, and is both a relief of achievement and a menace to maintained progress. We must caution against class distinction and class conflict at every step."

"Here in the middle west, where farming is free from tenantry and holds to the normal way, and manufacturing is mainly confined to the plants of that moderate size which indexes the surrounding abundance of American industry, we have the touch of intimacy and that closer understanding which emphasize the thought I have in mind. We cannot promote agriculture alone, because the factory is necessary. We cannot foster the factory and ignore agriculture, because the farm is our basis of food supply."

"I can recall readily 40-cent wheat. That was before industry developed the home consumer that was before railways and improved highways opened the way to markets. That was when farming was a fight for subsistence instead of the present pursuit of attainment. Sometimes we are very naive in handling the utterances of public men. I remember, when the senate was discussing the war-time guarantee on wheat, when we felt we ought to give the American farmer that assurance, which would encourage a seedling to guard against war famine, a western senator was saying that wheat could not be raised for less than $2.50 per bushel. I interrupted him to say that I well recalled that Ohio farmers, in pre-war days, had rejoiced to get a dollar for their wheat. I was speaking of normal days prior to the war. You will bear me witness that I spoke fairly and correctly. Yet there are those today who seek to convey that I said a dollar a bushel is enough for wheat today. I am not so anxious at the silly untruth as I am distressed at the affront to ordinary intelligence."

All Looking Forward.
"There is no living today or tomorrow according to yesterday. Every normal being is looking forward. We collect more federal taxes in one year than the entire wealth of the republic a century ago. Only a little while ago our grievances about taxes were wholly local, because a half century of republican control of the federal government held us free from direct burdens. But the changed policy, the democratic drift to freedom of trade which is international rather than national, and mounting cost of government and finally war burdens, turned federal taxation to a colossal burden."

"No one seriously complained while the national crisis hung over us, but we must work a readjustment for stabilized and prosperous peace. We ought to make our wealth its full share of tax burdens, and we ever will. Having this thought in mind and also thinking of the excessive cost of living, I doubt if the excess profits tax for war precisely accomplishes the end we seek in peace, though we do not disagree about the worthy intent. Its operations have been disappointing, its costs multiplied and pyramided, and righteous changes and modifications ought to be sought at an early day."

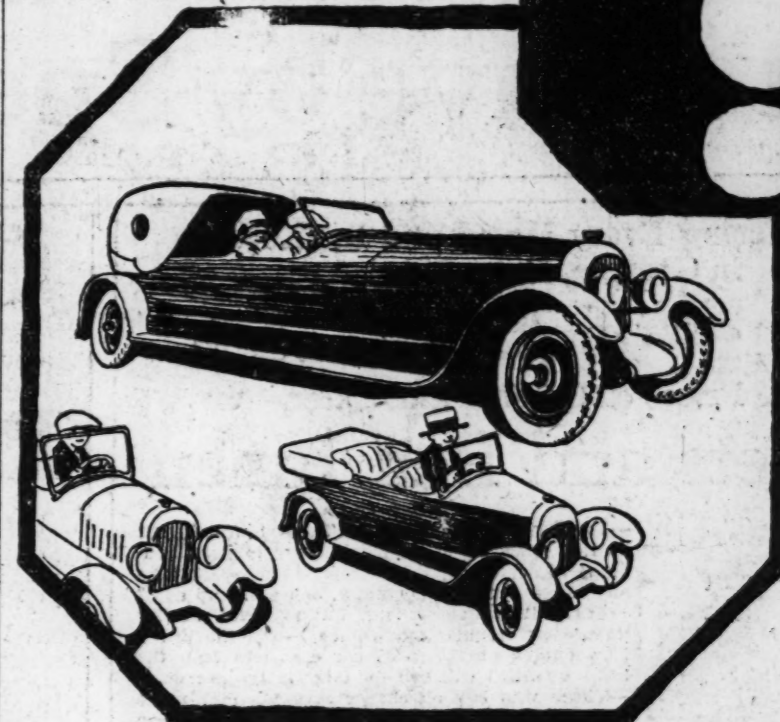

"I would gladly recommend a change, but I am not yet prepared to suggest an equitable substitute, though I should have no hesitancy in asking congress to seek the earliest possible solution. The reduced cost of government in already pledged and reduced appropriations by congress is already recorded. We must not paralyze American production by taxation at home or destructive competition from abroad, because our mutual interest in productivity has made us what we are."

Sectionalism Condemned.
"Despite all the depreciation, I cannot bring myself to accept the notion that the inter-relationship among our men and women has departed. We are a democratic people."

There is a disposition of some to inveigh against one section or another, as selfish interest may suggest, but the broad national welfare contemplates no east and no west no north and no south. Pride of locality is most commendable, but patriotism is not sectional. Politically we may divide as God gives to see the right, but materially, socially and economically we must be an entirely-united, harmonious and interdependent."

MOSLEMS OF INDIA TURNING ON BRITAIN

Rome, July 31.—Mohamed Ali, head of the Indian Moslem delegation, has been received by Pope Benedict. Premier Giolitti and Count Siorza, the foreign minister, and presented to them the aspirations of his people.

After his audience at the Vatican, Mohamed reported that the pontiff had heard his statement sympathetically and had expressed pleasure toward the spirit of tolerance toward other religions now being shown by the Indian Moslem.

Mohamed said his principal protest was "because England had not maintained the pledges made with respect to the holy places, having instead practically abolished the caliphate and placed the holy places all under direct or indirect British domination."

After declaring that the "entire east has fallen into the hands of Lloyd George," Mohamed declared, "we cannot tolerate British and French mandates over places where the Moslems consider themselves as God's mandates."

Mohamed then explained the program which the Indians intended carrying out against Great Britain as follows: First, the return of all decorations and titles received from the British government; second, the resignation of positions occupied by Indians in the British administration; third, the resignation of all Indian soldiers and policemen, which would prevent British occupation of Mesopotamia and Palestine and also support the Greeks in Thrace and Asia Minor; and, fourth, refusal to pay taxes.

If these actions were not sufficient, Mohamed said, then a holy war would be proclaimed.

Negroes Are Ordered To Leave Community After Attack on Woman

Ozark, Ala., July 31.—Following an attack on a white woman at Midland City, south of here, and the killing of two negroes, Sills Spinks and Justus Jennings, several negroes have been "given twenty-four hours to leave and have fled the community," according to special agents here today.

The bodies of the two negroes killed by possumen late Thursday night lay out in the road until Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Andy Spinks, charged with making an attack on the white woman, whose home was entered Thursday night, and resulted in the double killing of his son and Jennings, is in jail in Montgomery. He will be brought back here and tried some time in August. Feeling here is very high against him and several other negroes.

Near the scene of the double killing, the negro lodge room was destroyed by fire, believed to have been started by indignant citizens. The fire occurred before notice was given to several negroes to leave the county.

Dothan, Ala., July 31.—Richard J. Jones, negro, was brought here last night, after being shot and seriously wounded while waiting for a train at Grimes, north of here. He was shot in the shoulder and one leg was broken. He was shot near the scene of the attack on a white woman Thursday night by negroes which resulted in the killing of Sills Spinks and Justus Jennings by possumen.

Jones says he was going from Birmingham to his home in Abbeville and was waiting for a train when he was shot by persons from ambush and whom he did not see. White citizens passing by heard the man's cries and brought him here for surgical attention. He is seriously wounded but will probably recover.

GERMANY ABOLISHES COMPULSORY SERVICE

Berlin, July 31.—The reichstag today adopted the bill recently presented by the government providing for the abolition of compulsory military service. The German action is in fulfillment of one of the allied demands regarding German disarmament agreed to by Germany at the recent Spa conference.

MOYER FOR WARDEN OF KENTUCKY PRISON

Ossining, N. Y., July 31.—William H. Moyer, formerly warden at Sing Sing prison, has been appointed warden of the Kentucky state prison at Frankfort, Ky., officials of Sing Sing prison announced today. Mr. Moyer was warden of Sing Sing prison from December, 1916, to April, 1919. He will assume his new duties next week.

FAHEY IS RECEIVED BY THE KING OF ITALY

Rome, July 31.—The king today received John H. Fahey, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, accompanied by Alfred B. Dennis, American commercial attaché at Rome, in an audience at the Quirinal palace. The informal conversation, lasting a half hour, had the aspect of a talk any business man in Italy would have with two American business men, evidencing a democratic character.

The Italian sovereign, who is most keenly interested in all modern problems, showed himself thoroughly acquainted with all American questions. He dwelt especially on the subject of strengthening relations between the two countries, particularly development of commercial exchanges, alluding to the shipping situation in Italy's need of raw materials.

The king was interested in the workings of the American federal reserve system and also of the American mercantile marine and its rapid growth. He discussed with Mr. Dennis the food production of Italy and its increase through the use of American agricultural machines and the adoption of American methods.

New York, July 31.—The supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus began assembling here tonight for an executive session tomorrow that will precede the order's thirty-eighth supreme convention next Tuesday.

Three chief issues face the convention. They are: Ratification of the educational campaign to be financed with the $7,000,000 surplus of the Knights of Columbus war fund; election of seven members of the supreme board of directors; and speeding of the Knights of Columbus pilgrimage on its way to Europe and the Vatican. The convention will adjourn Thursday noon.

PUBLISHERS OPPOSE EXPRESS RATE LIFT

Washington, July 31.—In a brief filed with the interstate commerce commission today the National Publishers Association of New York opposed the application of the American Railway Express company for an increase of 40 per cent in the rates on the transportation of periodicals. The association asked that any increase of express rates on magazines and periodicals be limited to not more than 25 or 30 per cent. The express company has estimated that a general increase of approximately 40 per cent will be necessary to include the wage award to express employees by the railroad labor board in Chicago.

PRESIDENT WILSON DECIDES TO QUIT SHEEP BUSINESS

Washington, July 31.—President Wilson has decided to retire from the sheep business. The white house flock of 48 prize sheep, which have kept the lawn cut for three summers, is to be sold.

The yield of wool has gone to charity, this year to the Salvation Army. In 1918, the flock produced 38 pounds of wool, which was sold by the Red Cross throughout the country, bringing in more than $52,000. The original flock of 18 head was obtained from William Woodward of New York, who has a farm near Bowie, Md., where it was said at the white house today that George Washington once obtained a herd of deer to stock the grounds at Mount Vernon.

HERBERT HOOVER QUILTS ARMENIA COMMISSION

New York, July 31.—Following the resignation of Colonel William N. Haskell, United States army, as allied high commissioner to Armenia, August 1, Herbert Hoover today announced his withdrawal from the same commission. The resignation was contained in a letter to the secretary of state made public today.

Since Mr. Hoover took over this work early in 1919, some 100,000 tons of food and supplies valued at more than $20,000,000, the letter said, have been sent to Armenia as a contribution from the United States.

Hospitals and orphanages formerly controlled by the commission, have been turned over to the Near East relief.

"I'd like to know why you engaged young woman for a typist?" demanded Mrs. Jones of her husband.

HUNGARIANS RAID AUSTRIAN ARSENAL

Vienna, July 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—A Hungarian force of more than 800 armed and uniformed men crossed the Austrian frontier early this morning overpowered the guards and raided the Furstenfeld arsenal, seizing 2,000 rifles, 2,000 uniforms and twenty-one machine guns. The raiders returned to Hungary with the booty loaded on motor trucks.

The government has protested to the Hungarian minister, demanding punishment of the raiders, return of the loot, an apology and payment of damages. It has also communicated the facts to the foreign missions.

It is feared that in other raids of other arsenals the raiders obtained more than 4,000 small arms. An official account asserts that Hungarian and Austrian reactionaries plotted the raid, which was thoroughly organized and caused renewed rumors that the Hungarians are planning to aid Poland.

Prohibition Records Of Cox and Harding Soon to Be Published

Montgomery, Ala., July 31.—Dr. P. A. Baker, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, said today that a committee of seven appointed recently from that organization, would meet August 11 in Birmingham, Ala., and publish the records of Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, and Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, candidates for president on the republican and democratic tickets respectively, on the prohibition question.

Superintendent Baker is chairman of the committee, and four of the seven members of the body are from the south.

SOCIALIST CONGRESS LACKS AN AMERICAN

Alkali Workers Strike.
Bristol, Tenn., July 31.—Several hundred men are out of work as a result of a walkout of employees of the Mathieson Alkali works of Saltville, Va., precipitated by an alleged assault by a guard of the plant on one of the workmen, according to reports here. The employees demanded the removal of the guard.

Let's Talk Turkey

The day of selling just any old thing on four wheels is gone. Let's thank Our Master that it is. Recent hardening of money has forced the purchaser to select a good car.

And that is what we want to talk about.

The Stephens Salient Six is a good car---a mighty good car. Barney Oldfield, master driver of motor cars, says as much. And he knows. Four hundred and more owners in Georgia say so. And they know. They have proven the car in day by day service.

And the Stephens Salient Six is backed by an organization which is strong---an organization with more than $19,000,000 capital and many years of building only the best. This company is the Moline Plow Company, which has never built a poor product.

In Atlanta the Stephens Salient Six is handled by us. We are here to stay. We have built our business upon solid rock foundation. It will not be swept away by winds or tempests.

So in the matter of what is back of the Stephens Salient Six, no prospective purchaser can make a mistake. And what is back of a car is the most important feature a purchaser should sanely consider. Be sure you are right on this feature and the chances are mighty slim of your being wrong on any other feature.

With this settled, the only other thing to bear in mind is "get a good car."

We have proven the Stephens Salient Six a super good car. All the owners in Georgia will testify to this. They will tell anyone that a better car is not built for $3,000 or less. It stands the gaff. And it is highly economical. It delivers the right number of miles per gallon of gas. And it will do ANYTHING any good car will do. Ask a Stephens owner.

We take care of our owners. Our service is beyond criticism. We live up to our word in every respect. And we make all owners glad they are Stephens owners. We will give you a list and let you confirm this.

If you are considering a car do not overlook a minute investigation of the Stephens Salient Six. You will be glad for many years if you do give it the closest investigation.

If you are a dealer and want a car that will sell and stay sold you are invited to investigate the Stephens Salient Six.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

THE first appeal of our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model is, quite properly, its exquisite beauty and distinctiveness. To merely look at the car is a pleasing experience.

The second appeal develops upon acquaintance with one of the most remarkable power plants in the entire field of six cylinder engineering. Thus admiration is supplemented by profound respect and both appeals merge into Pride of Ownership.

This new Paige motor is an unusual achievement. It is the result of more than three years of patient research and experiment. It is actually and literally a product of our war time experience.

Furthermore this power plant is an altogether distinctive product---conceived by our own engineers and built in our own plants by our own workmen. It represents in fullest measure all that the Paige nameplate implies.

RUSSIANS REACH GERMAN BORDER

In Drive at Poles, Soviet Forces Advance to East Prussia — Germans and Russians Fraternize.

Paris, July 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bolshevik cavalry forces have advanced to the East Prussian frontier, according to a report from the French military mission in Warsaw to the French foreign office. The bolshevik line extends from Suwalki, 50 miles northeast of Gdansk, more than 60 miles to a point almost directly north of Warsaw.

The bolsheviks have not actually crossed the borders of Allenstein and Mardenerwerder, but are fraternizing with the Germans.

The mission says its understandings the Germans and bolsheviks are negotiating at Suwalki. The northern wing of the bolshevik army now is marching directly from the north as well as from the east. Bolsheviki now are 25 miles southwest of Bialystok.

The allied troops in Allenstein and Mardenerwerder, which are mostly French, will be held there until the situation clears, although their plebiscite duties have been completed.

Gen. Romer is removed. General Romer, commander of the first Polish army which suffered most severely in the vital region northeast of Warsaw, has been relieved, and General Joseph Haller has been given supreme command of the northern group of armies.

The advancement of General Haller, who commanded the Polish divisions in France and is French trained, is the first step in the reorganization of the Polish army, which was begun by the Anglo-French mission yesterday. All the important technical services are being taken over by French officers and advisers, and large authority has been placed with all the staffs.

On the Galician front a Polish counter offensive is being organized. Three Polish armistice delegates left Warsaw yesterday. They are General Romer, Colonel Solonub, who negotiated successfully with the bolsheviks at Muremansk and M. Wroblewski, vice-minister of the council.

Finland and the Russian soviet government have resumed the Dornat conference over several disputed districts, which was broken off recently.

The mission reports the morale of the Polish army stiffened remarkably during the last week because of the mission's arrival, news of munitions en route, and the fact of allied support. The mission states that only the bolshevik cavalry is now effective, the infantry being worthless.

German Disarm Poles. The crossing of a Polish detachment into German territory, where it was disarmed, is reported by The Journal in its late edition tonight. The detachment, which crossed to escape pursuit by Russian cavalry, entered East Prussia to the west of Schneizya, the newspaper states. The arms carried by the Poles were taken from them by the German police.

The armistice negotiations between the Polish and soviet Russian forces are now actually under way, according to reports reaching here, but it is said the action thus far has been restricted to the routine preliminaries.

Meanwhile, although Moscow wireless messages, filed in plain language, apparently ordered the cessation of fighting by the soviet armies to coincide with the beginning of the armistice meeting last night, it is asserted in French quarters here that a secret code wireless order from Moscow gave instructions to the soviet commanders to keep pushing their offensive violently.

This alleged secret order is declared to have been deciphered by the French code experts at Warsaw. It is asserted that it informed the soviet commanders that the bolshevik negotiations would delay handing over the armistice terms until August 4, and that meanwhile the armistice negotiations were to be conducted in a routine manner.

TO GUARD BORDER. Berlin, July 31.—The allied troops in the plebiscite area, according to a semi-official communication, have been withdrawn from the frontier. Polish detachments which have crossed into Germany have been disarmed by the security police. In view of the increasing difficulty of the situation, the government has asked the president of the peace conference in Paris to reply to its recent note seeking permission for Germany to take necessary measures to maintain neutrality on the eastern frontier, as the forces there now are not sufficient for protection. The military authorities in the frontier region have been instructed to act as circumstances warrant.

The arrival of additional Polish troops and their stay in the eastern frontier is pointed out, might lead to undesirable consequences, and the entente therefore has been asked to place shipping at Germany's disposal in order to facilitate the transport of her troops.

The correspondent of The Berliner Neueste Nachrichten, who returned today to Lyck, nine miles north of the Russian frontier, from a tour of the territory between the frontier and Suwalki, reports that only fragmentary detachments of the Polish army were encountered north of Osovoiz.

MORE SUCCESS FOR BOLSHEVIKI.

London, July 31.—Continued success for the bolsheviks against the Poles are announced in an official statement issued Friday by the Russian soviet government at Moscow and received here today by wireless. The statement says that the bolsheviks advanced to Brest-Litovsk on Thursday.

AMERICAN RED CROSS EVACUATING WARSAW.

Washington, July 31.—With bolshevik armies menacing Warsaw, evacuation of warehouses where the bulk of the American Red Cross supplies are stored, is under way, according to cable advices today to national headquarters of the Red Cross. Warehouse and garage space has been obtained at Krakow, where the supplies are being moved.

All Red Cross workers have been sent to interior points, according to advices, which added that thousands of refugees were fleeing into the interior without food or clothing.

The Lack of a Hickory Handle.

(From The Nation's Business.) Most of us recall what happened "all for the want of a horseshoe nail." Perhaps that's the trouble with American industry, if production is as low and the outlook as bad as some prophets of evil would have us believe. There's a lack of hickory for axe handles. The lack of events is inevitable—no hickory, no handle; no handle, no axe; no axe, no lumber; no lumber, no box cars; no box cars, no transportation. Or if you prefer you can follow the missing axe handle into any other line of production.

Cyprus Back in Old Role.

(From The Manchester Guardian.) Some elders in parliament now are likely to be stirred by the revival of the Greek appeal for the restoration of Cyprus, for Cyprus was a word which lit many flames in the political controversies of the '70s. There was the premature disclosure in a London newspaper of the Cyprus convention, which stirred cabinet ministers, presumably hardened even then, to angry expostulation. There was the furious controversy in the cabinet and the house of lords over Lord Derby's really had resigned, as he said, over the projected seizure of Cyprus from the sultan. The sultan from the embarrassment of a demand, Lord Derby's colleagues being certain that he resigned first and pleaded Cyprus afterwards. It was Cyprus which, coupled with the Transvaal, drew from Gladstone some of the most fiery passages in the Midlothian campaign, and brought in return from Disraeli the famous reference to "sophisticated rhetoricians and their followers." The people who regarded Cyprus as a splendid acquisition and the people who regarded it as a worthless acquisition came to an end when the Gladstone government decided to use Cyprus as a place d'armes for Egypt, and Queen Victoria annulled the decision with a sardonic regret that "our dear Lord Beaconsfield had not lived to see this vindication of his policy."

BLOCKADE FEARED OF IRISH RAILWAYS

No Trains Will Be Operated if Lloyd-George Carries Out Threat—Disorders Continue.

Dublin, July 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—If Premier Lloyd George's threat to "dismiss every man on the Irish railway unless they carry arms, munitions, soldiers, police or anything that the government asks them to carry" is enforced, there will be no railways operating in Ireland next week, according to predictions from those best informed here.

A still worse calamity, from the Irish point of view, is that the Dublin horse show, an annual event in which every Irishman, whether Unionist or Sinn Feiner, is deeply interested, will either have to be cancelled or become a mere parody of the usual exhibition. It has already been learned that Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, will not attend the event.

An official and a civilian were killed and a soldier and a small boy were severely wounded Friday night when a military and police party were ambushed by 50 armed men near Bruree county, Limerick.

A soldier and a policeman were ambushed near Upper Church, County Tipperary, last evening, both receiving dangerous gunshot wounds. Further impetus was given to County Louths projected economic war for retaliation against Belfast yesterday when the houses of four bread servers were visited by masked and armed men who compelled them to sign an undertaking not to handle Belfast bread hereafter.

BRITISH GENERAL HEAVILY GUARDED.

Tipperary, Ireland, July 31.—Brigadier General C. H. T. Lucas who reached here Thursday night after escaping from Sinn Feiners who kidnapped him over a month ago, left today. His departure was surrounded by features in keeping with his recent escape in which was followed by a fight with raiders near Oola.

When leaving today General Lucas traveled in a touring car which was escorted by armored cars, each carrying two machine guns to guard against any possible Sinn Fein attempt to recapture the general.

The destination of General Lucas was not announced but it is reported he will go to London.

BRITAIN TO TAKE NEW MEASURES.

London, July 31.—Although the government intends to present next week a bill providing some sort of new court procedure for Ireland and possibly other changes of methods, in an attempt to control the situation, the cabinet has not yet decided definitely upon anything, it was learned today. Monday is a legal holiday in England, but the cabinet will meet that day nevertheless in an effort to reach an agreement.

What the bill will contain remains in the realm of conjecture.

It is reported that several plans will be submitted, and it appears that the question of what shall be done will not be easy of solution in view of the differences of opinion in the cabinet.

50 Per Cent Ponzi Carefully Guards Secret of His Riches

Meanwhile Federal Auditors Are Examining the Books of the Maker of Millions.

Boston, July 31.—The examination by federal auditors of the books of Charles Ponzi, maker of millions through international postage exchange, has but "scratched the surface," according to Edwin L. Pride, the auditor in charge tonight. The examination was begun 24 hours ago, and it is expected will not be completed much before the end of next week. Ponzi promised to pay customers 50 per cent profit in 45 days.

Ponzi related tonight that he had no apprehension as to the outcome of the audit. "I shall never make public my methods of doing business," he added, "at least for the present. I shall continue to maintain my secret. Some time I may tell how I did business, but it would be manifestly unfair to persons who have been associated with me to divulge the methods I've present."

In reply to a question whether he meant that he desired to protect his European associates, Ponzi said: "They are entitled to my confidence, since they were largely responsible for the success of the venture."

Mr. Pride said that most of the book, papers and cards of the company were in a "chaotic condition," but that this was to be expected with a concern "that did such a tremendous business in such a brief time."

Ponzi, himself, when leaving his office today, said he did not know how many depositors he had. But he estimated his total payments at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. Business was not so brisk today as earlier in the week, there being not more than thirty-five depositors at the office at any one time. Indications pointed to the end of the "run" which began early in the week, when it was announced that federal and state authorities were investigating the methods and the accounts of the man who agreed to pay 50 per cent on investments in ninety days, and in almost every case stood ready to pay off in full at the end of half that time.

HARDWICK ADDRESSES BLACKSHEAR MEETING

interest of his candidacy for governor. Most of his speech dealt with national issues, especially in an attempt to justify his record while in the United States senate.

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS CAR

Many Merchants find its attractive appearance an asset to their business.

"FOUR DOOR SPEEDSTER"

OUR procedure here at the Peerless factory has been inspired for more than eighteen years by the ambition to build a car that would meet every demand of speed, every requirement of hill and level, of open road and crowded city street, every need of comfort, convenience and appearance.

Our designers, our engineers and our workmen have been constant and loyal companions in the search for this ideal.

All of us together have felt that the results of our efforts must satisfy ourselves, that a car which should bear the Peerless name must have passed repeatedly the most difficult tests.

When the first Peerless Two-power-range Eight was produced five years ago, we believed success had crowned our efforts. While perfection in human affairs may be impossible, this car gave us a feeling of confidence. We experimented with it, tested it. Time and again it surprised us by its power-flexibility—its wonderful contrasts in performance, its stanchness, its economy, its endurance.

We find now that, after five years of use by thousands of owners who have no reason to be prejudiced in its favor except as use has demonstrated its qualities, this car is not less but even greater than we had at first supposed.

Someone has said that cold matter cannot transmit the things of the spirit, but we cannot help believing that the Peerless Two-power-range Eight is a living expression of a fine pride of workmanship, of a sense of devotion to personal and business ideals and of a deep respect for strong, enduring efficiency.

HARRY S. EDWARDS REPLIES TO GOREE

Progressives to Support Harding, He Says, But Not at Instigation of Negro-Led and Controlled Georgia Republican Party.

Stating that the progressive-republican party of Georgia, of which he is nominee for the United States senate, will support Harding and Coolidge in the coming presidential election, but repelling the idea that this is the result of any sympathy for or alliance with white leaders of the negro republican party of the Empire State, Harry Stillwell Edwards, of Macon, widely known political leader and author, has written a caustic reply to C. P. Goree, chairman of the republican state central committee, following receipt of the latter's request for progressive support for the Harding-Coolidge ticket.

"We, of the progressive party of Georgia," Mr. Edwards writes in his straight "from-the-shoulder" style, "are republicans in principle, but we are Georgians above that, and the white Georgian who accepts the leadership of negroes does violence to all that he should hold dear, and clouds the future of his children."

Mr. Edwards passes over his point that Mr. Goree and white republican leaders in Georgia are subject to negro command and suzerainty with little comment further than the statement that this situation exists to the knowledge of all who are acquainted with local political conditions. He also adds the significant statement that "the Georgia delegation in the late national republican convention held out against the successful candidate until his nomination was assured, fortunately relieving the next administration, if republicans, of any obligation as regards Georgia, and precludes any supposition that offices in this state will be distributed through your agency."

Goree's Letter.

According to Mr. Edwards' letter, Goree's request for progressive support of the republican ticket was made in a letter to the former on July 24, in which Goree explained that the republican state central committee had appointed a state central campaign committee, with Goree as chairman. After telling of plans for organizing republicans in the entire state, Goree's letter stated that a single republican ticket before the people of Georgia was sought, and Mr. Edwards co-operation to this end desired.

The letter continues: "In February of this year a convention was held in Atlanta to re-organize the progressive-republican party of Georgia. A platform was adopted, officers chosen and I was nominated for the United States senate. The entire state press has published the proceedings of this convention and discussed the issues raised by our campaign now in active progress."

"The platform of the progressive is unambiguously committed to Caucasian control at home and Caucasian representation abroad. This fact alone will render impossible, even though it were desirable, any participation by the progressives in the movement outlined by your letter. What you describe as the republican party of Georgia is negro-led and negro-controlled. You, as chairman, exist only by negro suzerainty. The fact, if a fact, that your campaign organization and electoral ticket is to be composed of white men does not remove the basic difficulty or deceive anybody in the state. But letters in my possession point to the conclusion that the committee you have named were appointed without their consent and that neither they nor your candidates have accepted the responsibility of appearing before the people of their own communities and the state-at-large as servants of a negro organization, which aims to control the public patronage in Georgia. If they have, then the cause of the national republican party in this state is hopeless for a generation to come."

Attorney for Negroes.

"I trust that you will not construe anything in this letter as a denial of your right to freedom of action. It, as is popularly reported, you are now, or have been when occasion presented, attorney for the negro. Follow your affiliation with their political representatives and your service in their behalf at home and in the national republican convention are to some extent explainable. But I can find no explanation for the course of those who may follow you except a desire for office and a willingness to accept it through negro influence. I do not assert that such is their motive, but it is a conclusion that will rest in the mind of every Georgian who observes the flow of political currents. The effect will be to reduce the republican vote in November to less than what it was in 1916; five thousand one hundred and ninety-six."

"Such a record, coupled with the fact that the Georgia delegation in the late national republican convention held out against the successful candidate until his nomination was assured, fortunately will relieve the next administration, if republican, of any obligation as regards Georgia, and precludes any supposition that offices in this state will be distributed through your agency."

Landa Harding. "My knowledge of the character of Warren G. Harding justifies the statement that the patronage in this state will be placed in the hands of representative citizens who, in the observance of their trust, will consult the interests of the whole people, the custom in your hero under all republican administrations since 1900."

"To doubt that Mr. Harding, if elected, will prove equal in his ideals of civilization and patriotism to Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft is possible to no reasonable mind. No man will grasp quicker than he the real significance of any attempt to exploit him to the contrary. He hopes that comfort one type of mind may be insults to another."

The progressives of this state are going to give Mr. Harding their hearty support with or without the aid of the national republican committee. They will continue to maintain that in the government of party two radically different races cannot share control. This country and its record register the genius of the Caucasian race. That the enforced labor of the negro when a slave entitles him to equal credit is not true in law or reason against his tragic African background to realize that no race in history has ever been better paid for its labor. We of the progressive party are republicans in principle but we are Georgians above that, and granting you the right to choose the negro, the white Georgian who accepts the leadership of negroes does violence to all that he should hold dear and clouds the future of his children. Very truly yours, "HARRY STILLWELL EDWARDS."

Lost From Train, Thompson Found At Texarkana

Nashville, Tenn., July 31.—John Thompson, Jr., who disappeared Thursday night from the Memphis-Nashville train, en route to his home here, was located today at Texarkana, Ark., on the Iron Mountain railroad train, according to a message telephoned a business associate.

The report reaching here was that Mr. Thompson was uninjured, but unable to account for his whereabouts. Friends here suppose that during the illness of which he complained to his friends on the train before retiring, he left the drawing room, which his party occupied, at some junction point and, in attempting to return to his berth, he got on the wrong train. The news received here was to the effect that Mr. Thompson was recognized on a west-bound Iron Mountain train by Regal, an acquaintance, who telephoned the news from Augusta, Ark. The message received here said that Mr. Thompson would be in Memphis tomorrow.

Mr. Thompson is a member of one of the most prominent families in middle Tennessee, and his wife is a niece of Admiral W. B. Caperton, U. S. N., retired.

Texarkana, Ark., July 31.—Efforts to locate John Thompson, Jr., of Nashville, reported to have been found aboard an Iron Mountain train here after his disappearance from a train bound from Memphis to Nashville, Thursday night, were without result early this afternoon. Both the police and railroad officials declare they have no information concerning the search for Thompson or his subsequent location here.

If common sense has not the brilliancy of the sun, it has the fixity of the stars.—Cabelon.

ATTEMPT TO ROB CHARGED TO MEN AT CAMP JESSUP

Private Raymond Corey, of Camp Jessup, is under arrest charged with an attempt to burglarize the store of C. A. Foote, on Warner avenue, Saturday night, and detectives and military police are seeking the identity and apprehension of five or six other soldiers, said to have been companions of Corey in effecting a successful entrance to the building.

Detectives Armstrong and West and Lieutenant Wilson of the military police, called to the scene, found Corey in the store. One other soldier standing near the building, ran at their approach.

Residents in the neighborhood, attracted by the noise of the intruders breaking their way into the store, notified the police department. They declared that five or six men, all soldiers, were in the group attempting to gain entrance.

When brought to police station, Corey gave his name, but refused further information. He will be turned over to the military authorities at Camp Jessup.

Suffrage Challenge To Cox and Harding From Christensen

New York, July 31.—Parley P. Christensen, presidential nominee of the third, or farmer-labor party, today issued a personal challenge to Governor Cox and Senator Harding to visit the Tennessee legislature and influence a majority vote in that body in favor of ratification of the suffrage amendment.

Mr. Christensen charged that the democratic and republican parties are in a conspiracy to stifle ratification by Tennessee, the remaining state whose approval is necessary to make the amendment effective. Mr. Christensen is conferring here with third party leaders on national campaign plans.

Southern Motors Builds Its Product and Sells Them Under the Trade Name "Ranger"

Bear in mind the "Shield and Wings" trademark and the "Ranger" trade-name. They are distinct marks of automotive quality. Progressive distributors and dealers can secure good territory if qualified to meet our requirements. We can also use some experienced high-class factory salesmen. Address Southern Motor Manufacturing Association, Ltd., Sales Department, Houston, Texas.

YOU have been told of the important part played by the associate Trustees in the organization of Southern Motor Manufacturing Association, Ltd.. Actively serving as associate Trustees are bank presidents, cashiers, merchants, farmers, professional men and men holding high official and administrative positions in their various towns and cities. Through this organization Southern Motors has the benefit of advice and active service from men of integrity, demonstrable business ability and personal standing and they have added greatly to the progress and stability of Southern Motors throughout the entire South.

The rapid growth of Southern Motors, the wide distribution of its products and its general prestige throughout the South have not been overlooked by some businesses in the same line.

The name "Southern," which so prominently identifies this organization, has been used in the names of other automobile concerns—some young companies endeavoring to get a start—others, distributors of various kinds of automotive products, and still others, retail concerns within the territory in which Southern Motors is a strong factor.

Other concerns have used the name "Ranger" to the extent of probably confusing the public in regard to any connection such concerns might have with Southern Motors or the sale of its standard products.

It should be thoroughly understood by the public—those interested in us and those interested in such concerns as have imitated our name—that Southern Motor Manufacturing Association, Ltd., at this time, has all of its plants located at Houston, and that no other concerns, either manufacturing, assembling, distributing or retail have any direct connection with this institution. It is true that a few or our dealers are using the words "Ranger" and "Southern" in their firm names, but there are other automobile dealers using the names who are not our representatives in any sense of the word.

Southern Motors Manufacturing Association, Ltd., are building and selling automobiles, trucks, tractors, trailers and bodies under the trade names "Ranger" and "Southern."

In justice to ourselves and in order that we may justly enjoy the trade benefits earned by our endeavor, this matter is set plainly before our people.

The various phases of Southern Motor Manufacturing Association, Ltd., Houston, Texas, are being set forth in a series of articles, another of which will appear in this paper next Sunday.

SPECIAL NOTICE

TO

Automobile Repair Shop

We have the best mechanical equipment obtainable for GRINDING cylinders and crank-shafts. THESE MACHINES ARE MADE ESPECIALLY FOR THIS PURPOSE, AND USED BY THE BEST AUTOMOBILE MANUFACTURERS. We do not RE-BORE cylinders. We GRIND them, which is a much better process, because it gives a smoother and more even surface. We have just finished installing this machinery and are now ready for business.

We are also equipped to do general machine shop work such as cutting gears, making pistons, piston pins, etc.

We carry a complete line of standard and oversize piston rings in stock.

If you do not live in ATLANTA, write us for further information. All enquiries will be given prompt attention.

AS USUAL "OFFICIAL"

WE ARE ever occasionally acquiring new Service Stations. At this time in addition to the above, we do general repairs on all kinds of cars. Would be glad to furnish you a list of them at any time upon request. We do not hesitate to state that we render official service on starters, generators, magnetos, carburetors, ignitors, horns, etc.

In addition to the above, we do general repairs on all kinds of cars. Also have large storage space convenient to heart of city—within two blocks of Terminal Station.

8 Rooms, Furnace Heat, Tile Bath.

Spacious rooms, house well built, excellent condition, corner lot, east front. Owner makes bargain price of $13,500 for immediate sale. Terms can be arranged.

Colonial Home of the Late F. M. Coker, Sr., 86 Washington Street. 10 Rooms, Lot 130x250.

Going to sell this fine property at a bargain price. It was a masterpiece of the builders' profession in its day. The picturesque two-story columns, the immense rooms, the high ceilings and the spaciousness of this great house reminds you of the years gone by. Less than a block from the state capital. It would cost $50,000 to build the house. I offer this splendid property for $25,000 and on very easy terms. That price ought to attract you. Great location for a physician's clinic and hospital.

2-Story Stone House, 6 Bedrooms. $2,500 Cash and $75 Month.

This splendid proposition ought to be taken up immediately. Now think of buying a home of this kind on such easy terms. Why the rent would more than pay for it. You will be away ahead of the game. It's No. 46 Kenneway, near Ponce de Leon avenue. House is in perfect condition. Price only $10,000.

Gem of a Brick Bungalow in Adkins Park. Corner Lot, 80 Feet Wide.

It's cream brick, in cream section and the cream of that cream section. There are 3 bedrooms, hardwood floors, steam heat, tiled verandas, tiled bath, garage, side drive. Brand new, and you may have immediate possession. Price $15,000, and you can have terms. Oh, it's a beauty.

6-Room Cottage Near Piedmont Park for $6,350.

If you want a modest home at a price that reaches about the limit of your pocketbook and can pay $1,500 cash just say so and I'll have this home transferred to you. It costs only $1,500 to build the house alone and the lot is 75 feet wide. You pay $50 per month and it's yours. It's No. 47 East Twelfth street.

North Side Brick Bungalow, $2,000 Cash and $75 Month.

This charming home is new, has hardwood floors, furnace heat, side drive, garage. Is well built and in perfect condition. Price $2,500, but just look at the terms. Don't that interest you?

West Peachtree Between 15th and 16th, 4 Bedrooms, Sleeping Porch.

This is one of those choice homes in that choice section of West Peachtree. Hardwood floors, furnace heat. The house contains 2 stories, well built and in prime condition. Servant's room, side drive, garage. Price $15,500. Terms.

$1,000 Cash and $100 Month Buys This North Side Bungalow.

When I say $8,750 is the price, this and the terms ought to satisfy you. Am trying to find a home for you at your price and on your terms. This home is new and you may have immediate possession. Just buy it and I'll do the rest.

No. 60 East Cain Street, 65x170, Near Ivy Street.

Here is one of the best propositions in that entire section. The big lot and proximity to Peachtree make it available for certain business purposes. Try your level best to find anything around there at the price and see where you land. This offering this property at the bargain price of $17,500. Terms can be made all right.

North Side Brick Bungalow, Modern, New, Well Built.

There are 2 nice bedrooms and enclosed sleeping porch, hardwood floor, tile bath, living room across the front, lot 135 feet deep. It's No. 68 East Twelfth, close to Piedmont park. Owner will sell on terms.

North Side Artistic Brick House, 2 Stories, 4 Bedrooms, Steam Heat.

It's the fitness of things that attracts home buyers. The owner of this beautiful home wants to leave Atlanta next Saturday. Am, therefore, ordered to make immediate sale. You can get the benefit. The house was built two years ago for a private home, of the best material and workmanship. It's in perfect condition. One bedroom on first floor and three upstairs. Luxurious tiled bath, hardwood floors, garage, side drive. Gem of a home. Price reduced to $16,000. Terms can be secured. Please hurry, and don't delay. Call me or the residence, Ivy 1404-W.

North Side Brick Bungalow With 4 Bedrooms, New, Prompt Possession.

This is an unusual home. The 4 bedrooms make it attractive, as it gives you plenty of space. Furnace heat, hardwood floors, concrete basement floor. Brand new. The owner will accept cash payment of $5,500 and $75 month. Price $13,500. You should see this home.

ADAIR OFFERS A LIST OF HOMES FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION

Realizing the difficulties that usually attend house hunting, we have prepared a list of homes, all of which we have inspected personally and believe to be well worth the price asked. Some are new, others have been recently built within a week or ten days and still others that will be vacant on September 1. Should you wish to look at these homes without being accompanied by an agent, we will gladly take you and additional information over the telephone as you may need. The best plan, however, is to make an appointment with our sales department for a trip of inspection.

THESE PLACES ARE NOW VACANT:

PEACHTREE CIRCLE—Near Peachtree street, an 8-room, 2-story frame dwelling that has been put in excellent condition. The owner purchased it recently and had all necessary repairs made, after which he renewed the lease on his apartment and asked us to sell this home. Price $22,000.

ATKINS PARK—On St. Louis Place the firm of Adair & Senter have about completed an 8-room, wide weatherboarded bungalow. The materials that have gone into this home are as good as can be purchased. The workmanship is of the best; the arrangement is most convenient and the large closets in each bedroom are an added attraction. Should you wish, you can select the wall paper and any small change that you may desire can be made at the present time, as the house is just about completed. Price $15,000.

ANGIER PLACE—It is not now that you can buy a 6-room, brick veneer bungalow for less than $10,000. However we are offering one at No. 6 Angier Place. An attractive feature is that it can be purchased on terms of $1,000 cash and the balance at the rate of $75 per month. Price $9,500.

DECATUR, GA.—At No. 195 College Place we are offering a 6-room, furnace-heated brick bungalow. It has a nice large lot, being 50x215, and can be bought on terms of $1,500 cash and $75 per month. Price $9,500.

KENNESAW AVENUE—Just south of Ponce de Leon avenue, a new 6-room brick bungalow; has all conveniences and is modern in every respect. There is a lot of satisfaction in moving into a new house, and this one is ready for immediate occupancy. Price $10,500.

32 WEST TENTH ST.—Just west of Spring street

Sam Riddle Doesn't Harbor Superstition About Prices

Pittsburg, Pa., July 31.—Samuel Riddle, of Glen Riddle, Pa., owner of Man O' War, the fastest running horse the American turf has ever known, is the one owner who does not believe it an ill omen to refuse a fabulous price for a horse. Mr. Riddle not only refused to name a price for the sensational three-year-old colt, but he also refused to take a blank check and fill it in whatever amount he wanted for the great runner. Many horsemen believe that to refuse such offers means that the owner will live to see the day he will regret such action. But Riddle doesn't believe in omens.

Despite the fact that Riddle does not believe in omens, he has taken extra precaution to see that nothing happens to the famous son of Fair Play. Not only has he placed the colt on a schedule as to feeding, sleeping and exercise, but he has also arranged to have the horse's stall carefully guarded at all times, so that any attempt to poison or otherwise harm the horse is almost certain to meet with bad luck. Man O' War's caretaker sleeps in a stall adjoining that of the horse, while "Barry," a knowing Alfrede terrier, shares the same stall with the champion, as do two attaches of the Riddle stable. Bunks are constructed above the head of the horse, and in these two guards sleep with well loaded firearms at their elbow, ready for action.

Mr. Riddle, a man of great wealth, refuses to sell Man O' War because he says he wants all Americans to share in the colt's mighty triumphs. He thinks if he sold the horse some English breeders would eventually buy him and ship him to England, while Mr. Riddle plans to keep him in this country and later, when his racing days are over, send him to the breeding farm so that his blood may be preserved in the thoroughbred lines of American horses.

That Man O' War might have the most nourishing food obtainable and in the exact proportions and at the proper time each day, several leading veterinarians were consulted and a schedule made out and this is religiously followed every day. Man O' War receives his breakfast each day at 3:30 a. m. and soon thereafter his day's activity begins with light jogging and walking. His bed must be of rye straw and at least 18 inches in depth. The great runner seems to be getting on famously for he is looking well and his string of victories prove that he is feeling well. He is perhaps the most valuable horse in this country, if not in the world.

Georges and Jack Apparently Not So Anxious to Battle

BY AL SPINK.

Chicago, Ill., July 31.—It is taking Dempsey and Carpenter a long time to arrange for a fight for the championship.

Known as the champion stallers of the heavyweight division.

At the recent meeting of the representatives of the two leading heavyweights in New York nothing was done and neither side appeared anxious to agree on a date.

Carpenter, who had already bought his ticket for France and who had arranged to stay abroad until October when he returns to this country to meet Battling Levinsky, wanted Dempsey to cross to the other side for a battle.

Dempsey's manager said that under no circumstances would his man fight anywhere but in America. Now, therefore, as Carpenter insists on fighting over there and Dempsey refuses to cross the pond, it looks as though both were "spoofing" or, in other words, as if they were afraid of each other.

The action of Dempsey and Carpenter in delaying operations and stalling around to get the easy money is in strange contrast to the way the great fighters did in the long ago.

It is over a year now since Dempsey has had an actual encounter in the ring.

In the same time, Carpenter has had one bout, that with Joe Beckett in England, which lasted a round.

It takes a year for a fight to be arranged nowadays. You've got to have a fortune to fight for and so many months to train. It wasn't so in the olden days, when they would fight at the drop of a hat and the devil take the money.

In the olden days of the prize ring over in England and in this country, up to the time John L. won the championship, the heavyweights fought early and often and it took no time for them to arrange a fight.

Take one of the very first fights ever fought under the old London prize ring rules in England, that between Jim Belcher and Joe Berks, was pulled off at a moment's notice and for no purpose whatever. The two came together at another fight and decided that they might as well try each other out then and there. The battle lasted 19 minutes, with Belcher having the better of it. In the second, and regular battle, Belcher won in fourteen rounds.

When Pearce, the "Game Chickens," came up to London to fight for the championship left vacant by Belcher, this same Joe Berks again pushed himself forward, without standing on ceremony, to dinner was given for Pearce at the Five Courts, and after he had gone home Berks began to boast that he would whip the "Game Chickens" on a minute's notice.

Word was sent to Pearce, who got up and dressed at once. A well-lighted room was selected and notice was sent around London by special messenger that soon brought a select crowd. The fight commenced at midnight and was over in twenty minutes.

Pearce was the master in every round, and in the fifteenth gave Berks two such terrible blows that he could not come to the scratch again.

They were a gay lot, those old boys. They were always giving dinners and suppers to each other or else some lord acted the host. Most of the matches were made at these affairs, and most of them ended in a slashing mill for the entertainment of the guests.

Can anyone imagine a dinner attended by Dempsey, Corbett, Fulton, Jeffries, Brennan, Ritchie, Mike and Tom Gibbons, Leonard, Moore, Kilbane, Coffey—in fact, every fighter of any name in the country today?

And after the dinner two of the guests getting up and having a regular battle just to show that they were good fellows? But that is what happened most times once in the early days of the prize ring.

A battle fought quickly and on the spot. It was in the days when Dan Donnelly was champion of Ireland and when Tom Oliver was England's best.

While paying a visit to England, Donnelly was challenged by Oliver, and friends of the latter, with a view to arranging the match, gave a royal dinner to the Irish champion. At this dinner Donnelly sat next to Cooper, who was a black boy named "Masda Kendrick," who sent word that he would like to have a mill with any of the fighters present.

"Bring him up!" roared Oliver. "Now, boys, who'll it be?" All of them wanted to have the pleasure, but George Cooper was finally picked on. The noble lords pitched in and raised $500, $100 to go to the loser.

Cooper was the smaller of the two, the black boy standing five ft. 11 in. and weighing 232 pounds. The fight went on for sixty-nine rounds, lasting an hour and five minutes and was a desperate affair. At the start the black boy led, but in the last nine rounds Cooper had the best of it and won out in the end.

At another spread given at Randall's a match was proposed between Jack Scroggins and Harry Holt for middleweight honors.

Holt was agreeable, the table was set and a purse of $50 collected. "It was a furious battle, but in the twenty-fourth round Holt's head hit the table and he fell. Scroggins won in the thirty-third and at that time he was split his win with Harry.

All this sounds mighty rough and tumble, and yet you can't read about it without seeing that the fights in the olden days were all pulled off in good humor and sportsmanship, and that there was not the jockeying around for position and soft snots such as there is today.

had an expensive week at Toledo. He started twelve horses and won with the trotters Red Russell and Charley Rex. Of the others Symbol S. Forest, Ethel Chimes, Foxy Ann, Jane Volo and John Henry stood second in the summaries, the last named being defeated by Nat Ray in 2:02 3/4.

Geers Land First 1920 Race. The Canadian trotter Vic Fleming picked up two firsts with Louie Gratian in 2:02 3/4 and Princess Mary Todd in 2:04 3/4, and a second with Lou Todd. Geers also landed his first race in 1920 when he defeated Baron Cegante and Mignola with Don de Lopez in 2:08 3/4.

The other winners during the week were Egan with Royal Earl, Paulin with Caligary Earl in 2:02 3/4, Henry Thomas with Norman Dillon in 2:03 3/4, equalling the four-year-old record for trotting colts, which he no holds jointly with Ramco and Echo Direct, and Ed Allen with Single G. in the free-for-all in 2:02 3/4.

At the first two Grand Circuit meetings Murphy leads with seven winners to his credit. Valentine, Edman and McDonald are tied in second place, each of them having five. Fred Egan is next in line with three, while Ed Allen landed two with Single G. and Ray two with Juno.

Past Course at Springfield, Mass. The time made by the winners over the resurfaced half-mile track at Springfield, Mass., last week shows that it required a horse of Grand Circuit caliber to win in the Bay State Circuit. On the 28th of July Margaret Dillon won the 2:12 pace in 2:06. Crozier forcing her out with Almaden Onward, the finish being so close that many of the spectators were of the opinion that the gelding won it. The two-year-old trot was spun out for four heats. The Etawah filly Gaudette won the first in 2:17, the second in 2:18, and Scamp Spratt the second in 2:18. And Belvue by General Watts the next two in 2:17 1/2. Pitman had the mount behind the winner, while he also won the three-year-old event with the Peter Volo colt Sunfish in 2:13 3/4.

Edward F. atoned for his defeat at Windsor by landing the 2:08 pace in 2:06 3/4, while the little gamecock Harry J. S. made two stints around the course. In 2:08 3/4, when he defeated Peter Hopeful and Alledwood the Great. The free-for-all pace was the battle royal of the meeting, Directum J. winning it in 2:08, 2:04 3/4, 2:04 3/4, from Adlo Guv and Direct G. Burnett. Each of these two now has a victory to his credit. Burnett winning at Avon and Adlo Guv at Windsor. The time made by Directum J. also goes on record as the three fastest heats over a New England half-mile track and within a quarter of a second of the 2:04 3/4 mile which Joe Patchen naved over Combination Park at Medford in 1896.

Screen Scapple. (From Film Fun.) Perhaps there are some of you gentle readers who would like to become press agents. There is every reason why you should want to join this golden band. A press agent is the last word in importance and any editor will tell you that he's the last word in any film.

McDonald aired a clever pair at Toledo when he won the three-year-old pace with Rifle Grenade in 2:04 3/4, a new world's record, and Kilar Watts in 2:05 1/4. Murphy forced him out with Alta O'Donovan and Stokes with Golden Spier made him come back in 2:05 1/4 to win the followers of Murphy's mounts cession. His position is just a little higher than the star's and his high station entitles him to sit everywhere (unless he happens to send his card in first by mistake). He may, if he likes, because of his significant position, wear a racy cap on Broadway and spats on the boardwalk. He is first in line for the star's cast-off clothes and all those bottles of shampoo lotions and facial cream which the star recommends you to use, but never uses himself. He can brag that "Doug" owes his success to him, and that Mary Pickford would give up curls if he advised. He is the first to know all those intimate and important things about the stars, such as that one has a new poodle and that another is preferring green hats to pink, and he is always the first to discover that Bill Hart has been hurt or that Theda Bara has lost her diamonds.

It is very simple to become a press agent, in fact, the simpler you are, the easier you can become one. Simple Simon was the first press agent and was most successful in creating interest in the Pilsen's pastry. The only thing necessary for a press agent to know is a lot of words. They must be big words, and they must smack of grandiloquence. They must be full and meaty and impressive and elegant. It is best to use words of which no one knows the meaning. This insures your success. There are a few words that are indispensable, but for the most part vastitude only is important. Encomiastic, interpretation, magnificent, versatile, entomias, delineate, unanimously and pinnacle are a few words that have been found very successful and which a press agent can scarcely do without. It is best to use every big word you know in every article you write. That wins for you a reputation for fluency and style. It makes little difference about the meaning of the words or how they are grouped. Save them up when you hear them and stick them raskily about through your stories. Just take a handful of them string them along with the star's name, appearing in every other line, and you will find that you have become a press agent. After which it is advisable for you to carry a gun.

Goldfish, an Interstate Problem.

(From the Nation's Business.) Goldfish have run amok of the new express rates. Quantities of them originate in ponds along the eastern edge of the mountains in Maryland, and find their way over a good part of the country, via express.

Not being like Topsy the goldfish of commerce do not simply grow; for their development they require managerial ability. The managerial ability asserts that an increase of $2.50 a thousand goldfish in express rates will close most of the country's markets and that the goldfish which can find their way to the humblest homes, and accordingly a delegation of managers has placed the predicament of the goldfish industry before the interstate commerce commission.

The Finest Collection of the Finest Furs

That we've ever assembled for any one event will be found in this year's

Annual August Fur Sale

Strikes naturally result in a curtailing of production—therefore scarcity of the articles involved—therefore higher prices. There is no reason why a fur strike should be unlike other strikes in this respect. There is but one conclusion—you'll pay more for furs later than they'll cost you now. The savings below are computed on the basis of a comparison of prices prevailing now and those that will obtain when the real Fall season begins. Study them carefully! Remember, too, that they apply to furs bought before the days of the strike—when experienced workmen were selecting and matching pelts, and making garments with the expert skill that is absolutely essential to all high-class furs.

First to be mentioned is a stylish Pony Coat that will cost $350.00 to duplicate later, to be had now at the special price of—

The price mentioned here—$295.00—applies to a coat of natural muskrat. This is a real $375.00 value—priced for this sale at—

$295.00

A sealine coat—30-inch model—that has a natural squirrel collar—this is under the new scale, a $425.00 value—

$310.00

Here's a beautiful nutria coat—one that you'll pay $450.00 for after this sale—to be had now at the special price of—

$350.00

Hudson seal coat—30-inch model—with elaborate beaver shawl collar. Very handsome. An excellent $950 value at—

$725.00

Of rarest beauty is this 40-inch Hudson seal coat—shawl collar and flaring cuffs of natural beaver. Will be $1,100.00 later. Now—

New Georgette Waists

Values up to $25

$9.50

OPERA WAISTS are known for the genuineness of their styling and workmanship—just those features that you want in waists you buy for best wear. A very fortunate purchase enables us to offer a large assortment of these waists at very much less than their real value—an opportunity that you have quite rarely.

A group of exceedingly beautiful Baum Marten neckpieces—$165.00 values—are really wonderful pieces at—

Numbers of Gray Squirrel chokers—kinds that will sell easily for $45.00, are in this sale at the special price of—

Fox pieces will be just as popular as ever. Here are some $65.00 kinds at $49.50; another group of $100 kinds at—

$79.50

A 30-inch plain sealine coat, on which you save the difference between the new price—$300.00—and the present price—

$235.00

Neckpieces of the various wanted kinds are also to be had at savings. For instance, Stone Marten—$85.00 pieces at—

$65.00

Another group of Stone Marten and Baum Marten neckpieces that are $100 values may be selected from at—

Pre-Shrunk White Wash Skirts

$3.75

Values up to $10

WHEN you learn that a great many of these skirts are of Woolltex make, you'll appreciate the quality that they represent. Made for the most part of gabardine—pre-shrunk—and that means a great deal, as you already know. A large number of styles to be selected from at tomorrow's clearance price—$3.75.

Clearance Priced

Choice From the Lot Tomorrow at $10.95

WE don't need to tell you, of course, that these dresses are priced at a bare fraction of their former prices. From our standpoint the time has come to clear them, and the price has been fixed accordingly. From your angle it means a big opportunity, because much more than enough wearing time is left now to justify the little outlay. Satins, taffetas, crepe de chine, tricolettes and combinations are in the lot.

August Fur Sale

Emphasizing the advantage of buying furs now

Our sale prices are 25% to 40% less than present market prices

IN the matter of furs, more so than in most things, what one buys is governed by where one buys. To buy furs at Frohsin's means an assurance of superior quality, correct style and moderate price.

Our stock comprises a wonderful collection of beautiful garments fashioned by expert furriers from perfectly matched pelts.

We quote extremely low prices in our August Fur Sale because, several months ago, we bought for cash thousands of dollars' worth of fine furs that manufacturers were anxious to turn into money.

WE CANNOT DUPLICATE THESE SALE PRICES
AGAIN THIS YEAR—See the Furs—we urge comparison!

Society

For Miss Ferris.

Miss Fattie Ferris, of San Diego, Cal., was the guest last week of Mrs. Lucien Harris, Jr., at her home on Lee street, in West End. On Monday evening Mrs. Harris entertained informally for her guest. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. H. H. Turner gave a swimming party, followed by tea, at the East Lake Country club. Tuesday evening there was a theater party given for Miss Ferris at the Lyric theater by a group of young people.

On Wednesday Mrs. Harris entertained at a spend-the-day party, inviting to meet her guest Miss Ardisia Near. Miss Harriet Noyes, Miss Mary Jane McGinnis, Miss Mable Wike, Miss Aline Harris, and Mrs. J. B. Montgomery, of Alabama.

Miss Harriet Noyes gave a matinee party Thursday afternoon, and Miss Mary Jane McGinnis was hostess at a tea, after the matinee, at the East Lake Country club, complimenting Miss Ferris.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Harris gave a bowling party in honor of this popular visitor, the guests including Miss Catherine Bickers, Miss Mary Nichols, Mr. Lynn Fort, Mr. Stewart Harris, Donald Cameron, Mr. Louis Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris III.

Argentine Club Elects Officers.

The Argentine club announces the election and installation of the following new officers and board of directors to serve for the period of the next six months: Jesse D. Booth, president; E. H. ("Fat") Elrod, vice president; Jack Therrell, secretary; Cecil B. Hall, treasurer; directors, Calhoun Boyd, George M. Couch, Leonard N. Tutwiler, Dick Arnold, C. P. Carroll, J. V. Moore, B. Whitehead and Frank Godwin.

At the first meeting of the new board of directors, which was held Monday night at the Gould Building club rooms, it was decided to remove the restrictions heretofore enforced relative to the admission of candidates into the club who are under the age of 21. It was further decided that, as the Argentine membership has practically reached the maximum number of 15, to remove this restriction also, making the membership unlimited.

The first Argentine dance under the new management will be given at Seguido's hall, on Pine street. A good "peppy" musical program has been arranged, and a large crowd is expected to be present.

BY LOUISE DOOLY.

Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N. C., July 31.—(Special.)—A momentous step in the evolution of society was taken last Saturday night here in Asheville. And this time society is meant to be spelled with a capital letter, and to be limited in its application to that gay world, of which the daily doings are chronicled in the same columns of the newspapers in which these present lines are destined to appear.

The momentous step was nothing less than the printed announcement on the dinner cards at Grove Park Inn that at the usual dance, which follows Saturday dinner, no "breaks" would be permitted.

The younger set assembled on the terrace after dinner, and in spite of perfect moonlight silencing the semi-circle of mountains as far as eye could reach, and bathing in a glamour that is almost "stagey," the terrace gardens—leading down to the tennis courts, and then farther still to the Country Club golf links, spread out beyond like the inn's "front yard." It looked for a while as if there would be mischief.

The younger set pouted; at least, the girls did, and the beaux were wroth over the infringement of personal liberty. "Breaks" were the word, and the girls, who had been so well behaved themselves, they had left it to the "other fellows" to provide them with partners.

Then, after the clouds of discontent, that presaged a storm, things adjusted themselves just as easily as other great difficulties are often overcome.

No Encores.
The inevitable was accepted, as it had to be. Instead of "encores," the dances were made shorter and more numerous. The belles and just as good a time.

"No, George, you can't be the seventh. They are all up to the ninth."

"I'm so sorry, Tom, but I have the next wait engaged and this one after that."

It sounded like a story book of the eighties or early nineties. Of course, the stage hands bustled about, but doubtless at the next dance they will take the precaution to escort their own partners.

Dancing is only an incident, however, as a part of the summer-time diversion up here in the mountains, although a lively incident, with weekly dinner-dances at the inn, the Manor and Battery Park; with semi-weekly tea-dances at the Country Club, and with Arthur Murray's of Atlanta and New York, confining themselves here at the Asheville "Club de Vingt," and demonstrating Outdoor Life.

With much more keenness, the summer visitors are taking to the outdoor life of golf, mooring, walking and sight-seeing.

Asheville is not satisfied with sitting still and telling visitors look at the mountains and the valleys, satisfying as they are, but the city is providing one reason after another why people should come here and not go elsewhere for their vacation.

Leading in unique interest is the camp of the United States training corps for women, situated on Locust knob, a wonderful site adjoining Grove Park Inn. Its use given the corps by Mr. Seely, and all Asheville and most of North Carolina, contributing enthusiasm and more substantial aid to its success. So full of interest is this new institution, which includes in its first personnel number of Atlanta, that it deserves a whole story to itself, which will be reserved for next week.

Asheville is just closing its annual summer school, which brought some of the best educators and lecturers in the country. Then the whole town welcomed during the week the annual encampment at Blount of the North Carolina boys and girls' coming club.

The Indians.
Even the Indians up here are progressive, those on the Cherokee reservation being busy already with an Indian fair they will hold in October, the state department of agriculture co-operating with them.

Music Festival.
A great music festival is planned by the city of Asheville for the middle of August, the height of the tourist season, and a part of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, with noted concert singers and musicians, will take part. A local chorus is busy rehearsing for the festival, Asheville in her gala week of music being this proud of it. In that it actually partici-nates in the concerts, and develops and enjoys by doing, instead of by mere listening.

One of the leading artists of the festival, Miss Sue Harvard, soprano, who has been engaged as one of the principals for the coming season by the Metropolitan Opera company, is a lovely guest for the summer at the Grove Park Inn, where she is resting and studying. She has also been engaged to participate in the next Sunday night concert at the inn, the program to include a recital on the new organ just completed here and called the masterpiece of one of the world's greatest organ builders.

It is of orchestral quality, and is in six parts or organs, built at "strategic" positions in the great lobby of mountain rock in the rough, often called a "hall fit for no man's land."

A Decorative Artist.
Another young woman, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Seely, at the inn and at their beautiful home, "The Castle," on Sunset mountain, who has made a distinctive place for herself in artistic direction, is Mrs. Edith Sloane Farley, of New York.

John Wanamaker, formerly with business for herself, and came to Asheville to consult with Mr. and Mrs. Seely concerning details of the decoration of their own home, as well as the inn.

The Golfers.
Golf brings its throngs of enthusiasts to Asheville, notable among whom the past week was Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Gennett, who have a beautiful home in Grove Park, and their guest, Mrs. F. W. McCreren, of Atlanta; Mrs. Ewing Dean, who, with her baby, is at the Manor; Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Massey, of Macon, who have a house in Asheville for the summer; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Giddard, of Atlanta, who are at the Manor.

Miss Henrietta Davis, Miss Mary Murphy, Mrs. E. D. DuBose Chamberlin and Mrs. Ben H. Hill, of Atlanta, who are members of the U. S. training corps for women, will remain for the second camp, which began Friday. Elizabeth Broach, of Macon, is also here.

Among the Atlantans at the inn the past week who enjoyed the links were Messrs. Ernest Woodruff, Chas. T. Nunnally, Robert Woodruff, Wm. A. Smith, Thos. H. Daniel, Benj. Lumpkin, and Fred Patterson. From the Manor were Mr. E. M. Williams and Mr. J. N. Giddard.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodruff and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodruff, with Mrs. Robert Woodruff's mother, Mrs. Hodgson, of Athens, have returned home.

Atlanta People.
Mrs. Ernest Woodruff will return to the inn in August to join her sister, Mrs. George Calhoun Walters, who is spending some time here. Other Atlantans at the inn are Mr. and Mrs. Marion Camp and their son, Marion; Mrs. Wm. A. Smith and Mrs. Keenan; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Latham.

Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Daniel spent a short time at the inn during the week. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel came to visit their son at the Asheville Boys' school.

At Dinners.
Well known people in dinner parties at the inn during the week were Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Gennett, who have a beautiful home in Grove Park, and their guest, Mrs. F. W. McCreren, of Atlanta; Mrs. Ewing Dean, who, with her baby, is at the Manor; Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Massey, of Macon, who have a house in Asheville for the summer; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Giddard, of Atlanta, who are at the Manor.

Miss Henrietta Davis, Miss Mary Murphy, Mrs. E. D. DuBose Chamberlin and Mrs. Ben H. Hill, of Atlanta, who are members of the U. S. training corps for women, will remain for the second camp, which began Friday. Elizabeth Broach, of Macon, is also here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodruff and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woodruff, with Mrs. Robert Woodruff's mother, Mrs. Hodgson, of Athens, have returned home.

What Smart Women Are Wearing.
Though there are many charming summer toilettes to be seen at the various social functions of the week, there are more silk and georgette crepe gowns, than any other kind, not that the women do not prefer the airy fairy gowns, but they can not find any one to make them. The women of the South formerly were famous for their pretty summer gowns, those of organdy and mull and dimitie and muslin, but now unless a woman has a private fortune she can not wear them, because it costs a fortune to have them made. The regular modiste charges for her time, and the price for the so-called dainty muslin, which must be pressed each time it is worn, is just exactly the price for the making of the silk or satin or crepe gown, which is less perishable.

The matter of the "dressing" now is quite as expensive as the making, therefore a woman has to think seriously before she satisfies her taste and her fancy in the former style of gown she wore in the summer.

Among the Atlanta women who still follow the summer fashion in dainty and airy gowns are, Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mrs. William H. Kiser, Mrs. Marion Harper, Mrs. Howard Conway, Miss Marion Starnes, Miss Julia Murphy, Miss Nellie Dodd, Mrs. George McCarty, Jr. and Mrs. Henry B. Tompkins.

Dinner-Dance Last Evening.
An unusually large number of guests were present last evening to enjoy the informal terrace dinner-dance at Piedmont Driving club. Mr. and Mrs. John Blyler entertained Mr. and Mrs. Philo McDuff and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Dodd. Miss Emily Robinson was hostess at a dinner party in honor of her guests, Miss Mary Faith Yow, of Lenoira, and Miss Julia Brantley, of Blackshear. Completing the party will be Mr. Saunders Jones, Mr. Robert Maddox, Mr. Curry Moon, and Lieutenant Wickham.

Col. and Mrs. Jack Hayes were the central figures in the party given by Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn. The guests included Colonel and Mrs. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cramley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. King and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harmon, Jr.

A congenial party dining at the Driving club included Mr. and Mrs. Veasy Rainwater, Miss Carolyn Shivers, Simpson Dean, Norris Broyles, Hugh Richardson and Hugh Richardson, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Ragan, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding, Dr. and Mrs. Floyd McKee, Jr., Mr. James Alexander and Dr. Willis Ragan were together at dinner.

Mr. Willingham Pitt entertained in honor of Miss Pauline Maben, of Birmingham, the guest of Miss Blanch Divine. Covers were laid for Miss Maben, Miss Divine, Miss Charlotte Meador, Miss Nellie Dodd, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Hallie Crawford, Miss Louise Harwell, Miss Mary Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. McCarty, Mr. Ralph Ragan, Mr. Thomas Lyon, Mr. Ewing Dean, Mr. Henry Lyons, Mr. Ben Daniel, Mr. Homer Thompson, Mr. Bowles Martin, Mr. R. V. Harris, Mr. Lehman Phelan, Mr. Ben Lumpkin, Mr. Clark Howell and Mr. Pitt.

Miss Sarah Shuptrine, Miss Sara Hull, Miss Ellen Schmitt and Miss Katherine Dunn, of Savannah, were the visiting belles in the party given in their honor by Mr. John Blyler, Mr. and Mrs. John Blyler, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Nevin, Mr. Edward K. Van Winkle, Mr. Harry Stearns, Jr., Mr. Lawson Kiser, Mr. Henry Walker Bagley, Mr. George Wayman, Mr. Forney Wylie, Mr. Baxter Meddick and Mr. H. C. Shoptone, of Savannah.

Among other present were: Miss Emily Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Scott, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Better, Mrs. Stacy Earnest Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Raine, Colonel Zaleski, Mr. James T. Williams and others.

Farewell Dinner for Col. and Mrs. Hayes.
Colonel and Mrs. Jack Hayes will be honor guests at a dinner next Saturday evening, August 7, at the dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club, the occasion being given in compliment to them before their departure for their home in Washington, D. C. Covers were laid for Colonel and Mrs. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Cowles, Mrs. Emmie Carter Divine, Mrs. Stacy Earnest Hill, Mr. James T. Williams, Colonel Zaleski and others.

House Party at Rockdale Farms.
Rockdale has been one plantation which stands out in distinction, not because of its broad acres, but because of the fact that Mr. Julian Hurt, the owner, and his wife, Mrs. Orie Malone Hurt, originated the famous Rockdale corn, and because it is on one of the few plantations in Georgia which has grown and shipped to the north seeds of many varieties. Mr. Hurt ran it as a seed farm for a number of years. No single plantation has ever exhibited a flat showing had many different designs as has Rockdale plantation, from seeds, soft white blunders, and colored coverlets, made from lamb's wool. A Chicago artist draped a float and decorated it with the products from this plantation. Mr. Hurt shipped to Atlanta the different products and this artist arranged in artistic effect to show what could be produced from this plantation. So large and wonderful was the float that every school it was the efforts of Rockdale county. Instead of one farm in that county. The judges accorded first place and award.

Especially did this float appeal to Mr. and Mrs. Hart as to the sheep-raising in Georgia. Because of the laws of Georgia, this particular branch on the plantation was discontinued. But at that time the Hurts were sending from Rockdale to a number of hotels, mutton and lamb, while black-tails, bringing in a pair, were made from the wool.

Miss Emily Robinson is having a week-end house party at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Robinson in Druid Hills, her guests Miss Mary Faith Yow, of Lenoira, Ga., and Miss Julia Brantley, of Blackshear.

They were admired guests at the dinner at the Piedmont Driving club last evening, and Miss Robinson entertains for them at a buffet supper at home this evening. Miss Brantley leaves shortly for a visit of two months east, and Miss Yow will return to Lenoira until the early fall, when she will again be in Atlanta for the winter with the Governor and Mrs. Dorsey.

Miss Jennie Robinson, who is in the near-debutante set, has been helping her sister entertain, and she is receiving many attentions. She will return to school in New York in the early fall. Miss Katherine Dickey and Miss Grace Goldsmith are at the Grove Park Inn with Mrs. James L. Dickey, where they are among the admired members of the young people's set at the inn.

Miss Jennie Johnson is among the admired young women at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, Va., and Miss Hand will be there this week, with Dr. and Mrs. Hinman and Mrs. Charles E. Sciple.

Stay-at-Homes Sporting Gaily On Native Heath

The stay-at-homes this summer are congratulating themselves, for "Where could you find better or more delightful summer weather?" they ask one another when they meet twice a week on the roof garden of the Capital City club, and Saturday evening at the Piedmont Driving club and the East Lake Country club, or possibly at the innumerable golf luncheons and teas each day at the Druid Hills Golf club.

The young college set, both among the young men and women, are enjoying the season at home, and they have their dances, motor picnics and week-end parties at their own homes.

VARIED PROGRAM OF ENTERTAINMENT AT BIG CARNIVAL

The military brass bands, one from Camp Gordon and the other from Camp Gordon, and the Camp Gordon orchestra, have been secured to guarantee the perpetual music which has been promised on the night of the midsummer carnival and barn dance to be given by the Joseph Habersham chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution the night of August 11. Minstrel dancing of varied kinds, comedy by the Junior League, producers of the Follies of last June, a grand cake walk, a real boxing bout and a set to between two scientific wrestlers, are chief features of entertainment which will be offered.

In addition to all this merriment, something sober and occult has been provided in arrangement for the presence of Madame Blavatsky, East Indian seeress, who will dip into the past and delve into the future with Oriental accuracy. There will also be on hand a Spanish gypsy to perform miracles in the art of card reading.

Mrs. William Lawson Peel is in general charge of arrangements for the festival and the carnival committee is composed of Mrs. Charles P. Byrd, Captain Blanks, Captain Mystery, Rex Trot (Cortina), Paul Biese's Novelty Orchestra. There will also be appointed a committee to take charge of the refreshment program.

BUILDING WANTED FOR CITY MARKET IN WINTER MONTHS

Announcement was made Saturday morning by Mrs. Norman Sharp, chairman of the committee in charge of the municipal market, that it had been definitely decided to ask the city to provide a building for the accommodation of farmers who may wish to dispose of produce during the winter months. Mrs. Sharp said the movement had been under contemplation for some time and the committee had been waiting to see how the curb market succeeded before making the request of the city.

The result of today's business assured us that municipal market is now an institution in this city and had come here to stay and to be operated the year around.

The number of farmers attending the market has increased rapidly since the opening day and large numbers of people from all over the city are now identified as regular customers. The market Saturday was open until 2 o'clock and it is said that the business for the day exceeded any day since the opening. Fresh sweet potatoes, new turning greens, grapes and locally grown watermelons were put on sale for the first time and sold rapidly. Corn and fresh butter beans led the sales of the day.

D. T. BLODGETT LOSES HABEAS CORPUS FIGHT

Allegations of Conspiracy, Made by Prisoner, Unfounded, Says Judge Sibley.

David T. Blodgett, former candidate for congress in Iowa, who is now serving twenty years in the Atlanta federal penitentiary for violating the espionage act in that he published and distributed excerpts from an address by Thomas E. Watson in Thomson, Ga., on June 23, 1917, and who instituted proceedings for his release last week in federal court by applying for a writ of habeas corpus, must either serve the remainder of the sentence imposed by the trial court, or must take his case to a higher court on a writ of error.

Judge Samuel H. Sibley ruled Saturday, in denying Blodgett's application for a writ of habeas corpus, that nothing was alleged in the petition to justify an attack by habeas corpus in his court. Blodgett was found guilty on three counts, and was sentenced to serve twenty years for each of the three counts, but the sentences are concurrent. Judge Sibley ruled that if either of the three concurrent sentences is valid, his imprisonment is legal.

Charges contained in Blodgett's petition that Judge Martin P. Wade, who presided at his trial, and the two United States attorneys who prosecuted him had conspired to prevent the administration of justice, and other charges of partiality in connection with the trial were characterized by Judge Sibley as outrageous.

"The outrageous charge of conspiracy by the court officials to defeat justice is wholly unsupported by the record of the trial and ought not to have a place in the files of the court," he said. "I have carefully read the petition and brief and I am persuaded that the complaints made are wholly matters which are reviewable by writ of error only."

Musicians Decide Course at Meeting Called for Sunday

Paul Donohoe, president of the Atlanta Federation of Musicians, stated to a Constitution reporter Saturday afternoon, that until the meeting of the federation Sunday morning, no course of action would be discussed for publication concerning the disagreement between some of the local playhouse managers and the federation.

Saturday night was the expiration of the two weeks' notice given by the managers to the musicians, and no definite action had been taken pending the meeting. Mr. Donohoe, said that the national officers had not condemned any action taken by the local federation and that the national officers were being communicated with in deciding the situation.

Theatre managers asked to give statements as to what attitude might be taken by them should the musicians refuse to return, stated that they did not care to comment upon the matter further than to say that the theatres would continue to operate and furnish music.

"My lord," said a witness, "you may believe me or not, but I have stated not a word that is false, for I have been wedded to truth from infancy."

"Yes, sir," replied the judge, dryly, "but the question is, how long have you been a widower?"—T. H. B.

CHAMINGLY DESCRIBED.
In her tour of Europe, Alcyon Robinson, daughter of former State Senator Helen Ring Robinson, of Colorado, has interviewed the wives of several American diplomatic representatives. She describes, in a charming manner, their lives, their families and their method of adapting themselves to life in foreign countries. In today's article Miss Robinson gives an interesting picture of Mrs. Hampson Gary, wife of the new American minister to Switzerland.

BY ALCYON ROBINSON.
(Written for the United News.)
Bern, Switzerland, July 21.—"Chancery of the United States of America" stood out on the grassy plateau on the garden entrance of the American legation. Thus my second introduction to Mrs. Hampson Gary, wife of the new American minister to Switzerland.

The first introduction I had to Mrs. Gary was at Celigny, Switzerland, the home of Ernest Schelling, musician and composer. Mr. Gary had just arrived from his late post in Egypt at the home of his friend, Major Schelling. The reunion of minister Gary and his wife left no doubt in the mind of an observer that there, at least, was one man still in love with his wife.

Celigny has been the scene of other interesting meetings. Major Schelling's house, which belonged to the bishops of the fifteenth century, was the center for allied military attaches in Switzerland during the war.

Here, an Englishman would come over the hills with news of some German intrigue in Geneva, and an American in Swiss peasant snook would arrive with additional information.

In the room where the Garys met, Major Schelling and his friend, Padewski have often met to play together on the soft toned pianos at the floor of the bishop's dais.

Love at First Sight.
"It was a case of love at first sight," Mr. Gary confided. "I first saw Betty Royal at a May carnival in Dallas. She was the loveliest girl I had ever laid eyes on. I always called her 'Brownie' in pink. She still loves to dance and is a favorite on the ball-room floor, and she likes to ride and swim with the children."

The Garys met formally in their home state, Texas, soon after Mrs. Gary's coming out party. Although his family was from North Carolina, Mr. Gary was born in Texas and Mrs. Gary's family, the Royals, trace their Virginia history back to 1622.

Shortly after the close of his college career at the University of Virginia, Mr. Gary returned to practice law in Paradise, Texas.

"I had to refuse an invitation to a 'coming-out party' of another Texas beauty because by that time I had succeeded in becoming engaged to Betty Royal."

Mrs. Gary was eager to talk about the minister and the two children, Franklin, although he was only 16, was one of his father's secretaries in Egypt, and she was glad to talk about Helen, 12, who is her mother's musical ability and her skill in athletics and dancing. But Mrs. Gary does not like to talk about Mrs. Gary.

"She bucks me up. A diplomat's wife can make or mar him," it was Minister Gary who told how his wife helps him most in his official capacity.

Always An Aid to Husband.
When Mr. Gary was advisor to the department of state, Mrs. Gary's affairs in Washington helped to carry on her husband's successful career, and then again in Egypt, Americans, English officers and ladies were welcomed at the Gary home, which faced Lord Allenby's residence.

It was the privilege of this attractive American woman to discover to the world that the Sultan of Egypt really does speak English. The Sultan was seated next to Mrs. Gary at a dinner and she addressed him as a matter of course in her own tongue. He responded politely in English.

Silence reigned among the Britishers. It was the first time they had ever heard the king's subject the sultan, speak the tongue of the country ruling his land.

The most dramatic experience of the Garys occurred in Egypt. The day of the battle of Armageddon, when the English army turned the tide against Turkish troops, Mrs. Gary and the children arrived in Egypt at general headquarters. As the historic battle progressed, General Allenby traced the course of his army on a map for little Helen Gary, an American child.

"I enjoyed my work with the English Red Cross society in Egypt, as it was something familiar, and saving."

ord of America," Mrs. Gary said. "Franklin was a good secretary. He was fresher in Sunday school history than I, and could help his father recall historic Biblical landmarks." Minister Gary said with pride.

Learning Arabian Language.
Although Minister Gary is a clever diplomat and his wife is a talented woman, they couldn't learn the Arabian language as their youngsters did.

The dark, rainy day I called at the legation in Bern, two American children were as engrossed in the striped snails in the garden of their new home, as they were recently in the relics of ancient tombs near their home in Egypt.

These children know the names of these new trees and flowers. They learn such things in the summer camp in Maine, where we send them every year. They can tell you which way the stream flows in a dry creek bed, and any number of things a diplomatic training could not teach them," Mrs. Gary said, as she walked about the garden directing new flower beds to be made.

"We have picked out the shadiest side of the garden for the children's pets and this morning I have planned how we can give dancing parties for the young folks here."

Besides receiving guests at teas, Mrs. Gary's duties include rearranging the house of an old noble family for their living quarters and the business rooms of the legation.

Mrs. Gary used to be noted for her splendid housekeeping and she is quite capable of any task. I recalled a friend once saying of her:

COLONEL NOYES
NOW STAFF CHIEF OF 5TH DIVISION

Colonel Charles R. Noyes, Sixth Infantry, is announced as chief of the Fifth division, and as executive officer of Camp Gordon, Major W. D. A. Anderson, Seventh Engineers, having been detailed to the army school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Mrs. Anderson and little daughter leave today for Carrollton, to be the guests of the former's father, Judge W. F. Brown, after which Mrs. Anderson will join her husband at Leavenworth.

Colonel Charles H. Bridger, I. G. D., having been assigned to Camp Gordon, has been appointed inspector of the Fifth division, relieving Colonel J. H. Bradford, who is transferred to command of an infantry regiment at Camp Jackson, S. C.

Public Is Warned Against Operations Of Fur Peddlers

The local Retail Merchants' association, in a letter of warning to the public, states that it has received a number of complaints regarding the operations of four or five itinerant peddlers who are now in Atlanta selling furs in office buildings and in the resident section. These men are foreigners, or at least of foreign birth, and their story, which is believed to be false, is that they are ex-service men recently returned from overseas, and that they have brought back with them valuable furs which they are willing to sell at a greatly reduced price.

A few days ago a very prominent physician, the letter adds, bought a fur called coney, which is about the lowest grade of fur. The peddler, from whom he bought it, was told the doctor that it was Russian sable, which he had brought back from Siberia with him. Detectives are now searching for these men for the purpose of causing their arrest and prosecuting them for cheating and swindling, the association adds.

Mrs. Gertrude Cofer and Mrs. Myrtle M. Hanson leave today for Morpheus and other points in the mountains of North Carolina.

Mrs. S. C. Sparks and her sister, Mrs. Harris, leave tomorrow for Franklin, N. C., where they will spend several weeks.

Miss Lucy McAllister, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. McAllister, is visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Henderson, of New Orleans, La. She has become very popular with the younger set, and many lovely summer parties have been given in her honor, at the Yacht club, Country club, the roof garden of Elber new home and Grunewald roof garden, at West End.

Mr. and Mrs. Stratton Hard are keeping house at the home of their mother, Mrs. Walker Dunson, in Ansley Park, during the absence of Mrs. Dunson and Miss Evelyn Dunson at Wrightsville Beach.

Mrs. Spencer Struble is visiting Miss Sara Evans in Montgomery, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox left yesterday for Maine.

Misses Marion and Mary Agnes Phillips and Miss Daisy Jackson, of LaGrange, have returned from a delightful visit to Wrightsville Beach and other points of interest in North Carolina.

Misses Winnie Milner and Edith Patterson are with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ramsey at the Cliff house, Tallulah Falls, Ga.

Final Reductions on All Women's Low Shoes

Every pair of summer shoes must be cleared out within the next few days to make room for fall stocks, so we have cut prices to less than manufacturer's cost on many lines, INCLUDING HANAN'S HIGH-GRADE SHOES.

It is enough to say that these shoes are all from regular stock, for Atlanta women are already familiar with the "Carlton" quality of footwear.

All sizes are included, all widths, all leathers and all styles, but, of course, some styles are more complete in size ranges than others.

Reductions are from 25 to 33 1-3%, and in some cases more than 50%. Note these values:

All shoes, including Hanan's, that sold up to $18.50 $13.85
All shoes that sold up to and including $15.00 $10.85
All shoes that sold up to and including $12.50 $8.85
350 pairs high-grade shoes—incomplete runs of sizes. Values more than double $5.95
150 pairs fine shoes, odds and ends, that sold up to $10.00 $3.95

This is the greatest opportunity of the season to buy high-grade shoes at a saving that means several dollars on each pair.

Undismayed by Raillery of Solons, Senator Wilkinson Warns the Public Again Against "Damnable, Disgraceful Suits."

Supporting his proposed bill against mixed bathing against the rare tide of wit which has flowed around it in the Georgia senate, Senator H. B. Wilkinson, of the 49th district, has addressed a communication to The Constitution, in which he takes the jibes of his colleagues good-naturedly, but maintains his stand that mixed bathing is a menace to the virtue of young girls.

He says that Senator Glenn, of the 45d, is the "wit of the senate," but that his volleys of mirthful satire are usually spontaneous, and often find the senator voting for the measure which he has subjected to his raillery. Senator Wilkinson says that he has also received many letters commending his bill, only two against it—and these unsigned, "evidently the writers were ashamed of their ungodly position and word," he said.

Wilkinson Determined. "I wish to say to my friends," he continues, "and I mean by the word 'friends' those who stand with me on these questions affecting the virtues of our young, unprotected womanhood, who must become the motherhood of the next generation that nothing said or written by the enemies of these bills will ever move me one jot or tittle from my purpose in having the senate of Georgia to vote their sentiment in these measures."

"My bill on bathing is drastic, I know, and would stand some amendment, but not so much as would allow mixed bathing. That is the very feature I seek to destroy, as well as the damnable, disgraceful suit. What innocent young lady could walk out with a man partner, unclad, or as well be without blushing to the heels, and a sentence of conscientious condemnation of error and disgrace? Do they not know that the young man that would solicit such intimacy would not marry them for love, and with the intention of making them a heart partner for life? If they do not know it, I am telling them now, once for all time."

"I greatly sympathize with parents, because the young people have passed the control of their fathers and mothers, therefore it becomes necessary for the law to step in with its strong arm and say 'stop, thou comest too far and no farther. There are my sons and daughters, their health, lives, prosperity, happiness, society and future, christians, I depend upon their youthful training, and before they shall be robbed of every vestige of moral turpitude I will destroy every bathing resort in Georgia."

Not Worth Woman's Virtue. "No money making business, or pleasure resort is worth as much to this state as the virtue of one poor girl. But the enemies of these bills belong to that class who sit on the fence of defiance and say 'you can't—you shall not do it.' But I say, just as bar rooms and grog shops have been removed by the strong arm of the law from cities, cities and crossroads, for the preservation of good society and christianity, so this practice of mixed bathing can be stopped, and the character of our girls between the ages of thirteen and sixteen protected."

All that is needed is the friends of human virtues as a force behind it. When that power marshals itself as an antagonist you will see these devils on earth, who are robbing us of our joy, and destroying the virtues of boys and girls melt like the drifting snow in sunshine, flee away from us like devils, and light—disappear as Beelzebub did before Christ, who sits in the throne of His glory, bidding His ministers and disciples to let the same mind be in them as was in Him."

Four Clerks Handle Applications Here For Victory Medals

All applications for Victory medals must be forwarded to the local army recruiting office, 320 Transportation building, according to an announcement made by army officials Saturday.

"We have four clerks on hand all the time to handle applications," stated Captain J. H. Hines, local Victory medal officer. "The men over the state can send in their discharge forms and we will fill out the blanks and return the discharges to them. The men in Atlanta can have the matter attended to in less than five minutes by coming to the office."

The American Legion in Atlanta and other points has co-operated with the army authorities in having a great number of men make application so far.

Over the Top and Then Some

"I never felt better in my life than since taking the first dose of May's Wonderful Remedy. It was a bad case of indigestion and bloating and tried all kinds of medicine. May's Wonderful Remedy is all and more than is claimed for it. On my recommendation our postmaster's wife is using it with good results."

It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the stomach and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jacob's Pharmacy and drugstore everywhere.—(adv.)

NEWS FOR MONDAY, AUGUST 2.

Wash Dresses on Which Girls Will Save a Third

BACK of this little Sale of girls' wash dresses is a special purchase which we put through a couple of weeks ago. A specialist in girls' wash dresses wanted to unload his surplus stock. We took over a portion of it—picked the dresses we wanted—and got them at a discount of one-third!

$2.98 for $3.95 to $5 Dresses

—These dresses are of plain colored, striped, checked and plaid Amoskeag gingham in a dozen pretty styles. They're for little girls of 2 to 6 years. Belted, sashed, smocked, pleated skirt and other styles.

$1.98 for $2.75 to $3 Dresses

—Splendid dresses of gingham in plaids, checks and plain colors—just such dresses as mothers will want for their 14-year-old daughters for early fall school days. In light, medium and dark colors.

Marked Down! All Fine Silk Negligees and Kimonos Here for Two Months or Longer

KEPT beyond a certain length of time, fine negligees begin to lose their freshness here. So we always make it a point to dispose of our fine negligees and kimonos before the danger point is reached. That's why we have marked these down.

—Picking includes embroidered Japanese styles, fancy lace-trimmed and plain tailored affairs of crepe de chine and Georgette crepe in light and dark colors.

—These negligees were originally $15 to $85. They are now priced $10 to $65.

Useful Laces and Embroideries Sharply Reduced

—Two thousand yards of laces and embroideries in 1½ to 5-inch widths, suitable for trimming underwear, children's dresses and women's summer dresses and blouses, formerly 15c to 39c yard, have been reduced to 10c.

—Embroidery bands and edges in widths of 1 to 4 inches, suitable for trimming underwear, formerly 39c to 50c yard, reduced to 23c the yard.

Middy Blouses—Middy Skirts—Marked Down

—Little lots on which we've put lower prices for clearing. —Girls' regulation style middy blouses of good quality white Lonsdale jeans with yoke back and front and braid trimmed collar and cuffs. Sizes 6 to 12 for $2.50.

—Girls' full pleated white middy skirts of Lonsdale jeans made on muslin underbodies. Sizes 6 to 14 years at $1.95.

Women's Ribbed Vests Now 69c

—Swiss ribbed white lisle vests that we have reprinted for clearance. Finished with tubular band neck and arms. Sizes 5 and 6 at 69c.

—Women's athletic style union suits of batiste in sizes 34 to 38 have been reprinted $1.

Cool! Athletic Union Suits for Boys at 98c

—Look a whole lot like his dad's and they're just as cool. Sleeveless, knee length union suits of white checked nainsook with buttons securely taped on—you see, an underbody isn't necessary when this garment is worn. Sizes 2 to 12 years. 98c.

Switches Sale Priced, $1.49

—Three-stem switches of wavy hair. They come in all shades with the exception of gray. Uncommonly good for the money—$1.49.

—Cap style nets to match practically every shade of hair are little priced 85c the dozen. Find these on the Third Floor.

Muslinwear Sale Priced

—Corset Covers, 89c

—Regulation armhole style corset covers of good white long-cloth trimmed with Torchon or Valenciennes embroidery. Run at neck with ribbon. All sizes.

—Muslin Drawers, 98c

—Drawers of soft-finish white cambric edged around bottom with durable embroidery. These are full cut and will fit comfortably.

—Nightgowns, $1.98

—Powder or V-neck style nightgowns made of soft white nainsook or good cambric. These are hemstitched, trimmed with ruffles or else with embroidery edging.

Do You Need New Dining Room, Living Room, Bedroom or Summer Furniture? If You Do, This Is to Inform You That Rich's

August Furniture Sale

Has High-grade Furniture for You at Reductions of Anywhere from 10 to 30%

Quality Furniture

THROUGHOUT the year, at sale times and other times, when we are talking furniture, we always harp on one thing—QUALITY! For QUALITY is the most important thing about furniture. It's the first thing you should consider in buying furniture—and the last. Price—even when price spells fine savings as it does in our August Furniture Sale—is of secondary importance to QUALITY. Rich's furniture is QUALITY furniture all the way through!

The Facts Are:

TWO MONTHS AGO, the thought of holding an August Furniture Sale did not enter our mind. Had the subject been brought up at that time, we'd have said, "Impossible!" For then we were wondering how we were going to get enough furniture to meet the normal demand during the summer.

Then came a decided improvement in conditions affecting the furniture industry. Factories were swinging into their old production stride. Freight shipments of furniture were moving more freely. Our orders which had been unfilled for six months and a year commenced coming in. Our selling floor filled up. Our warehouse did, too. We were getting cramped for facilities to handle furniture coming to us from Grand Rapids and other northern furniture building centers.

Should we tell manufacturers to hold up shipments or to cancel orders? No! We had a better plan. We could turn these conditions into channels that would be highly beneficial to our patrons.

Result—Rich's August Furniture Sale. Holding the largest stock of high-grade furniture this store has owned in more than two years. Placing this fine furniture before Rich's patrons at savings of anywhere from 10 to 30%.

Run your eye over the specimen offerings listed here—it will pay you to do so. See what this sale is prepared to do for your home and you!

Current Events From a Woman's Point of View By ISMA DOOLY

Women Are Proving Strong-Minded Voters.

They are going to make some mistakes at first—the women voters—because it is a new obligation, and all of them have not learned the systems, the methods, the ways, but the majority of them know the principle.

At the Atlanta polls Wednesday, when women voted in the municipal election, in one of the precincts where many women voted, a pretty young woman with an earnest face was standing in the long line waiting.

She had a blond haired baby with her scarcely two years of age. The little chap was tired and she had to take him in her arms. Finally a man in front of her held the baby a while, and later the men further up the line invited her up to stand ahead of them so she would be nearer the voting place. She had very little to say, but it was obvious she had to bring the baby to the polls because she had nobody at home with whom to leave him. The ward heelers approached her as they did the others and handed her the cards of their favorite candidate. She looked at their cards, and made no comment, because that woman had made up her mind all about her ticket and knew exactly what she wished to vote.

Whether her husband had told her, nobody knew from anything she said. She was not there from curiosity, for she was not that kind of woman. She was there from principle, and when she went inside the booth to make out her ticket, a man standing near her held the baby's hand. Her vote was cast, and she walked out calmly, having fulfilled what was to her—a duty.

Now there is much talk about men "voting women," and about women getting tired of the novelty of it, but with all of this there is going to be many, many women, with civic conscience, who are going to finish their household work, dress the baby and go to the polls and vote according to their conviction.

And when they get to the polls, contrary to the kind of treatment some chivalrous men have apprehended women will get at the polls, a woman like that is going to be treated as that woman was at the Atlanta polls. When she gets tired, some man will hold the baby for her, and they will put her ahead of them in the line.

She will be asked to vote this one and that one, and she will listen and say nothing, and then go, make out her ticket exactly as she pleases, and vote.

Women are apt students and pupils in public matters; many of them know now what they want in local, state and national politics, and the work of reform along many lines in politics has already had its beginning.

"Vote for Mr. So-and-So," a well-known man said to his wife as they approached the polls together Wednesday.

"I am not going to do it," she told him pleasantly, "and I shall tell you why," and she proceeded to tell him.

A gentleman afterwards approached and made the same request of her. She made the same reply to him, and both these men knew that no amount of arguing, no inducement could have changed that woman's vote. She had made up her mind, she had her own convictions, and she voted as she pleased.

She is another type of woman who will be met at the polls. "Howdy, sister," one woman greeted another. "How are things going?" was the next question.

"All our way," was the reply. These women belonged to the same organization. They had an organization ticket, and they represented another type—the already trained type.

So that even with all the mistakes women may make in the first tickets, in making them out, etc., and even with the cry that certain elements of men will "vote their women" their way, there are whole groups, and kinds, and organizations of women that know how to make out their tickets, and who are going to vote just as they please.

Business and Professional Women in Convention.

The Business and Professional Women of the Nation convened this week in St. Paul, Minn., for their second annual convention, the national organization having been perfected in St. Louis last year.

Miss Gail Laughlin, a practicing lawyer of New York, presided, and there were women delegates from many state federations as well as from individual clubs of business and professional women.

The force and significance of this organization is obvious, and the program this year exploited the fact of the large percentage of women of the nation who are not only wage earners, but leading spirits in the professions and in the innumerable lines of business in which women are engaged today.

They represent women who are a part of every branch of business, every department of civic life, and every element of present-day civilization, and their program, therefore, was rich in vital and varied features.

The value of the convention to the woman who attended, is the broadening of her viewpoint, the information she got about the accomplishment of the women of the nation at large, and the pleasure she derived from meeting women of her particular interest as they come from all sections of the country, while the value of the woman attending the convention to the business to which she belongs is the message she brings back home, the brightening of her vision, and a new consciousness of her personal responsibility as an individual and her importance as a woman worker.

Organizations which bring about this influence are timely, especially as the woman of the nation nears her obligation as a citizen and a voter. She learns the relation of the vote not merely to politics per se, but to all public questions, and to all lines of business, commerce and industry and she is the better prepared to be an intelligent voter when the time comes.

The average woman who is in a profession or in business does not have time to read, or to study public matters as do the women who can command their own time, therefore the value of belonging to an organization which through its departments and committees makes it possible for women to know many of the vital things as they concern women, this information coming through the reports the chairmen of such departments and committees will make at the annual meetings, and the periodical meetings of the home organization.

The eyes of the women of the nation may well be upon the report of the national convention of these business and professional women as they were threshed out from their viewpoint, the vital questions which confront the women of the country at large. Georgia and Atlanta will anticipate the message which will be brought back home by delegates from the state and city.

Georgia sent in her delegation a woman lawyer, a woman leader in insurance activities, a woman successful in restaurant business, and a woman railroad official, beside other representative women wage earners in the best sense.

Prominent Woman Lawyer

"Women jurors have disproved the statement that they are of the 'emotional sex'; for three years they have demonstrated that they are controlled by reason rather than sentiment, and that it is quite unnecessary to shield them from the harsh truths of life." Miss Gail Laughlin, well known San Francisco lawyer, who framed the bill which makes women eligible for jury duty in California, knows whereof she speaks. It was Miss Laughlin also who framed the bill which permits women to practice before the supreme court.

Democratic Women Are Told Of Points They Must Know

Mrs. George Bass, chairman of the woman's bureau of the national democratic party, tells the women of the party 14 points why they should vote the democratic ticket in November, as follows:

1. Because, under the leadership of the democratic party the United States was victorious in the war.

2. Because 2,000,000 men were trained, equipped and landed in France within 18 months after we entered the war.

3. Because our enlisted men were safeguarded as no other men in the world were safeguarded before, because a new world's record of health and sanitation of troops was established, and because not a soldier's life was lost on the sea when conveyed by the U. S. navy.

4. Because the vast accumulation of armament made in the United States was a determining factor in bringing the war to an end.

5. Because when this material was hopelessly blocked in freight yards of privately operated railroads, the government had the courage to take over the distribution facilities of the United States and in an incredibly short time secured the movement of war necessities to the seaboard.

6. Because in spite of our own war preparations we continued to supply our allies with ammunition and ordnance.

7. Because by fair treatment the democratic party succeeded in keeping the confidence of labor in the United States and so secured maximum production of war necessities.

8. Because when we went into the war we had over 2,000,000 gross tons of shipping listed under the American flag. At the time of the armistice this had been increased to 3,750,000 tons.

9. Because the democratic party created the shipping board, and met this emergency successfully.

10. Because the democratic party made a magnificent success of the great task of financing a war in Europe in a democratic fashion. Taxes sufficient to bring in a large sum were levied upon the more privileged citizens of the United States and the sale of liberty bonds was conducted on a scale to reach all possible investors, great or small. The liberal loan campaigns were the first in the history of disposal of government securities on a large scale in which not one cent of commission was paid to any bank. The bonds were sold by the people to the people.

11. Because the democratic party is the party of construction rather than opposition. A comparison of the legislation passed before the war when the democrats were in the majority in congress, and the achievements of that body under republican control, is an interesting proof of this.

12. Because under democratic leadership a sympathetic understanding of European affairs was developed and a desire on the part of the nation to do its duty in relieving the stricken people of the world manifested itself.

13. Because the democratic party stood for the establishment of the league of nations and put itself on record as the forward looking party in international affairs.

14. Because the United States was destined to take its place in world affairs. The speeches made by republican leaders in the senate have indicated a lack of understanding of international concerns which is necessary to the successful future of the United States. Under democratic control we won the friendship of the world.

15. Because the federal reserve bank system created and developed under democratic leadership prevented a panic in the money market during the war, and arranged for the credits vital to the great expansion of the following Spanish-American war conducted in a republican administration, have been substantiated.

An Advance Word On Fall Fashions MAKES WOMEN THINK

Strange as it may seem, to be talking about fall fashions while the summer moon is still high, women who are careful buyers and good dressers always look ahead, and plan for their winter trousseaus. The fashion makers always send out their sample hats in advance of the season, and all artist-modellists know perfectly what the fall fashions will be. Like the merchants, they have given in their orders long ago for materials, and many are receiving their fall stocks in materials, trimmings and general accessories.

The milliners are showing charming fall hats in the softest dove-tail, like the French felt. The material is pliable, and occasionally adaptable for shaping, especially into toques and smaller hats which are the first purchased in the beginning of any season. The color scheme so far would suggest that the artist had noted the shades in the fall leaf and foliage when it changes from green to the yellows and browns, with a dash of reddish brown, which has been popularly called henna.

A hat combining two shades of brown leading to henna, has a facing in black velvet, which with upturned brim and next to a woman's face, makes her skin look the texture of satin.

Browns in all tones will again prevail in hats, and the brown and taupe colored hat will be worn with black, dark blue and beige colored gowns, as popularly as those hats which reflect the exact color of the gown.

With the first fall hats one will see the small scarfs of fur in all varieties of fur, these to be worn close about the neck until the hour for wearing the fur coats, capes and the larger pieces of neckwear in fur.

The One-Piece Gown.
The one-piece gown will again share honors with the tailor gown, that including a coat and skirt, and velvet will again be the material most seen in dressier gowns. Tricotee, serge and the light quality of broadcloth will be worn. The street wrap will still be the cape—the one in simple lines, and then those with coat fronts with the arms coming through in sleeve-like fashion. These will reflect the darker colors, though in smart ones will be in beige color.

The Coats.
The coats to the regulation coat suit are longer than they were last season, or else they are short suggesting the eon fashion. The latter are particularly adaptable to the more youthful figure, and those who are slender.

They are fuller than they have been, but still trim in effect, and therefore becoming to almost any figure; early in the season the plaited and even the accoridian plaited skirts will be seen in the material of lighter quality.

Taffeta silk will be worn a great deal in the earlier fall and the darker color will have a dash of color or about them. A dash of plaid will be seen in the flash of street suits, and some coats will show bronze and gold buttons as a fad.

On dressier gowns, in tricotee, crepe de chine, satin and silk there will be a great deal of braiding and hand embroidery, the hand work having been very favored on smart summer gowns.

The Evening Gown.
For evening a great deal of lace will be seen in the fashion of last season, and black lace will be a particularly favored material. White and the ivory and ecru lace will be combined in many smart evening gowns, the tendency in two different directions; the gowns being either at the waist line, and then the bouffant draperies which will be seen in early fall gowns.

Green still holds its own as a favorite color for evening wear, and flame color is the most used among the dashing evening gowns. Crystals and the sparkling sequins will still be seen on the newest evening gowns, and jet on black gowns will be lavishly used.

The shades of gold and yellow in graduating shades will be very much seen in the evening—these colors becoming to blondes and brunettes.

Playroom Party in Arcade Building.
The members of the play room committee of the Atlanta Woman's club are making elaborate plans for the big "once-a-month party" to be held at the play room, third floor Peachtree Arcade, Wednesday, August 4.

Mrs. W. F. Dant will be acting chairman for the party and she is dividing the committee into various groups to handle the different features.

Noteworthy among these will be the Indian seers, who, in the depths of her wigwag will read the palms of those who fear not the future. Prominent in club and society life, though, she is the mystery of the occult are to her an open book.

Pupils from Mrs. Lynwood Jester's School of Expression will delight young and old with aesthetic dancing and unique readings. A surprise feature is promised in this connection.

Three of the most popular entertainers in Atlanta will exhibit mysterious feats of magic when Mr. Jack Knowlton, assisted by Messrs. Gerard-Thiers and Julian Boehm, keep the audience guessing.

serious feats of magic when Mr. Jack Knowlton, assisted by Messrs. Gerard-Thiers and Julian Boehm, keep the audience guessing.

The fish pond is stocked with new and different fishes, and ice cream cones will be large and cold. Everybody who enjoys a good time is invited. Those who had not already seen the play room will want to do so, and Wednesday is a good time. Admission 25 cents, for the benefit of play room equipment.

Picnic Party for Mr. Awtry.

One of the interesting picnics of the season was given Friday evening, July 30, at Grant Park, by the members of the Inman Park Baptist church to Mr. J. W. Awtry, their Sunday school superintendent, in honor of his fifth birthday.

The ladies of the church presented Mr. Awtry with a magnificent birthday cake with beautiful decorations of green, pink and white, representing the past, present and future. Many happy toasts were given, and afterward Mr. Awtry responded to the many happy wishes with a splendid speech of appreciation for the happy occasion.

Just a Song at Twilight

LOVELY songs, songs that mean everything to us, songs that we could never give up—which are more to those who love them than any other music—and so beautifully played that they bring the heart throb and the lump in the throat.

It is music like this that is brought into the home with the Ampico, which not only reproduces the playing of the greatest pianists in the world, such as Godowsky, Rachmaninoff, Levitski, Ornstein and others, but also the playing of the artists who bring to the playing of these wonderful old songs a profound feeling for simple beauty.

Every one who loves music—who would wish his home gladdened by the best music—all the pieces one most loves—should hear and know Expression Class.

Mrs. Lynwood Jester presented her class in expression in a costume recital at the Lyric Club on Thursday afternoon. The program consisted of readings and pantomimes, ethiopian and folk lore dancing. Twelve little girls in Japanese costumes gave a pretty little dance of the Orient.

Little Misses Lorraine Whitney and Lena Gerschow were captivated in the role of Dutch girl and boy. An original tennis dance by eight girls in the regulation middie suit with tennis rackets was especially appreciated.

Mr. Jester closed the summer term and awarded gold medal to Mildred Malere for best work in expression and Blanche Lorraine Whitney won the medal in ethiopian dancing. Wilhelmina Brown was rewarded for her excellent work and best illustrated book with a gold pin.

Complimentary mention were given Miss Jeannette Topham, a girl of unusual talent, and Miss Frances Elliott, who received her third year certificate in certificate training. Louise Huddleston, Sylvia Smullen and Gladys Wells were complimented for their good work.

Mrs. Moore Hostess.
Miss Lucile Marks, a bride-elect of August 2, was honor guest at an alumnus shower given by Mrs. T. R. Moore, at her home on Hill street.

The house was beautifully decorated with ferns, sunflowers, black-eyed Susans and zinnias. Mrs. Moore was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. W. Kendley and Miss Ellen Hammond of St.atham.

The prize was won by Mrs. W. G. Marks and the booty by Miss Ellen Hammond.

Those present were Misses Lucile Marks, Annie Story, Beatie Walker, Pauline Bradley, Roberta Brown, Ellen Hammond, Lela Marks, Addie Tuggle, Mrs. Willie White, Mrs. W. G. Marks, Mrs. Foster Fry, Mrs. O. A. Nixon and Mrs. W. G. Marks.

After I took the Vegetable Compound I could work and eat. Now I am strong and recommend your medicine to my friends."—Mrs. ANNA SLEVA, 25 E. 17th St., Bayonne, N. J.

Women who recover their health, naturally tell others what helped them. Some write and allow their names and photographs to be published with testimonials. Many more tell their friends.

If you need a medicine for women's ailments, try that well-known and successful remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) for anything you need to know about these troubles.

THEATERS MOVIES

Lyric (B. F. Keith Vaudeville): Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Billy S. Hall and Jennie Colborn in "Hilda"; Arthur Angel and Violet Fuller in music and chatter; Four Singing Ushers in bits of harmony; "The Girl in the Moon," singing novelty, featuring Vera Calhoun; Betty Anker Trio, in gymnastic wonders; Pathe News; Topics of the Day; Pathe Review.

Loew's Grand-Vaudeville: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Binne and Bert, pantomimic trapezists; Granville and Fields, Italian street singers; Giuliano Trio, classical and popular repertoire of songs; Inman and Cunningham, rapid fire chatter and songs; Hall and Gilda, dance creations; Mitchell Lewis in picturization of Jack London's novel, "Burning Daylight."

Japanese Ideas: (Sydney Greenlee in the World's Work for August.) The Japanese are not good colonists. They cannot now compete with the Chinese and Koreans as such. Industrialization alone can save Japan. This she is trying to achieve by excluding Chinese and Koreans from Japan exactly as California would have us do. And Usonian Theater: All week, Constance Talmadge in "The Love Expert." Pathe Review and "Topics of the Day."

Savoy Theater: Monday, Bert Lytell in "The Night of Way." Harold Lloyd comedy, "Jazzed Honey-moon."

Alpha Theater: Monday, Warner Oland in "The Third Eye," Charles Hutchinson in "The Whirlwind."

Strand Theater: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, "The Mystery of the Yellow Room."

Forsyth Theater: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, "The Return of Tarzan."

Rialto Theater: All week, "The Fighting Chance."

Japanese are as much averse to the intermarriage of the Japanese with even the best class of white men as we are of the reverse situation. Perhaps even more so.

GREATEST NOVEL

The Fighting Chance

THE sins of his fathers were on him. Around him, the downward drag of his loose-living, wasting set. Yet he took his chance for the girl of his dreams and fought! A New York romance of love and luxury. Of club, resort, boudoir and ballroom. Of fashion's revels and follies of beautiful women.

Editors Are Asked Fine Life-Sized Bust Made To Start Forming Of Joel Chandler Harris Cox-Roosevelt Clubs

Newspaper Men in Each County Given First Opportunity to Advance Campaign of Editor Cox for President.

In order to give Governor Cox the overwhelming endorsement of a united Georgia democracy in November, a movement has been started to perfect the organization of Cox and Roosevelt clubs in every county. In view of the fact that Governor Cox is himself a newspaper man and, if elected, will be the first of the profession to attain the presidency, the committee which is behind the county club movement has addressed the following letter to all the editors of both daily and weekly democratic papers in the state:

"Dear Sir: Governor James M. Cox has been a life-long newspaper man. It is especially appropriate that democratic editors of Georgia should take the initiative in the campaign in the state. It is practically conceded that Governor Cox will carry Ohio and we are confident that he will carry the United States, and Georgia democrats should be his foremost friends.

"May we ask that you call together as promptly as possible, within the next week, a considerable number of your democratic leaders, certainly as many as ten, and organize a Cox-Roosevelt club for your county? Please have each sign the roll, keeping a copy for yourselves and sending us a copy here for our files. We wish to publish this list throughout the state that the charter members may be known and preserved, and that it may inspire other democrats.

"As promptly as the clubs can be formed in sufficient numbers, they will be requested to send a representative to the state-wide meeting of the Cox-Roosevelt clubs in Atlanta to perfect the state organization to push the campaign. The work of our committee is only temporary. Kindly advise us in the enclosed envelope of the time and place, calling it promptly and then giving us a list of the names above requested.

"Address your communications to H. Y. Walker, secretary, Room 111, state capitol, Atlanta. Thanking you in advance for your prompt attention, we are, very truly, (Signed)

"C. J. Haden, chairman, Atlanta; L. W. Reeves, Cartersville; M. L. McNeel, Marietta; A. C. Newell, Atlanta; Tull Waters, Atlanta; Ivan E. Allen, Atlanta; Arnold Broyles, Atlanta; H. M. Stanley, Dublin; J. Kelley Simmons, Milledgeville; J. B. Roberts, Hall County; C. D. McKinney, Decatur; A. C. Black, Jonesboro; H. Y. Walker, secretary, Atlanta.

NO REPLY RECEIVED TO DEBATE QUERY FROM CANDIDATES

The Constitution was last night in receipt of a telegram from Editor Jack Williams of the Waycross (Ga.) Journal-Herald stating that at that time he had not heard from either Senator Hoke Smith or Thomas E. Watson in reply to his wire to them proposing that they divide time in Waycross in debate on existing issues on August 27. Editor Williams' telegram to the two candidates for the United States senate were dispatched upon news that Smith had stated he was willing to accept Watson's challenge to discuss the issues involved in the campaign.

CIVIL SERVICE BUREAU FOR LABOR FEDERATION

Washington, July 31.—Establishment of a civil service department of the American Federation of Labor to embrace all of the affiliated national organizations of government employees will be among the subjects discussed by the executive council of the federation at Atlantic City August 2. Applications for such a department within the federation have been made by the executive officers of the National Federation of Federal Employees, the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, the National Association of Letter Carriers, and the Railway Mail Association. The purpose of the proposed department, it was said, would be to obtain greater unity and solidarity of action among government workers in all branches of the service. Demands for more uniform as well as better standards of employment will be made by the employees' organizations.

Bust of Joel Chandler Harris, made by W. H. Huggins.

A life-size bust of Joel Chandler Harris, modeled from an exceedingly good likeness from photographs of this beloved Georgian, has just been completed by William A. Huggins, a member of The Constitution's editorial staff. The bust was made at the request of the Uncle Remus Memorial association, for which organization a cast in terra-cotta will be made.

It is considered particularly remarkable that such a good portrayal of Mr. Harris has been secured through the use of the several photographs which Mr. Huggins acquired. Lucien Harris, son of the late author, has expressed himself as pleased with the product of Mr. Huggins' work, and has ordered a cast of the bust made for his home.

Mr. Huggins has done modeling for several years, more as a hobby than as a profession, but has completed several serious pieces of real merit. His latest work was done in clay, and the photograph reproduced herewith shows the bust before the final polishing and smoothing-up processes have been completed. Mr. Huggins has been on the staff of The Constitution since his return from service with the American army overseas.

THOS. H. BEAUCHAMP LEAVES CONSTITUTION

Popular Cashier of This Paper for 14 Years to Go With Cone M. Maddox Co.

Thomas H. Beauchamp, for the past fourteen years a valued employee of The Constitution, leaves this paper on the first of August to be associated with Cone M. Maddox company, one of the city's large wholesale grocery concerns.

Filling the responsible position of cashier for The Constitution since his connection with this paper, Mr. Beauchamp has made and holds the closest of friendship with every official and every employee of the paper, and it is with deep regret that they see him leave a place in the organization of The Constitution that he has so acceptably and so courteously filled for so many years. He will carry with him the very best wishes of every one connected with the paper for his future happiness and prosperity.

As an evidence of the esteem in which Mr. Beauchamp is held by the officials and the forces in the various departments of The Constitution, he was called before a large gathering of them on Saturday afternoon and presented with a cashier's certificate on an Atlanta bank showing a gift of $150 placed to his credit by the friends he is leaving behind. A few other individual gifts were also tendered him. Mr. Beauchamp was taken completely by surprise, but expressed his great appreciation for the gift and his love for his Constitution friends, in a few brief words.

Mr. Beauchamp will be connected with the office force of the Maddox Grocery company, but will also devote some time to outside sales and other work, beginning his duties there on Monday.

JAILED ON CHARGE OF BANK ROBBERY

Brunswick, Ga. July 31.—Charles Davenport and "Sonny" Zant, the latter a negro, are under arrest here charged with robbing the Glynn County Bank last January. Several liberty bonds and a large quantity of valuables owned by renters of safety deposit boxes were stolen.

Davenport was at one time the owner of a job printing plant here and the negro was employed by him as a pressman. They are held in default of $20,000 bond each.

JUDGE J. B. HUTCHESON GRAND JURY COMMENDS

Covington, Ga. July 30.—(Special.)—At the close of the court here this week the grand jury, in making their general presentations, to be published in the Covington News, referred to Judge John B. Hutcheson in the following manner: "We wish to take this opportunity to commend Judge John B. Hutcheson for the able and impartial manner in which he is discharging the duties of his high office, one of the most important in our system of government. We have been impressed with Judge Hutcheson's unflinching courage, his sincerity, and his earnest desire to do his whole duty, and hold the scales of justice evenly balanced between litigants, to see that the criminal laws are enforced, and yet to temper justice with mercy. We heartily endorse his efficient and faithful administration."

MORTALLY WOUNDED, HE KILLED HIS FOE

Asheville, N. C. July 31.—Jim Crow, a deputy sheriff of Cherokee county, near here, and Hick Rose, a notorious character in these parts, both are dead as the result of a pistol duel, according to word reaching here today.

Crow, the report says, was mortally wounded from ambush by Rose while on his way to arrest him, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Kennedy. Before he fell, according to Kennedy, he took aim at Rose and shot him dead. The officer then died in the wagon in which he was riding before aid could be summoned.

REMOVE M'GUFFEY TO ALABAMA COURT

John McGuffey, who was arrested several days ago charged with forging a material instrument to a postal money order, and who was committed to jail in default of $500 bond, will be transferred to a United States court in Alabama in the district where the alleged violation is said to have occurred, in accordance with an order of removal issued Saturday by Judge Samuel H. Sibley.

It is alleged that McGuffey, who is said to be 70 years of age, attached a counterfeit signature to a money order on June 27, 1918, issued at Aragon, Ga., by Postmaster J. M. Lawson.

A Vacation That'll Help Your Vocation

If you run a store, a trip to the big Southern Merchants' Convention in Atlanta, August 12th, 13th, 14th, will prove just such a combination.

Hundreds of the brightest men in the game will be there. Counsel will be freely exchanged. You're bound to pick up enough money-making ideas to pay for your trip.

If you have faith in the South and what its cotton crop means to the merchants who have good stocks in the Harvest season---

You'll make no mistake to combine business with pleasure---and provide for your Fall wants.

Transportation is still unsettled; allow for some delay, but deliveries from Atlanta will be your safest bet.

ATLANTA IN AUGUST IS THE COOLEST CITY ITS SIZE EAST OF THE ROCKIES.

W. W. Scott, southeast Georgia representative of Ragan-Malone company, says that he will be present at the coming commissary men and merchants' convention in August to give his customers the glad hand and show them a good time.

M. L. Sturkey, of the Hotel Furniture and Linen company, returned to headquarters this week from a trip through South Carolina and reports crop conditions in that state the best in years, especially corn and cotton. A bumper crop of tobacco is also being harvested for which a fancy price is being paid. Mr. Sturkey brought in several nice orders for his firm from that territory.

R. A. Perryman, president of Brown, Perryman & Green, is away this week on his vacation. C. D. Dickinson, of the same firm returned this week from a several days visit to eastern markets.

The Hamilton Carhartt mill, of this place, will resume operations Monday after being closed for the past two weeks during which their employees took their annual vacation and the plant was overhauled.

and additional machinery installed for the coming fall business. R. L. Pirkle states that this mill now has more machines ready for operation than ever in the history of the firm. Increased demand has made it necessary for the plant to increase its production.

R. K. Rambo, of the John Silvey company, returned Wednesday from New York city and other eastern markets, where he has been for the past week in the interest of his firm. Mr. Rambo is very enthusiastic over the outlook for the coming fall and winter.

The Dixie Seal and Stamp company is featuring something new this week in the way of numbering machines. The types they are showing, while possessing all the features of the ordinary machine, is so made that the numbers in position on the bottom are visible to the operator at all times, thus saving the time and worry of turning the machine upside down in order to see what numbers are in position.

J. R. Little, of the Dougherty-Little-Redwine company, says that business for his firm has been with one exception, the best July's business his firm has had in the past five years. The best salesmen are out on the road rolling up orders.

J. R. Pickins, southeast representative for Ragan-Malone company, was at headquarters this week. He and other representatives of the company will be in for the coming merchants' meeting August 9-14.

The A. M. Robinson company is busy this week arranging their stock in preparation of the coming merchants' meeting August 9-14. This firm is showing one of the latest stocks ever shown in Atlanta. F. W. Webb, southeast representative, sold a big scenic bill this week. O. Harja, Florida representative, spent the week-end at headquarters. "Chief" Erby, of the southeast Georgia, writes in that he is highly elated over the prospects for good business in his territory this fall and W. J. Ashton, in a letter to the firm this week, says that all his friends in the Birmingham district are coming to Atlanta the week of August 9-14 to be present at the merchants' meeting.

In the old days the town crier was a recognized institution throughout France. But when the art of printing came in the newspapers drove the town crier out of business. There are parts of France, however, where the town crier still makes his announcements, according to one of the members of C. company, 18th engineers. In an obscure little village near the town where this unit was camped there is an old man who stands at the main street corner and beats a drum to attract the attention of the populace when there is news to be given out. There is no newspaper. When the armistice was signed the people of that village learned of it from the crier.

Millinery Opening

Wholesale
Only

Special effort has been put forth to make the 1920 exposition of early fall millinery one of unusual interest. Everything has been done to make it the greatest showing of smart fashions in women's headgear that Atlanta has ever sponsored.

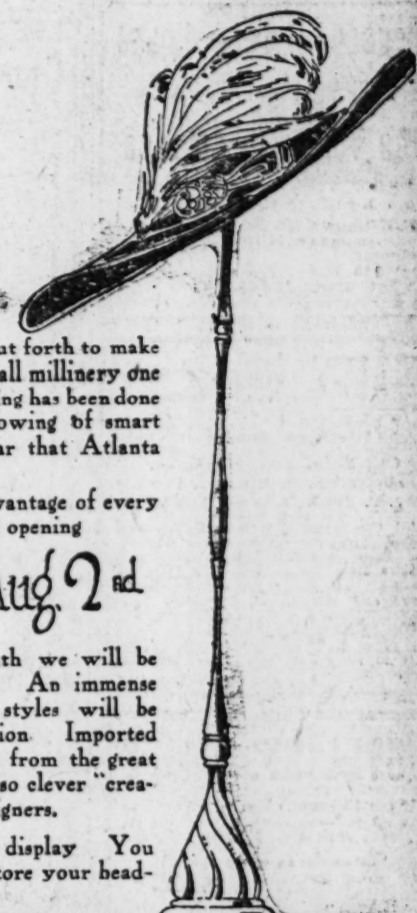

It is, therefore, to the advantage of every millinery buyer to attend the opening

Monday Aug 2nd

During the entire month we will be "at home" to visiting buyers. An immense panorama of advanced fall styles will be spread out for their inspection. Imported models, and models brought from the great American fashion centers, also clever "creations" by our own skilled designers.

Come and see the great display. You are welcome to make our store your headquarters while here.

CASHMAN TO MAKE HOME IN MILWAUKEE

P. C. CASHMAN, well-known T. P. A. member, who is to make Milwaukee his future home.

The many friends of P. C. Cashman, for years a well known traveling and local salesman in this territory, will learn with regret that he is soon to leave Atlanta to make his home in Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Cashman will leave Monday with his wife, and will in the future—at least, until he decides to return to Atlanta—live with his married daughter, Mrs. E. C. Pencil, in the city famous in the past for its particular and favorite brew.

Mr. Cashman has lived in Atlanta for the past thirty-seven years, being engaged many years ago in the manufacturing business. In later years he has been serving in the capacity of salesman for local or foreign manufacturing houses, and is recognized as a salesman of splendid ability. He is a leading member of the T. P. A., which organization he aided in establishing in this city when Post B of Atlanta, was founded. He printed many years ago the first T. P. A. paper in the south, as well as publishing a history of Post B a few years ago. At present he is the press chairman of the local organization, and in the past has contributed many interesting articles to the local press.

Mr. Cashman declares that he regrets very much to leave Atlanta, where he is surrounded with a host of good friends, who are predicting that it will be only a matter of a short time before he will be back in this city. In the meantime all of them will wish for him all the happiness and prosperity he so richly deserves in his new location.

"BIG TIME" PROMISED VISITING MERCHANTS

Commissary Men to Meet in Atlanta Aug. 9-12; Merchants Meet 12-14.

All indications are now that Atlanta is going to be host to a large number of commissary men and retail merchants during the week of August 9-14. Indications are that three to four hundred commissary men will be on hand for the three-day session, August 10, 11 and 12, and that between 1,500 and 2,000 merchants are expected to gather here for the remainder of the week.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Atlanta, which is sponsoring both events, has about completed arrangements for entertaining both conventions, and the program which has been prepared calls for three entertainments, each a monster event.

The entertaining features for the week include three major events. On Tuesday the delegates and visitors will be taken to the Druid Hills Golf Club, where a chicken dinner, supplemented with a watermelon cutting will be the offering. On Wednesday night, top of the Hotel Ansley, Meyer Regenstein is in charge of the dinner-dance and cabaret which will be featured. Meyer has arranged a vaudeville program that bids fair to be the best that has ever been put on locally, while the Ansley chefs are working overtime arranging delicate dishes.

The big event will be on Thursday, when everybody will adjourn to Lakewood, where a regular Georgia barbecue will be served. Over 5,000 people are expected to attend this affair, and J. R. Little is in charge. In addition to these events, rides over the city, and visits to Atlanta's wholesale and manufacturing houses will be daily features.

W. L. Percy, president of the Dobbs & Wey Co., general chairman of the committee on convention, is enthusiastic over the outlook for both meetings, that of the commissary men August 9-12, and the merchants' meeting August 12-14. "While the convention is for the purpose of transacting business, there will not be a dull moment for the visitors during the convention. A good time and a big time is assured to all."

"The only one that is going to be disappointed is in the man who fails to attend," said Mr. Percy.

SECOND PERIOD CAMP LOCAL SCOUTS OPEN

First Period Ends After a Successful Encampment. Prize Scouts Named.

Today marks the close of the first period at the Atlanta Scout council camp on Lake McCarty, two miles from Marietta. The camp in every respect has been a distinct success and the campers are loud in their praises of Camp Friendly.

At the final camp-fire Friday night ballots were cast to elect the best all-round camper, second best all-round camper, best woodsman, best boatsman, best swimmer. Every Scout in attendance proved himself a worthy citizen and cast his vote according to his own opinion of their worth. The camp director had prohibited the Scouts from conversing with each other about whom they expected to vote for, and as a result the balloting was an expression of the boys' own individual opinion.

Scout Edward Small of Troop 2, Morris Markey, scoutmaster, was unanimously elected best all-round camper during the first period.

Scout Edwin Nix, of Troop 3, Carl A. Zilling, scoutmaster, was elected second best all-round camper, with a large majority.

Woodman and Swimmer. Scouts Jack Thompson and Frank Barker, of Troop 5, William M. Sentell, scoutmaster, were elected best woodsman and best boatsman of Troop 3, Carl A. Zilling, scoutmaster, was elected best swimmer. Scout Small received as the award as best all-round camper an extra quality Scout blanket, and Scout Nix received as award for second best all-round camper an aluminum cook kit complete. Both of these awards are gifts from Julian Boehn, member of the Atlanta Scout council and also of the Atlanta Scout court of honor. The presentation was made by Camp Director Roland L. Shine.

Another feature of the first period in Camp Friendly was the tent competition. The respective tents were given options on work they desired to do to improve the general surroundings of the camp grounds and for scout tests passed, and for collection of specimens in woodcraft, etc.

The final results are: Beavers, 4.15%; Stags, 3.75%; Tigers, 3.11%;

Fox, 3.16; Bears, 3.101.

Beaver Patrol. The Beaver patrol made a splendid fight for first place and on the last day of camp took the lead and held it. The Beavers had as their patrol leader, Edward Small, who was elected best all-round camper.

At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon four heavy loaded army trucks left the city with the second camp party, who are to be in the camp for the next fourteen days. Largely due to the hearty recommendations given the camp by the first period campers, the second period has been filled to its capacity. There will be some 55 scouts at the camp during the next fourteen days and in addition quite a number of working scouts will attend camp for the week-end.

Visitors' Day. Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, August 2, Colonel Edgar E. Pomroy, president of the Atlanta scout court of honor, will convene a special session at Camp Friendly in order that the first-class scouts present may have an opportunity to appear before the court of honor and receive recognition for the work they have accomplished during the past month.

Saturday, August 7, has been designated as "Visitors' day," when parents and friends of the scouts will be welcomed at camp and are urged to pay a visit in order to see just how the camp is run. The visitors are requested to bring a picnic lunch, as the camp will be unable to accommodate all of them at the camp mess.

Then you will be interested in our annual clearance sale.

Once every year we go through the house and clear our decks. This year we will offer about—

1,000 Cases Floor Goods

These are discontinued lines, irregular sizes (some large, some small)—you take the end that hits you.

Sample cases and some used lines of samples.

In addition we have a few hundred cases of Factory Shoes.

When business slowed down on June 1st we selected from our inventory all odd lots of leather. Most of these we own at much less than we can buy the same grades today.

We made them up on stylish lasts and they will help you if you have demand for good shoes at a medium price. They run in lots of from two to ten dozen—not enough to sample for the road salesmen—so they go in, this sale.

The Prices Will Sell Them On Sight

All shoes will be displayed in cases on the well lighted top floor of the corner annex—entrance 32 Auburn avenue.

It is expected there will be a thousand buyers in Atlanta during Merchants' Week.

OLIVER PLOW WORKS ADDS POPULAR DRILL

The Oliver Chilled Plow works, of this city, has announced to its friends and customers that it has added to its big family of popular farm tool equipment the famous Farmers' Favorite Grain Drill. With the addition of this well known drill the Oliver Chilled Plow works can now offer to its trade a modern and fully equipped line of tools and machinery for the fall and spring seeding of wheat, oats, beans, peas, fertilizers and the like. The Farmers' Favorite Grain drills are made in both grain and fertilizer styles and in every size. No seed is too large and none too small for the Farmers' Favorite Force Feed to sow. The seed is put into the soil right at the bottom of the drill furrow. No spilling on top or half way covering. No clogging and leaving empty furrows. All the seed sprouts, grows and ripens evenly. This insures bigger yields and added profits, so the makers claim. This drill has been on the market for more than fifty years and is used in every grain growing country in the world. It is claimed.

READY-TO-WEAR CO. MAKES IMPROVEMENTS

Workmen were busy with hammer and saw at the factory of the Ready-to-Wear company on Mitchell street during the past week making extensive improvements on the building and enlarging facilities for the manufacture of this firm's well known line of middie suits, blouses and skirts. Demand for this firm's line has called for improvements in order to increase production.

The employees of this firm enjoyed a watermelon cutting Friday afternoon tendered by Mrs. Daisy Forelady, who planned the festive occasion for the employees. Mrs. Daisy is well known among the garment makers of this city and is held in high esteem by the employees of the above firm.

M'CLURE'S MILLINERY OPENING AUGUST 2D

Although the formal opening of McClure's millinery department is announced for August 2, this firm was visited by a number of buyers during the past week.

The company has enlarged its millinery quarters this year, and much more space has been devoted to the display room, as well as the specially equipped work room for customers, which is a distinct feature of the company's service plan. This will enable them to handle many more customers in less time, and at the same time allow customers greater ranges of styles from which to select.

Expert designers, in the employ of the company, will be glad to assist customers in any way, this service, as well as that of the work room, being free.

REGENSTEIN READY FOR BIG SHOWING

J. Regenstein company have issued a cordial invitation to the millinery trade of the south to be present at their showing of millinery merchandise and trimmed models for the season of fall and winter, 1920, which begins on Monday, August 2. The showing will continue for a limited period, and as the Regenstein company is famous for its up-to-the-minute styles and made in head-wear, it naturally follows that it will receive visits from a large number of the buyers of this section.

stein's fall millinery exhibition will be the display of hats trimmed in their own establishment, and which represent the latest in millinery creations.

Useful Birds Multiplying.

(From The Nation's Business.) One of the interesting phases of the agricultural situation is the greatly increased number of all song and insectivorous birds, due to the operation of the federal migratory bird law. The impulse which supported and finally put this law into effect in the form of a treaty with Canada, is typical of the economic spirit of the American people. An idealism which seeks to preserve these beautiful and useful creatures for our pleasure and enjoyment, combined with practical common sense. For these birds are the only protection we have against the innumerable predatory insects which otherwise would destroy all vegetation.

Choose always the way that seems the best, however rough it may be; custom will soon render it easy and agreeable.—Pythagoras. Gossip of London Society

By LADY MARY.

London, July 31. — London is Americanizing such a degree just now that it is difficult to realize the extent of the process that is turning the Strand, Piccadilly, Regent street and Bond street into a compressed version of New York, Chicago and San Francisco—to name only three of the cities whose citizens seem to be drinking deep of the joys of this wonderful old metropolis.

General Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt and their daughter (who was presented at the last court) have left town, but, as I was sitting in the park the other day at the fashionable hour just before lunch I saw Colonel and Mrs. E. M. House strolling past the Achilles statue which is the special landmark of various diverging roads in the famous green space that is one of London's loveliest oases. This point is the center of a circling throng of sightseers during these beautiful summer days and any one who is able to study the difference in nationalities among the strolling thousands can easily distinguish in the majority Americans who seem to be most happily lingering in our midst.

I was lunching at Hotel Victoria recently and found myself surrounded by people from every quarter of the United States. New York seemed to have a specially large number of representatives. Among them I noticed Mrs. Noel, Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton, Mr. H. Crane, Mr. W. M. Atkins and Mr. John Pomphrey. Miss Blanche Davis, from San Francisco, is (according to her own statement) "having the time of her life." Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Booth also say that they are having a most enjoyable time. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. G. while Boston has a representative in Mr. W. Walter. In fact wherever you go, America is greatly in evidence.

Americans Lease Moors.
A great many of our trans-Atlantic visitors are taking an opportunity to fly across the channel rather than go by the more hackneyed method of the channel boats. Mrs. Lawrence McGuire was one among the many who took flight to the gay city recently, while she told that the applications for places in the various aerobuses plying for hire between London and Paris is much greater than can possibly be supplied.

There is great anticipatory enthusiasm in London and elsewhere concerning the Scottish shooting season which will prove one of the most brilliant on record. Immediately before the war, and of course during that period, the shootings were much neglected, and it is only this year that people have begun to realize the extent to which this particular kind of sport has been put to one side.

The famous Inverlochy castle, moors which belong to Lord Abinger, will be occupied by the Hon. Robert Deyereux. The shootings on this estate extend to about 18,000 acres and besides giving about 500 brace of grouse are also supplied with stag and other game as well as excellent salmon fishing in the River Lochy. Lord Burghclere has rented Finsay and its shootings in Dorsetshire. They belong to Colonel Greenhill Gardyne, and it is said that a large shooting party, including Lord and Lady Deedes, the latter formerly Evelyn Gould, the Duke of Marlborough and Lord and Lady Ribblesdale (she was Mrs. John Jacob Astor) will be there during the opening weeks of the season. There are four thousand acres to be shot over at Finsay, and there is also salmon fishing in the South Esk.

Rents Raucous.
A well-known American, Mr. P. Vaughan Morgan, who had Castle Forbes last season, has rented Raucous, near Banbury on the Lee side this season, where shooting parties are shooting over capital sport over 4,000 acres. But the size of this shooting at Castle Forbes pales into insignificance when it is mentioned that 40,000 acres is the extensive ground over which the guests of Mr. P. Haig Thomas, of Glenborrowdale, Ardnamurchan, Argyllshire, can exercise their skill with gun and rod. Besides grouse and many other kinds of Scotch game, there is much stag hunting and splendid fishing.

The castle occupied a beautiful situation on the shore of Loch sunart in one of the wildest districts of the Highlands. The mansion has accommodation for a large number of guests, and the yachting, I am told, is absolutely perfect. What more could a really sporting soul desire of perfect happiness? Next to Castle Forbes in beauty and extent come Glenfiddich in Banffshire, the property of the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, who has let it for the coming season to Lord Furness. This property boasts 34,000 acres of shooting land which yields about 2,000 brace of grouse and from 50 to 60 stags in the season. The Duke and Duchess of Roxburgh are also giving some very extensive shooting parties at Floors castle, Invernesshire. I am also told of the arrival in London of that famous American shipping magnate and all-round sportsman, C. H. Mayer, commonly known in London as well as in New York and Washington as "the Judge." He makes his headquarters at the Ritz hotel, but I hear that he has leased a big Scottish property for the shooting season, and that his yacht in which he ultimately proposes cruising round the world will form one of the special points of interest at the yachting races in the Solent this season.

New Passenger Line.
Judge Mayer, who is president of the France-Canada line of steamships, is starting a brand-new and most sumptuous line of passenger steamers between New York and Southampton. I have heard wonderful stories of the splendor of the equipment that will obtain on these floating palaces. If everything that is said is to be believed, however, it will only be "The New Rich," who will be able to journey in them, so prohibitively high will the price of accommodation be placed.

In echo of the last court of the season came to me the other day when I mentioned admiringly the wonderful old metropolis. The ruby clasps which I observed was worn by the Duchess of Rutland on the occasion.

I was told that this splendid string was originally the property of Nell Gwynne to whom it was given by that gallant, but fickle monarch, Charles II., from whom she received so many favors. Speaking of the Duchess of Rutland reminds me of another member of her circle, Princess Bibesco, who is daughter to the famous Mrs. Asquith. Like her mother, the princess has a pretty wit and can tell a good story when she likes. I heard her talking about the women's suffrage lately. She is not a great adherent to the cause and doesn't mind speaking to her own tale of an election which recently took place, when she overheard a conversation between two women. "Who did you vote for, George?" asked one.

BILLS ARE ISSUED AGAINST TWENTY ALLEGED SLACKERS

Twenty bills for criminal information, the first of approximately 1,000 such bills to be filed in the federal court for the northern district of Georgia against that number of alleged draft delinquents, were filed Saturday in the Atlanta, Columbus and Rome divisions. The bills were filed by Assistant United States Attorney Gordon M. Combs, and consist of alleged incriminating evidence collected by agents of the department of justice.

Mr. Combs is to file additional bills as rapidly as thorough investigations can be made into every case of alleged delinquency. Mr. Combs said Saturday that the policy of the government will be to probe all complaints and reports as thoroughly as possible, in order that no injustice be done innocent parties.

MOVEMENT BEGUN TO BUILD MEMORIAL FOR REV. D. W. GIVEN

A movement has recently been put under way by friends of the late Rev. D. W. Given for the erection of a memorial to his memory. Rev. Given was one of the south's most distinguished Baptist ministers, and for many years was pastor of the First Baptist church in Atlanta.

He was the founder of the Evangelical Ministers Association of Atlanta, and for a time was associate editor of The Christian Index. While in Alabama he founded and edited The Alabama Baptist, one of the leading denominational papers in the state. The monument will be erected through subscriptions given by his friends, and G. S. Prior, 211 Ponce de Leon avenue, has been appointed to receive all contributions.

Orders for Payment For Benning Lands Signed on Saturday

Orders authorizing the payment of $26,621 for certain tracts of land acquired by the war department for Camp Benning were signed Saturday by Judge Samuel H. Subley, and for many years was pastor of the First Baptist church in Atlanta. The monument will be erected through subscriptions given by his friends, and G. S. Prior, 211 Ponce de Leon avenue, has been appointed to receive all contributions.

Real Butterflies for Fashion

Paris Decreed Peacock Trimmings, but America Scores Another Point in the Dress War by Insisting on Even More Gorgeous Beauties for the Ornamentation of Her Gown.

BUTTERFLIES will lead in feminine adornment in the new styles," is Dame Fashion's latest decree. Paris had specified peacocks, including a peacock head-dress. But America, which, as we are beginning to realize more and more, is at war with the French capital over the matter of setting the fashions, has replied by selecting the butterfly.

And the butterfly wins. America has scored one more point in the dress war.

Butterflies, real butterflies, not the cheap, gauzy, colorless imitations, are to be used quite extensively for the adornment of Miss America. They will not be living butterflies of course, for a butterfly can scarcely be treated like a pet cat or a dog, or held captive by a slender gold chain like a Madagascar chameleon.

Instead, they will be preserved butterflies of countless varieties and of the most gorgeous colorings imaginable.

Entomology teaches us, among other things, how to develop the butterfly to a very high degree and then how to put it to sleep quite painlessly so that it may be preserved as radiant as in life for the gratification of collectors and the decoration of milady.

Butterflies are frail and fleeting things at best. They cannot stand much handling. Careful collectors keep them in sealed glass cases where they are quite safe. And so the fashionable girl who goes in for the butterfly style of dress ornamentation must do the same. Her preserved butterflies will be inclosed in gold and silver medallions like watch cases with a covering of glass, mica or maline. And she will wear these in her hair, and as pendants, ear-rings, dress ornaments, bracelets and even shoe buckles.

To meet the anticipated demand for brilliantly-hued butterflies, propagating houses are to be established in various parts of the country where the butterfly is known to thrive best. One of the largest of these is to be opened at Detroit, where, it is promised, three million butterflies are to be developed before the butterfly fashion begins to wane. Detroit's butterfly farm is located on a 22-acre tract on Seven Mile road, adjoining the Entomologists' Institution. Morris A. Strickler, the manager, already has contracts for more than two millions of butterflies on his hands.

Some butterflies are worth more than others. Some may have to be sold by the dozen lot to represent the cost of shipping and postage. Others may be worth hundreds of dollars a pair. Manager Strickler is particularly interested in a report that the British Museum recently paid $30,000 for one butterfly.

Thirty thousand dollars for one butterfly! And some styles of dress trimming and hair dressing may require the use of fifty or a hundred of them!

In the matter of luxuriousness the Parisian peacock never could have approached the American butterfly. The peacock style called for multi-colored jewelry dangling around neck and body and a peacock head-dress. Some women entertain a superstitious aversion to the wearing of peacock feathers and Paris is beginning to realize that.

But there are no superstitions connected with the wearing of butterflies beyond the self-evident fact that it is unlucky for the butterfly. And so the entomological experts are preparing to raise them by hundreds of thousands in anticipation of the enormous demands which, they feel sure, are bound to come their way. It has been found possible to develop several gorgeous new varieties of butterflies by making those of a particularly brilliant hue with others of contrasting and equally vivid colors. The results are declared to be striking in the extreme. Of course the more richly colored the specimens are the higher the price they will command.

So the decree has gone forth abroad that, instead of peacock feathers, a long, uncurled ostrich plume may be worn. But it is predicted that even ostrich plumes set with diamonds and sapphires will fall flat when compared with the forthcoming gorgeous butterfly decorations of the American girl.

WHEN A BEDTIME SONG IS NOT WHAT IT SEEMS

Stars I See Up - In the Sky - Down to Me They'd - Like to Fly - Now This Way Now - That They Try - But They'll Never Get - Out of the Sky

By Mrs. Henry Symes

LITTLE girls like to play; little girls like to sing; but little girls (and big) don't like to exercise!

name (so that they will be sure to do it), and that is exercise. Of course, there are games which can be played so that the child gets the proper health exercise, but I am not speaking of them. I mean the real beauty exercises.

The most lovely thing about a beautiful girl, next to a pretty face, is a lovely neck. And it's never too early to begin to get one! That neck mustn't be too thin; it mustn't be too fat. Exercise is the solution to both problems. The right exercise will make it exactly right.

Just five minutes each night spent in this exercise will work wonders with the growing child's neck. Not only that, but it will see to it that the child's neck grows up in the way it should grow.

Now, here is the plan. Teach the child the little song here given about the stars. (The habit of song, by the way, is a very commendable one in a child, and you can do wonders to encourage it. Sing yourself as you are about your work. That will stimulate the child's imitableness.)

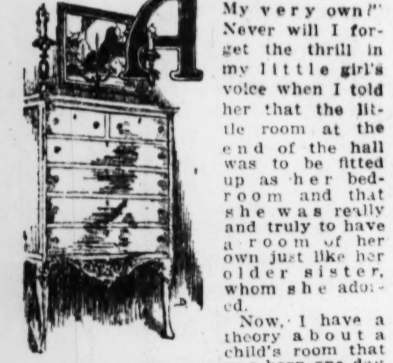

As the child sings and then repeats this song several times, let her throw her head back as far as it will go, to look at the stars, then forward on her chest, to look at the floor, whence those stars would like to come, then first to one side and then the other, to show the ways they are trying to get out of the sky to fall down to her—and there you have it, a perfect motion song—and, better still, a perfect neck exercise!

Sometimes the child does not wish to go to bed, because she is not sleepy. Then tell her that the Sandman will come quickly from the Land of Nod if she teases him. Tell her to pretend that she is nodding, and the Sandman spying her thus will think she is really asleep and will come quickly to deposit his sands. Now, to play this game of teasing the Sandman, teach the child to nod, her head falling back and then down upon her chest. The truth about this nodding is that it really does stimulate sleepiness, but, better still for our purpose, it develops the neck just beautifully. If you vary the bedtime song occasionally with this game, neither are likely to become undesirable to the child. Education is working wonders thru play. Why can't exercise?

THE HANDY WOMAN ABOUT THE HOUSE

THE LITTLE GIRL'S ROOM

By Josephine Dix

ROOM of my own? My very own? Never will I forget the thrill in my little girl's voice when I told her that the little room at the end of the hall was to be her room, and that she was really and truly to have a room of her own just like her older sister, whom she adored.

Now, I have a theory about a child's room that was born one day while paying a visit to a friend whose attic up there were two suites of small furniture that had belonged to my sister and me when we were small. The beds were small, the bureau was small, and the chiffoniers were small. Consequently when we grew so tall that we complained that our feet hit the ends of the beds, they had to be sent to the attic and new ones had to be bought for us. At that time our father had not much money as when we were small children, and the second suites had to be cheap affairs which we both grew to hate as we saw some of the pretty furniture that our friends had in their bedrooms.

I determined that my children's rooms would not be furnished twice, but that the first suite would be the kind that they could use all their lives. I made up my mind that instead of spending our money on two suites of furniture, it would all be put into one, and that the children should be taught to respect and care for their furniture.

So when I told my youngest child that she was to have a room of her own, I meant that it was to be an attractive one. I had worked out my theory on my oldest daughter with success, and now it was the little one's turn. Up to this time, her little crib had been in one corner of my own room.

I had been saving for this event, so that week I went shopping joyously. I did not buy everything at that time, however, as there were a few things she would not need right away, but this was the room as it finally stood.

The woodwork was painted white and the walls papered in cheerful light yellow in a two-toned stripe. The general color scheme was gentian blue with touches of soft yellow and blue violet, the color of real violets! Most of the furniture I bought was walnut, the soft brown walnut that is used in these days for her bed. I bought a broad, low day bed. This was low enough for her to climb into without assistance, and I knew when she grew up it could be used as a couch if she preferred a regular bed to sleep in.

Dressing tables are always low, so the one I chose for her could be used any time in her life. The chest of drawers was low enough for her to be able to reach the top drawer when she was old enough to dress without assistance. This chest could be used at any time, for while it was low, it was very broad and was not built for a child. When she was old enough to write letters, I bought one of the small desks that are patterned after the old melodeons. This was small enough for a little girl but not too small to be used when she grew up. In fact, I should not have bought a larger one for myself unless I had intended putting it in a big living room. This was a convenient desk for any bedroom.

I bought two chairs for her room that were intended for her own use, and added a few more full-sized ones for the use of the grown-ups who might be in the room. The two that I bought for her could be used when she grew up. One was a dear little rush-bottomed, ladder-back chair that we painted blue. It would find its use as a slipper chair when she was old, or as a small, low, overstuffed armchair. In choosing it, I was careful to pick out one that I could sit in, too, and yet it was low enough for her. A chair of this sort is always useful in a room.

The only bit of furniture that was really bought for her childish days was a low table which we painted blue to match the chair, but even that could probably be used as a flower stand before a sunny window. As for the rest of the furnishings, they were charming: A blue, two-toned carpet rug; alluring cretonne, with sprigling flowers and gay little birds (how she did love those birds); in blue, soft yellow and bits of violet; a dainty little desk set in yellow; low bookcases which could be built to any height as she needed them; shelves in the lower part of her closet for her toys; pretty little flower bowls and ornaments that were given her from time to time. All her treasures were where she wanted them.

Instead of the extremely childish pictures usually seen in little girls' bedrooms, I chose some of the reproductions of the old masters that would be interesting to her and yet give her something to grow up to. Don't think for a moment that this room was not a little girl's room. It was for there was no time to make it anything but a child's room. Most of them grew up without ever having owned a piece of furniture that is worth caring for. Give a child good furniture, teach him to love it and care for it, and he will always respect good furniture.

for me to take her a little gift? If so, what will be appropriate? Shall I give to my friend alone or to her mother also? Thanking you for your trouble, I am, sincerely, S. M.

DEAR S. M.: Certainly take her a present if you wish. It should be just some dainty trifle, however, such as a collar, several attractive handkerchiefs or a book. To her mother, take a box of chocolates or some flowers.

DEAR ELAINE: Conventions in mourning apparel are much less strict for a young woman than for a widow. Hence black taffeta, tulle and all-white frocks without trimmings may also be worn. Of course, all mourning frocks should be very plain and simply made.

Solutions to Social Problems

They Do Not Keep Their Appointments

DEAR Mrs. Adams: We are two girls if years old. About two weeks ago we met two young men and they made several dates with us. When we see them again they make excuses for their absence and want to make appointments for the future. We should we continue to make engagements with them? Are we too young to go with young men?

Our parents object to our going out with boys or even speaking to them, so when we go out with boys we have to leave them a square or two from home. The boys do not seem to like us for that reason. What should we tell them?

HAZEL AND BROWN EYES: The boys evidently do not mean to keep their appointments and make a new engagement each time to get out of the difficulty. I certainly should not agree to meet them hereafter. You should not make engagements to meet boys outside of your own home. That is rather common, you know, and by so doing you will lose a part of that dignity which is a young girl's most precious possession.

You are not too young to have boy friends, if your parents approve. Why not talk matters over with them? If your boy friends are gentlemen and worthy, I am sure that your parents will not object to your having both boys and girls come to see you. It is wrong to go against their wishes and meet boys clandestinely, however.

To Reduce
DEAR Mrs. Symes, publish again the diet for reducing. I find it very hard to get a well-balanced diet of the foods which are not fattening. MRS. M. C.

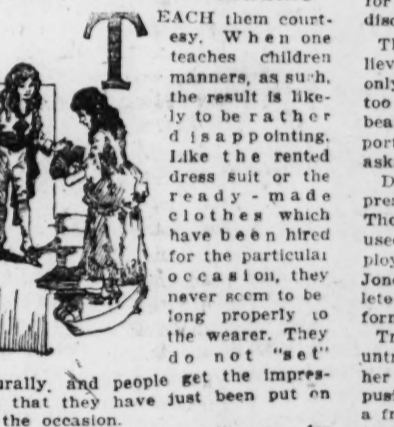

I am printing below a diet which will give you quite a long list of foods from which to choose. Even these must be eaten with moderation, however. Do not neglect daily exercise, and remember that the diet will be valueless if it is not adhered to regularly.

The Care of the Feet
DEAR Mrs. Symes: I am very much troubled with tender and perspiring feet. They are especially annoying in the summertime. After a game of tennis or a walk they often become sore and swollen and large blisters form. I shall be very grateful if you will tell me what to do to relieve this troublesome condition. MIRIAM R.

In the summertime one is continually using one's feet for a great variety of outdoor sports. It is not surprising that the heavy soles worn for sports will cause the soles to burn and the heels to blister. At this season of the year the feet need an extra amount of care. They should be kept scrupulously clean, but not too much soap should be used. The best treatment is warm water, good powder, plenty of air and

DON'T TEACH THE CHILDREN MANNERS

By Mrs. Chester Adams

EACH then courtesy. When one teaches children manners, as such, the result is likely to be rather negative. Like the rented dress suit or the ready-made clothes which have been hired for the particular occasion, they never seem to be long properly to the wearer. They do not "wear" naturally, and people get the impression that they have just been put on for the occasion.

Ordinary rules of politeness for children are so easily forgotten. But teach the child thoughtfulness, and manners come with it quite unobtrusively. Original little speeches born of courtesy are far better than the cut-and-dried little sentences bred of manners. In other words, it is the old story of the spirit of the law rather than the letter of it. Teach the child to be thoughtful of the comfort of others, and the spirit of courtesy will take root. Thorough good breeding, and its by-product, good manners, come only from a consideration for others and an appreciation of one's own dignity. Local customs and manners, which vary with time and place, are but the small coins of good breeding and are easily picked up when one has the fundamental principle. Take, for example, your child of the fact that the foundation stone of good breeding is nothing more or less than the golden rule. Do unto others as you would they should do unto you. A child taught in this manner knows that courtesy is due to inferiors as well as to superiors and equals; that no age, no matter how exacting of old age, is to be treated with respect. A ready appreciation of the fitness of things, which arises from a native sympathy with all sorts of people, will be there to help out in all the unexpected moments of social intercourse for which no code of manners could be quite sufficient. Remember that much depends upon the child's home environment. An attractive home, clean clothes and an atmosphere of harmony between the older members of the family will be a greater help in teaching the child to be courteous than a score of rules. Of course, just as a person with an idea must know the rules of grammar in order to express that idea properly, so the child with the spirit of courtesy must be given a few general rules by which to express properly that spirit. Teach the child not to contradict; another; that if there is a difference of opinion, some phrase such as "I beg your pardon, but—" should accompany it. No well-bred child will attempt to correct an elder even in

The Chump and the Champ by Jack Lait

"A Boob What Plays Another Guy's Game Is a Fish," Observes the Canada Kid, and Proves It.

SOME ONE grew famous once—so famous that I cannot at this moment call his name—by writing a song entitled "The Victim Was the Wise Guy After All." Likewise one of the surest prescriptions for writing popular stuff has always been to pattern the plot after the fable in which the tortoise beat the hare and the tale in which David slew Goliath.

There are two reasons why the type of yarns in which the weak lick the strong get favored attention. First, because such instances are rare; second, because most of us are victims, hares, and Davids, and we dream of outwitting wise guys, outrunning hares, and slaughtering Goliaths. The first reason gives such stories their selling value and the second their buying value.

In everyday life an occasional Dempsey does reach up and knock down a decadent Willard; a dark horse does now and then nose out a favorite that bore a drunken jockey; a Prohibition party of a few hundred thousand does upset a nation of millions of drinking voters—once; a man may, between blue moons, be sued by a pretty woman and not be swamped by the verdict; a husband may slip over a teeny alibi on his ir spouse who has been sitting up for him up after midnight. But in this same everyday life the scales generally balance with the heavier side down. Miracles are all very well, and one who profits by a miracle should be unduly grateful—but it isn't safe to bet on one.

And that is as it should be, or why did Providence give strength to the strong and brains to cheaters? Gold is finer than doughnuts, but not heavier, so gold should meet doughnuts in a contest other than weight. If gold, which already has so much to its advantage, swells all up and thinks it is heavy, too, let gold pay the wager and learn a lesson in the standard of values. But human folk are a perverse breed. The excellent clown yearns to play Hamlet, the superior financier craves to shake the shimmy, the best waitress in Cedar Rapids itches to write moving pictures, and the foremost kindergarten instructor pants to be a vamp.

This being thus, perhaps the following is therefore:

The Canada Kid, champion pickpocket, walked out of a railway ticket office in a northern city with a long strip of transportation, destination Wichita Falls, Tex. He arrived there via Fort Worth, at something before breakfast time, a. m. He had heard somewhat of Wichita Falls—he had heard that it was crowded; this "tip" had not a little to do with his going there, for crowded places were to the Canada Kid the snappy hunting grounds. He found that the information was correct. Men, all sorts of men, were lined three deep about the quadrilateral lunch counter in the depot. The Kid horned in, and in time laid away a couple of soggy buns and a crock of coffee. He looked twice at the coffee, once before he tasted it and once after, and mused: "An' they call me a crook!"

Even at the early hour which found the alien crusader abroad upon the walks of Wichita Falls those walks were alive with men. Women were rare. But men jostled and pushed, stewed and rushed. The Kid, used to congestion and not hostile to it, viewed with wonder the going and coming and ever increasing throngs, nipping a watch now and again as he wondered and nicking a purse or two as he viewed. The main current in the mob seemed to lead to an objective on the main thoroughfare, a dusty, paveless street. Ah—it was a hotel! In truth, it was the hotel.

In the oil boom days of Wichita Falls, which saw a rush such as the Klondike never knew, when oil and insanity and millions and hot air flowed like beer used to at a German picnic (both now obsolete), this town, built for some five or six thousand inhabitants, was the bee-hive of ten times the limit of its capacity. Standing room in that hotel lobby was something to wait hours for. What had been a grocery store at $20 a month was now thirty offices, each at $100, with imaginary lines to mark off the headquarters of flotation corporations, refinery syndicates, leasehold speculation combinations, engineering firms, gusher melon cutting eleemosynary institutions, imaginary oil well promotion pools, brokerage bourses, and stock exchanges. New York is a pretty sizeable town and has three stock exchanges; Wichita Falls had 300.

The Kid saw stocks hawked up and down the walks like bananas. Blackboards stood upright beside the curbs and men in shirt-sleeves ballyhooed. "I offer 3,000 shares Little Lone Star well, 180 yards from the famous 6,000 barrel gushers of Burk-Burnett. What am I bid? Make a bid, gents—chance of a lifetime. Ah—10%—10%—10%—10%—10%—10 and what? Gentlemen! Less than half a mile from this location Tom Grant brought in three wells. What am I—11—11—I have 3,000 shares—11%—make it 12%, brother, and take the block. It'll make you independent for life. See the gentleman for 12%. I have here 4,000 shares of—"

It came from all sides and in all voices. Wild eyed men were comparing notes and opinions and hopes and dreams and flashy looking stocks, clutching them like young-sters with polychrome marbles.

Buildings were going up on every corner. Down the streets huge trucks were shaking the earth and behind them and on all sides of them mule drivers were profanely urging their animals to pull huge loads. The drivers had oil stocks protruding from their overalls pockets. Wherever a vacant space was left it was stacked with cots, uncovered unsheltered, frequently even uninclosed. The cots were to let at Ritz-Carlton rates per night, no per relay, for some slept by day and some slept by night.

"I says to myself the racket is for me to hitch my wagon to a star; by that I mean team up with somebody what knows what I don't know, see?"

Those who were not selling or buying at any moment were gossiping. They were retelling tales of overnight fortunes. There was the hotel stenographer who had been given ten shares of stock in Hyena No. 22 for her services in drawing up the papers for an option on the lease and within a month she had sold the ten shares for $10,000. There was the broker's clerk who had forgotten to make an entry of a sale of 1,000 shares just a moment before closing time, and by the time he recorded it, just a moment after opening time next morning, the shares had doubled, and he pocketed the difference—a small fortune. A churchyard had been drilled between the graves of its departed, and the church had struck a spouter that would build it a stone cathedral and endow four orphan asylums and a Senegambian mission. A waiter in a quick lunch had laughingly taken a certificate of stock for a tip from a disappointed plunger who was leaving the region—a week later he bought the restaurant with it and had enough left for a diamond stud in his hickory shirt.

The kid, a prime "mixer," had all the local small talk before noon. He didn't believe most of it, being by nature constitutionally skeptical. But he realized that not all of this could be wind. There must be oil, though he had never seen any except in a can, and there certainly was plenty of loose money.

The name of Tom Grant was spoken more often than any other. The Kid was interested. Ranches, banks, companies, villages, a street, were named for Tom Grant. He must be "the berries" about Wichita Falls. The Kid began to feel that he was small fry, darting here and there and stealing a miserly few hundred when all about him men were chatting in millions. He calculated that, if he could meet up with this Grant he, with his oft-tried engaging personality, his metropolitan approach, his wise wit, and his deft delivery, could strike a responsive and profitable note in this Grant and mayhap "turn a trick" on an "inside steer."

It possessed the Kid so thoroughly that he began to have a contempt for his own art. How much could he steal from other men's pockets? A few dollars—a few hundreds, a few thousands. What a penny snatching vocation it was, though, down here where men without any special talents, men without any of the great gifts of drawing the diffident dollar from its sanctuary, were slopping about in wealth up to their dirty elbows! They weren't oil men—no, the men who pierced the earth and made the magic fluid to flow were day laborers—these were parasites, harpies, wise Alocs who contributed nothing and extracted the cream. They were crooks like himself, only their graft was within the law. They took no chances, most of them having arrived with nothing much to lose in the first place. They lived, somehow, off each other, but many grabbed big bank balances out of it.

The Kid looked about him and swept Wichita Falls with his eyes.

"Them what hook the kale here earn it for bein' here," he mused. "But the blessing is, a guy don't have to stick here after he cops. This mazzima is currency in the United States, too. The gag is to corral a oil mine down here an' have a winter hut in Palm Beach, a summer ranch in Maine, a autumn bungalow on Riverside drive, an' a spring shanty in Pasadena. But—how does a party freeze onto one o' them prairie syringes what squirts the oil?"

Again he thought of Grant.

"If I'm gonna dip in the good citizens' jeans, that's the bird I wanna touch," he concluded, and he walked toward the hotel, waited his time until he could sandwich in, and addressed a few of the acclimated, deflected the talk to Grant. He found a shabby looking man from Montana, who explained that he had been so busy buying and selling the zigzagging and whipsawing stocks that he hadn't found time to buy any new clothes—"and these are all wore out and shiny from rubbing against the crowds"—who seemed to know Grant well. Any one who had been in the region more than a week could claim that honor, the Kid later learned. The Montana millionaire was not averse to being taken to luncheon, and in time the Kid seated him at a glazed tin table and let him order without stint. During the meal he got an epitome of Grant.

He ascertained that Grant had three powerful weaknesses: Southerners, cattle, and his son Carson.

Several had told him of Grant, and the substance of what they all said, concentrated, jibed with what the shiny four-flush from Montana related in detail. The Kid was satisfied.

He paid for the meal and went out to get his prospecting tools. He felt a trifle silly for a moment, making elaborate preparations against a man he had never seen and who did not know he existed, but he stood, picking his solid gold filled teeth on a corner, soliloquizing:

"How did them '49ers get their pile? They read or heard there was gold in the ground an' then went an' bought picks an' shovels and went after it. Well, there's gold in this here Grant, so it's up to me, as a prospector, to get my workin' clothes an' the appropriate machinery an' go dig into him."

He bought a sombrero as big as a pup tent, a pair of high heeled boots, a bandanna handkerchief to replace his soft silk collar and dandy cravat, and some "makin's." He practiced in an undertone a southern dialect that was a hash of vaudeville blackface lingo, east side gutter patois, and the Dixie drawl as he heard it about him from the southwestern natives. Dressed like a ranchman in good circumstances and equipped with his hybrid enunciation, he moved on Grant.

He had been informed that the eccentric millionaire always made his bank deposits in person, arriving at the bank of which he was president at about ten minutes before closing time. The Kid "laid for" him and presently saw his prey.

Grant was not picturesque. He looked like a Texan, but not like the transplanted Lone Star of Hoyt or Hoyle. He was very tall and rawboned, past 70, with a stubble on his cheeks and chin, and his iron gray hair not short enough to be orderly nor long enough to be romantic. Instead of breeches and boots or puttees he wore sagging trousers, warped and worn at the knees, supported by two-bit suspenders over a blue flannel shirt unbuttoned at his skinny throat and unadorned by anything save three glaring white fresh water pearl buttons. His shoes were dusty and trodden far out of shape. On his head he wore a Pawnee Bill hat, black, not dented or shaped. A Pawnee Bill hat, be it known, differs from a Buffalo Bill hat in that it is much smaller and the brim is circular rather than elliptical; the crown is like an inverted stew pot and is not creased or otherwise influenced from its original contour.

The Kid coughed a trifle. Here he was, caparisoned like a Comanche, to impress this superannuated chromo who looked like an impecunious truck farmer bent under a 7 per cent mortgage. However, the Kid knew his clothes were bona fide Texas, for he had bought them there; but they were Fifth Avenue, so to think, whereas Grant's were Second Avenue, and in town millionaires might choose to wear rags but would still "fall for" the smartly dressed.

The Kid waited until Grant emerged, then addressed him in that easy manner he had, that nickel plated address with which he had convinced strangers who caught his hand in their pockets that he had put it here to give them something. Grant stopped and looked him over.

It was too trying to attempt the phonetics of the Kid's counterfeited southern jargon with an alphabet of only twenty-six letters, so his talk will be here transcribed in his natural slang and the reader may imagine the localized version as the Canada Kid "put it on" for his picked "chump":

"Yur're Mr. Grant, ain't you?" he breathed.

Grant nodded.

"I come a long way to see you. My name is Sherill—Short Horn—Sherill, they call me down in Arizona where I live, becuz I specialize in short horns."

Tom Grant's eyes flitted. A cattleman—and a southerner!

"What all can I do for you?" he asked. "You say you come a long ways for to see me?"

"Yes, sir. It's about your son."

"My boy—Carson—what mischief has he gone an' messed himself up in now?"

"O, nothin' unpleasant, Mr. Grant—nothin'. I never met him—wouldn't know him if he walked up to us now. But—where can we have a little gas—I mean sit down an' chin a few?"

"Well, sah, will you come with me to the club?"

"Honored, sir."

Tom Grant took his guest into the Alamo club, seated him at a table in a corner of the cool grill, lumberingly lifted his feet on the table without a move toward taking off his hat, barked at a colored attendant to bring a bottle from his locker and be dog-whistling quick about it, and a gallon of cracked ice, then lolled back to hear what this ingratiating stranger who personified two of his possessing predilections should say about the third.

"It's like this," said the Kid. "I may be loco or cuckoo, but in my country, Cisco county, Ariz., there's a lot of oil talk, like there is everywhere. All the gossip o' Wichita Falls an' all 'round here is muffled over an' turned inside out. Well, I admit I kind o' got the oil fever out o' all this here pro an' this here con what I been listenin' at."

"I see. But you said my son—"

"Beg pardon, Mr. Grant, I was jus' comin' to that. Well, I says to myself, I got a few hundred acres an' a few thousand short horns rompin' 'round with my brand on 'em. But how much does it get me? A little, yes; but here's a lot o' tramps from the north—now, I don't know how you feel about it, but I stand stiff against them Yanks comin' down here an' takin' southern money out o' the south by their slick methods—ah, I'm glad you agree with me, sir. I was afraid maybe a man o' your importance, havin' so many connections everywhere, might not stand for that sentiment, but it goes—I'm a southerner an' for southerners."

"Well, as I was sayin', I says to myself if these here foreigners can come into the oil country an' take out big killins', why can't I? But my ol' daddy used to say to me, 'Son, a man playin' another man's game on the other man's home grounds is a fool.' So, me knowin' mighty little about oil an' its many intricick twists, I says to myself the racket is for me to hitch my wagon to a star; by that I mean team up with somebody what knows what I don't know, see?"

"O' course, in all them oil tanks, the name o' Tom Grant is mentioned in about every secon' breath, like you'd mention Charlie Chaplin when you're chewin' movies, or Pershing when you're conversin' milit'ry. An' I come to learn that you're the big man in this section—so big, says I to myself, that he prob'ly wouldn't even talk to me. But somebody drops a hint about you havin' a boy, a boy Carson, about my age."

"Carson is—let me see, sah—Carson is 29. 'Well, I'm 30,' said the Kid, who was 41. 'From what they tell me, your boy ain't c'nected in no reg'lar business.'"

"That's right," said Grant. "Carson is a puzzle and a worry to me. He's always had too much money, I reckon. I tried to make a cattleman out of him, but he's too lazy. I tried to make a banker out of him, but he wouldn't get up no interest in it. I tried to send him to college, but they thought him a bit wild and he come home again. He runs around after girls in shows that come down here, and he drinks more than a young fellow should—or, rather, he don't stand the proper amount of drink as well as a young fellow should. Sometimes I get pretty blue about it, stranger. And so you heard, 'way up in 'Zony, that my boy ain't in no reg'lar business. H'm—I didn't know it had got around like that."

"Well, don't let it break you up. This here may be the solution. You know—a child shall lead 'em, see? I says to myself that as long as my daddy was alive to give me what I need I was pretty harum scarum myself. But when responsibilities fell on my shoulders I become a man. Now, what I had the nerve to figger out—an' mebbe it might appeal to you—is that if you put the kid—29 is only a kid, after all—on his own mebbe he might come through great. He sure must have good blood in him. It's like a bull calf; it ain't much account before its weaned, but when it gets to bullhorn it'll start a stampede. Do I make myself clear?"

"I think so. You see—"

"Exactly. Now, if Carson, instead o' his indulgent dad with millions at the end o' his fountain pen, was linked up with a feller about his own age, about his own style, wouldn't he mebbe take a different view o' things? Couldn't his partner, if he had one an' felt he was fifty-fifty, say things to him that his own father couldn't? This may all be 'way off the track, but again it might jus' hit you right. I'm prospectin'—I admit it. But that was my idee? Now, what's the answer, sir?"

The old millionaire looked at the disguised pickpocket for several seconds in silence. Then he sipped his toddy and said:

"There's undoubtedly a great deal in what you say, sah."

"Myself, I dislike the oil business. It's made this section rich, but it's ruined it—ruined it, sah. I, of course, was pretty well off before ever they thought of oil here. I own upwards of a million acres—cattle land, sah, cattle land. I didn't know within a few million o' what I was worth when Wichita Falls was a country crossroads. Those were fine days, those were. We rode the plains, and the nearest railroad was three days away on horseback. Men were men, and all the men were Texans—at least southerners."

"Now look at it—the state overrun with shysters and thieves and schemers and steers and touts and swindlers and bootleggers and blacklegs and promoters. I got one tract o' land down here a piece where I let 'em sink some wells. I get $25,000 a week royalty out of it, yes. But they've spoiled the land, sah. It ain't fit for decent cattle to graze on any more. They trample it all up, these hoodlums from the north, who have no respect for alfalfa or buff'lo grass, they haven't; they leave my gates open, an' last week I lost three heifers that I wouldn't have took $15 apiece for, sah. And look at what they've made out o' this yare town. Where that bank stands—my bank—I used to have a ranch house. There wasn't none 'round here but my men. Today you can't walk two feet without you're jostled by a lot o' Polacks an' other New Yorkers an' the riffraff from the slums o' the world. Do you wonder I dislike the business an' the men what killed Texas socially?"

"But, leavin' out my personal prejudices, the oil is here, an' it's here to stay. So us few natives still left might as well make the best of it an' recognize that what is 'is. There's oil in the ground; there's oil in the air; there's oil in the blood nowdays in Texas. I do s'pose if my Carson wanted to go into business he'd go into oil. An' there may be much in what you say, sah; he might take int'rest if he doubled up with a partner, a stranger. I'd be glad to finance the deal, of course. I'd do anything to get Carson out o' his downright ornery ways."

"Well, that's mighty fine o' you, Mr. Grant," said the Kid.

"Call me Tom, sah—a southerner and a cattleman—call me Tom."

"Thanks. Tom, then; call me Pete. Now, Tom, I was gonna say it'd be ridiculous for me to tell you I'd be willin' to put up some o' my own money, too—you havin' so much that it wouldn't hardly make no difference to you. But as an evidence o' good faith—"

"Whup! Your good faith is took on faith, Pete, in Texas by a Texan. We pride ourselves on acceptin' a gentleman on his face until he shows us we mustn't. Now, I'll tell you what we'll do, Pete. You meet me down at my home, about five mile down past where this yare street ends—anybody'll show you Tom Grant's home—for dinner tomorrow. Dinner is served at 11:30."

The Kid looked up with a question in his eyes.

"Yes, Pete, we roust out early on Tom Grant's home ranch. We have dinner before noon and supper at half past 4. After dinner I usually drive or ride into town. I still ride mostly, but once in a while I use one o' my cays; for speed, only, when I need speed—otherwise I'd rather loaf in on my good cayuse than holl back like a blame dude in them stuffed cushions in one o' them machines. You be at my house for dinner and we'll talk this yare over. If we come to terms—and I don't reckon we'll have any words over such as that—us two can come up to town and we'll start off right away. Carson won't be home till tomorrow night, bein' down in Dallas, visitin' with a musical show which played here night before last."

"So I want to have everything in shape and ready when he gets back, and I know he'll like you. It won't be like asking him to start something—Carson ain't much of a starter—it'll be here, all waitin'. We'll call it the Carson Grant Oil company, and I'll give you rights to drill on a piece o' land o' mine down here a bit that a lot o' sharpshooters has been after me to let 'em lease. I'm pretty sure you'll hit a gusher. Now, it costs about $20,000 to sink one o' them holes. So I'll deposit $25,000 for you when we get into town, which I'll happen to have on me in currency, as the weekly royalties is due in the mornin', and they're always payable in cash, f. o. b. my house. That'll allow you all a little loose change for incidentals. Of course, we'll draw up papers—I hire a couple o' lawyers by the year in town here—and have everything reg'lar. By the time Carson gets back he'll be half owner in a great prospect, and if you touch off oil, as I know you will, maybe he'll work up a spark of enthusiasm and stick around here some. Agreed?"

The Kid tried to effuse, but Tom Grant dismissed it by shaking hands and again reminding of his appointment. Then the gaunt Texan departed, having first put his guest up at the club for the night.

Promptly at 11:28 Peter Sherill, of Arizona, alias the Canada Kid of New York, Danemora, and Chicago, drew up before Tom Grant's house in a hired touring car.

"I guess everything'll be aces here," thought the Kid, but, as a precaution, he told the driver to wait a few yards past the gate; it is a poor crook that forgets to leave his retreat open, even though retreat looms unlikely. It is the long shot retreat that is the most important if it has to be made.

Grant received his guest heartily and stuck half a tumbler of red liquor in the hand that he had just shaken. The Kid was not a guzzler, but, left he suffer in the native's good opinion, he choked down the dose. Grant was a widower. He and the Kid "dined" alone. During the meal the old man talked in spirited vein of the proposed venture; he had slept on it and he liked it better as he went along. He had had many proposals with more foundation and more reason. But this one had won his fancy, mainly because he liked the Kid, a factor that influences more trades in this life than does any other known to humans.

Dinner over, Grant lit a stogie and said: "And now, Pete, we'll go to town. I've got that $25,000 in here," and he pointed to his breast, where there was evidently an inside pocket in the flannel shirt, "and we'll consummate the Carson Grant Oil company."

The Kid beamed. It was all legitimate. He knew that Grant owned untold fortunes in untouched oil properties; he knew that Grant's abiding passion was his son, and he knew that if Grant parceled a piece to his son he knew it was no "dead one"—could

By HORATIO LANKFORD KING
AS TOLD TO THE AUTHOR

CHAPTER I.

At Phoenix temptation again inter-fered with all my good resolutions to cut out gambling and whisky and become a cattle king. And though still deceiving myself with the notion of going on some ranch, out of the reach of liquor and cards and earning an honest living by the sweat of my brow, I thought it would be in the way of a pleasant diversion to stop over in Phoenix for a few days and see the sights. Then I would go on to the ranch my detective friend had told me about and to the owner of which he had given me a letter of introduction.

And like most all other towns in the far west in those days, Phoenix was wide open and boasted a population, a large percentage of which was composed of this floating class of citizens who were either constantly on the track of the blind leads of easy fortune, or as expeditiously removing themselves at regular intervals of time to new and shifting scenes for the main purpose of eluding the clutch of the law. They were the class of people—not all, of course, but a fair percentage of them—who were known as the "catt come backs;" men who were wanted back east for one good reason or another. Some were swindlers, others embezzlers of banks, and a good many more just plain crooks and escaped jailbirds; and still others were of my own caliber—wandering adventurers, matching their cunning against the cunning of other adventurers, without home and without moral scruples. And of all those rare birds of the criminal world, the man-killer was the most respected—often, the man-killer, going west for no other purpose than to begin life over again, went into some legitimate business, became the president of a bank, the promoter of some local enterprise, or the mayor of the town.

But, as a whole, not a very promising lot they were; yet some part of the country had to receive them to its bosom, so Arizona and New Mexico took them under their wings whether those two territories wanted them or not. Of course conditions have changed very much since then, just as they have in west Texas and along the border country. The people of Arizona are today as law-abiding as any class of people in any other older part of the United States; and Phoenix, like most of the cities, can now boast of being one of the most up-to-date little cities of the entire west.

It is now a veritable Garden of Eden, is Phoenix, filled with beautiful homes and magnificent public buildings. And El Paso is now the thrifty metropolis of a country six hundred miles across in an direction her seven or eight trunk line railroads lead! She has her skyscrapers, her numerous plazas and her public parks, including the city flat and the more pretentious apartment house.

But back to my main theme. Having decided to remain over a few days in Phoenix, it was but a natural sequence that I should break the remainder of my weak resolution—gamble and get jingled. And having first gotten good and well jingled, as a preliminary to further descents from grace, I sought an opportunity to try my luck at cards. I say luck; but I really meant to employ again all the crooked artifices of my skill as a shuffler of the pasteboards. I did not mean to rely on luck at all—in fact, never again! And no real professional, and I mean by that the man who gambles for a living, ever does depend on his luck, for he knows that it is against the scientific economies of the game to play honest. And if he plays honest, he is not sure of a bed and three meals a day. Hence, the "real name and title of the gambler, the professional gambler, is social parasite and thief. And whisky and cards are as inseparable as the Siamese twins. The devil made them so. A man first begins to drink and then he begins to gamble; or he first begins to gamble and then he drinks.

I always began a game with a drink; and the longer I played the more I drank—and smoked. Well, I was not an hour in Phoenix before I had imbibed several drinks, and the rest was the sort of history which forever repeats itself in the life of a professional gambler.

My fortunes, upon my arrival in Phoenix, had almost dwindled to nothing; and realizing the utter necessity of speedily replenishing my purse or going bedless and hungry, I decided it would be better to put up a few crooked games rather than take the chances of having to reduce my daily food supply. And when I tell you that even in those cheap days I was taxed fifty cents for two fried eggs and fifteen cents more for a cup of coffee, which would have been very efficacious as an emetic for a person with a weaker stomach than mine, the reader will readily realize the exigency of the moment.

And being well jingled, but not so very drunk, therefore in a most optimistic frame of mind, I sallied forth to seek an initial victim, undoubting. It was a hot day—as hot and dry as a bake oven—and as I slowly traversed the length of the main street, lined with rustling cottonwoods, with a slight stagger in my gait, I noticed through the tall of my observant and humor-lit eyes that the entire population was in its shirt-sleeves and lounging, voiceless and apathetic of countenance, beneath the friendly shade of the big cottonwoods. Little groups of idle men, some booted and spurred, observing my dignified but exaggerated attempts to keep my feet firmly planted on terra firma and the pleasant gleam in my eyes, greeted me jocosely—but never in a tone of actual insult. And I returned their quips in kind.

It was a vanity of mine to want to be accepted as a sort of "good-natured, romantic-looking young gentleman desperado; and I exerted infinite pains to look the part in the matter of a careful and studied selection of my clothes. I wore on this occasion a natty stiff-brimmed western hat, with a red and white cowhide band, shiny high French heel boots, the heels of which hit the hard adobe pavements with an impressive, explosive sound, and I lacked a good deal of just being ordinary-looking. In fact, in El Paso the Mexicans had dubbed me, "El joven hermoso Americano;" the handsome young American; and the women often looked at me twice, and sometimes they even smiled. To top off my sartorial elegance, I affected a soldierly stride, holding my arms close to my sides, unwinding, as I had once read was the proper and most approved method of carrying oneself with becoming grace. Even when drunk, I never forgot for an instant to keep my arms close to my sides and plank down my heels with a quick staccato of energetic thuds. I wore a black suit and a gray Windsor tie, the latter the absolute shade of my eyes. My hair was worn rather long, inclined to wave and of a deep chestnut-brown—and like the rest of me, it was sleek and shiny.

Oh, I was a smooth, though youthful proposition; and that hot afternoon, as I swaggered up and down the main thoroughfare of uncombed, unwashed and ungroomed Phoenix, I felt that I had made an indelible impression upon the town, and the sort of impression which would mean money in my pocket. My dandyism and youth belied my real status as a crafty, nimble-fingered card shark. Phoenix was more inclined to accept my arrival in her midst as a curiosity-comb curiosity from the effete east, disguised in the outrageous habiliments of the dime novel cowboy. They, of Phoenix, little suspected my worth as a person to be seriously reckoned with! But I knew myself personally to be a visitant calamity—for the gullible gentry of Phoenix, at least. Consequently time did not drag heavily on my hands for the lack of anxious aspirants to deplete me of wealth I did not possess.

Having traversed the main street

on both sides, pleasant of eye and immaculate of garb, and with much the same purpose in view that the quack medicine peddler dons a Prince Albert and a silk hat, to captivate the awe-stricken country people, I finally entered a gambling hall in the rear of a saloon, and cast about for a victim, or victims. And before the shades of night had fallen, I was a much richer individual than when that morning I had climbed down from the roof of the four-horse stage, practically broke and without visible means of procuring food and lodgings for more than one night.

I loafed about Phoenix for more than two months; and though ashamed to inform my detective friend back in El Paso that I had tumbled ignominiously from the water wagon and that I had never reached the ranch of his friend, I was honest enough to return the twenty-five borrowed of him in my first letter. That was another paradoxical trait of mine. I had no compunction in cheating at cards; but I never neglected to meet a debt when it was due. And, generally, my credit was good—even in saloons, where human charity finds its lowest value as an asset when it comes to buying booze on "time."

And along with the return of prosperity, I eschewed the banal cigarette and smoked the most expensive Mexican cigars I could buy. And as I continued to prosper as a card shark, I aspired another step upward as a local satellite and cavalier by purchasing a handsome coal-black saddle pony, with the spirit of a Kentucky thoroughbred in his cantankerous, temperamental make-up, together with a fancy Mexican saddle and bridle and a pair of solid silver spurs. I say I purchased them—but that is a lie. I won them at cards, and at one sitting.

He was a beautiful little animal, was that horse; with white but all-seeing eyes, a whiter spot for a dimple between the alert eyes of him, and proud as Lucifer. And he was fully as vain as his new master as a swaggering young dandy. He had grown up on the wild grass of the high ranges; and before I had had him broken in, he was as mean as a rattlesnake and some livelier. And the only reason why he preferred being just all horse and not part rattlesnake, was that by some diabolical process of horse wisdom he knew he could make more trouble and inspire more fear in the breast of man with his two handy hind heels than a mere rattler could ever hope to create for all his reputation as a territorial scourge.

I called him Buck. And Buck and I, in time, covered Arizona, especially the central and northern parts, as completely as did the late autumn frosts. And that pony could get over territory with the untiring speed and enthusiasm of a small-sized locomotive! He had a Pullman car pace, to boot. Sitting in a saddle on Buck was incalculably less jarring to the human frame than riding on the top or inside of a steel-tired stage over the rough trails which at that time were about the only highways leading into the interior portions of Arizona.

As in El Paso, it was a piece of gun-play which was the direct cause of my sudden leave-taking of Phoenix, and much sooner than I cared for. This time it was a little bow-legged German—Helts by name, I think—who started the row by first averring in no uncertain tones that he did not like my singing any more than he fancied my queer habit of reciting Shakespeare when playing cards. He went on to say that he could not stand for my singing because—well, because it was not what he considered music; and he did not propose to listen to my Shakespeare because it rattled him. Next he got still more peeved because I continued to take his money, and that brought on a more serious argument.

We were at the time sitting in the bottom of a rancher's wagon which had been left unattended in the shade of a grove of cotton woods for the day and not more than two hundred yards distant from the little German's place of business. We had chosen the wagon bed chiefly because it offered the combined advantages of the cool shade and a certain seclusion much to be desired, if one wished not to be interrupted. And besides, my German friend, being a pillar of the church and a well-to-do citizen, did not care to jeopardize his good reputation by being seen entering a gambling hall.

Well, the upshot was that our heated argument led to still more heated expressions of our personal opinions of one another, and he openly accused me of having cheated. That brought blows, I offering the first. In the scuffle that followed, both of us tumbled out of the wagon and into an acequia, or irrigation ditch, full to the brim with running water. Getting soaked, as well as thoroughly thrashed in the bargain, aroused his Teutonic blood to the murder point, and he struck out at a run, dripping moisture like a spaniel, across the big vacant lot under the cotton woods in the direction of his general store. And I knew what he was going after—shot and rowdy!

Emerging from his store a few moments later, he carried a double-barreled shotgun, and when he had gotten about half way back to me he began to splinter the air with buckshot. I swam the acequia, making a wide detour of the town, and sent word to the stables to have my horse, Buck, brought to me. For two good reasons I did not intend letting the grass grow under my feet another day in Phoenix. In the first place, the German owned about half of the town and stood ace high with the town marshal. And in the second place, the town marshal was a man who had it in for strangers in general and crooks like myself especially. I was one of those undesirable itinerants who brought nothing to a town and carried a good deal of its loose change away. And I really had passed over some shamelessly crooked deals on the German. So, mounting Buck, I turned my face northward and continued going north in broken spurts for several days.

The third evening out of Phoenix I rode into a little Mexican village, about midway between Phoenix and Prescott, with the intention of putting up for the night, for my horse was covered with mud and dried lather and was wobbling on his feet—and I was in bad need of sleep myself.

Riding up to the only fonda—a sort of Spanish inn—I found it deserted of both landlord and guest, though the village itself was seething with unseen life. Through the soft dusk I could hear the tuning and screeching of violins and the pink-tank of mandolins, and instantly I knew the cause of the hotel being without proprietor or guest. A fiesta and fandango was on.

Leading Buck into the enclosed courtyard at the rear of the house—a low, one-story structure made of dried mud and brick—I gave him food and drink and struck out in search of something to eat myself, and entertainment. And not until I had invaded the fandango hall, the balls in full swing, did it occur to me that I might be the only American in the place. But by now it was too late to turn back.

At one end of the big, low-ceilinged room was a bar built of rough boards, and on the top of it was lined a conspicuous row of bottles—perhaps more of that deadly mescal and other hellish Mexican concoctions which had about salivated me during my exile in Juarez. But seeing the bottles and pretty thirsty, I pushed a way through the shifting mass of dancers and revelers, threw an American dollar on the boards and demanded a drink. And after I had disposed of several drinks, which tended to revive my jaded spirits, I decided it would be in the way of a pleasant diversion to get into the dance.

There was one Mexican girl, black of eyes and with carmine lips, who drew my instant attention. I saw her flashing in and out among the dizzy crush of dancers, as fleet and graceful as a cat, with her small slippered feet as a winged red bird. She was a small, agile creature, with wonderfully expressive coquettish eyes, and reminded me forcibly of that former bewitching flame of mine down in Tampico. And she had smiled at me!

And having caught her smiling at me over the tip of her fan, I forgot in my absorbed inspection of her that what I most needed just then was a bed and about ten hours of sleep. But what has youth to do with sleep—upon such an occasion as that! I did not take my eyes off her until, through the sheer magnetism of my entranced gaze, she threw me another challenging glance. Then it was I tossed discretion to the winds—odd what a bravo whisky will make of the most timid of men, though it can't be said I was timid!—bowed boldly through that seething vortex of rhythmic motion, and when she again saluted me on winged toes, I spoke to her.

Her partner, a swarthy looking fellow, with a pair of eyes as close together and as venomous in their light as those of a Gila monster suddenly kicked out of its warm bed in the Arizona sands, as instantly whisked the girl to one side and confronted me with battle written all over his ugly physiognomy.

"Gringo!" I heard him shout above the twinking of many fiddles and the scraping of thirty or more oaken pair of feet.

"Sure!" I replied suavely, the several drinks already making me feel well-disposed towards all the world, and with a pleasant grin wreathing my features. "But, isn't this the United States, mi amigo?" I demanded good naturedly.

And forgetting him, I turned my attention once more to the girl, who stood surveying me in a transfixed attitude of mixed alarm and admiration. I gave my dusty Windsor tie a tidying brush. If I were disturbed or put out for words because of fear of the other fellow, I certainly was not uncomfortably conscious of the fact. I was too jingled and too much occupied with looking at the girl to go much into the details of outside things. But there was a slight chemical reaction of my emotions when suddenly it dawned upon me that the disturbance had reached to both ends of the room, and that the music had come to an abrupt stop. I found myself to be the new center of attraction. All eyes were fixed upon me; and I felt those eyes boring through me from the back with the effectiveness of steel-jacketed bullets.

At first the French, great as was their admiration for these guns and the astonishingly accurate marksmanship which they displayed, believed that their bridge could not sustain such a weight; the French engineers, indeed, declined at the beginning to approve our request for the use of their rails. The constant rain of German shells on Paris, however, modified this attitude; the situation was so urgent that such assistance as these American guns promised was welcome. One August morning, therefore, the first train started for Heles Mouchy, the point from which it was expected to silence the "Big Bertha." The progress of this train through France was a triumphant march. Our own confidence in the French road bed and bridges was not much greater than that of the French themselves; the train, therefore, went along slowly, climbed the hills at a snail's pace, and took the curves with the utmost caution. As they crossed certain of the bridges, the crews held their breath and sat tight, expecting almost every moment to crash through. All along the route the French populace greeted the great battery train with one long cheer, at the towns and villages the girls decorated the long muzzle of the guns with flowers. But there were other spectators than the French. Expertly as this unusual train had been camouflaged, the German airplane observers had detected its approach. As it neared the objective the shells that had been falling on Paris ceased before the Americans could get to work, the Germans had removed their mighty weapon, leaving nothing but an emplacement as a target for our shells. Though our men were, therefore, deprived of the privilege of destroying this famous long-range rifle, it is apparent that their arrival saved Paris from further bombardment, for nothing was heard of the gun for the rest of the war.

The guns proved exceedingly effective in attacking German railroad centers, bridges and other essential positions; and if the war had continued they would soon have been thundering all along the western front.

From the time the naval guns were mounted until the armistice Admiral Plunkett's men were busy on several points of the allied lines. In this time the five naval guns fired 782 shells at distances ranging from 18 to 23 miles. They raised great havoc in the railroad yards at Laon, destroying large stretches of track that were indispensable to the Germans, and in general making this place practically useless as a railroad center. Probably the greatest service which they rendered the cause of the allies was in the region north of Verdun. In late October three naval batteries were brought up to Charny and Thieville and began bombarding the railroad which ran through Montmedy, Longuyon and Conflans. This was the most important line of communication on the western front; it was the road over which the German army in the east was supplied and there was practically no other line by which the great German armies, engaging the Americans could escape.

From October 23 to the hour when the armistice was signed our 14-inch guns were raining shells upon this road. So successful was this bombardment that the German traffic was stopped, not only while the firing was taking place, but for several hours each day after it had ceased. What this meant to the success of the allied armies the world now knows. The result is perfectly summed up in General Pershing's report:

"Our large caliber guns," he says, "had advanced and were skillfully brought into position to fire upon the important lines at Montmedy, Longuyon and Conflans; the strategic goal which was our highest hope was gained. We cut the enemy's main line of communications and nothing but surrender or an armistice could save his army from complete disaster."

These guns were, of course, only one of many contributing factors, but that the navy had its part in this great achievement is but another example of the success with which our two services co-operated with each other throughout the war—a co-operation which for efficient and harmonious devotion to a common cause has seldom, if ever, been equalled.

THE CHUMP AND THE CHAMP

scarcely even be speculative. The Kid was tired of picking pockets, and he yearned for easy money—a lot of it, such as this promised—as his only possible emancipation from professional thievery, as conventional commerce with its gradual opportunities could never have held him. So he beamed. He beamed as he accompanied Grant to the door. Then the beam faded out.

Standing at the door was a cowboy, holding two saddled bronchos. The Kid had never been on a horse in all his life, least of all on a half wild Texas horse.

"There's your boss, Pete," said Grant, pleasantly, pointing to the off animal, a roan stud with a wicked eye.

The Kid wanted to say something, but could grasp nothing that offered a hold. If he confessed that he could not ride, the whole scheme would fall, for Grant would immediately recognize him as a fraud. He gulped and decided to take a chance—this horsebacking couldn't be so very difficult; why, he had seen girls gallop through the park, and if a girl could do it so well, he could probably do it well enough to get by with a partial explanation of some kind such as a lame back. Grant swung into the saddle in a single motion and sat there, waiting for his guest to mount. The horses were footed a bit, and the Kid was chary of stepping between them, so he circled them and attempted to mount from the right stirrup. In a moment he was spilt and sprawled. Grant, who had seen this profane performance with amusement, dismounted and stood over the Kid, who was hurriedly picking himself up. The visitor's face came up and his eyes met the fixed gaze of the aged Texan's.

"You lyin' scoundrel," said Grant. "You blackleg fraud, you. Cattleman—Arizona—you never saw a steer. I sort o' thought your talk wasn't exactly bony fidy, but I put it down to Arizona, where they talk neither United States nor straight Greaser. But, sah—when I see you try to straddle a horse, sah, backwards o' nature's laws, that settled you. Get out o' here—and better get out o' this country, because if I run against you in town I'll cowhide you, sah."

The Kid was up. And he knew the game was, too. He walked up to Grant and lifted his hand—argumentatively, only, not aggressively.

"You got me," he confessed, dropping his 2½ per cent southern drawl. "But I didn't mean no grift, honest, Tom. I got a itch for this oil business, and I wanted to horn in right, and I knew you was the bird could jump a lot o' hurdles for me. So I lied about who I was an' where I was from, but I was on the dead level about goin' in with your son, an'—"

"A liar is a liar, and a liar is a thief," said Grant. "This country is becomin' so lawlessly law-abidin' that a good citizen an' a taxpayer can't put a bullet through a rattlesnake no more without kicking up a fuss, or I'd put a tunnel through you. My boy Carson don't need no pardners like you; whatever else he is, sah, he's no liar—he's had plenty to admit, but he's told the truth. Now, you thievin' no-thin', whoever you be, make tracks before I set the dogs on you."

"I'm goin'," said the Kid. "I'm goin'." Tom. Sorry. I meant no harm. If I hadn't o' monkeyed with that plug I might o' been a millionaire. Well, I've kissed

And he turned and wheeled off sideways, apparently to bow farewell to Tom Grant, but actually to secure in his far-side pocket the $25,000 in bills he had painstakingly stolen out of Tom Grant's inside shirt pocket as the old Texan was quiveringly denouncing him. He saw Grant returning into the house. He saw his hired touring car waiting in the near distance. He caressed the hidden bills, ran to the car, ordered the chauffeur to start.

"And make it snappy," he spat at him. "I gotta make a 1 o'clock rattler for the north."

As he sat in his Pullman the Kid slipped an acid soft drink and reflected:

"Well, if he'd given me my chance I wouldn't o' lifted his jack. Maybe I can't climb a horse right side to, but I ain't no rummy when it comes to rising to a situa-

"As I told the old grouch my daddy told me—I, who never seen my daddy—a boob what plays another guy's game on that guy's own dump is a fish. Ridin' horse be his, but bootin' pokes is mine, an' wherever I start on my own p'fessional endeavors is my nat'nal heap, as the poet calls it."

"The old steer merchant is twenty-five grand out [a "grand" is a $1,000 bill in underworld argot], but maybe I give him a couple o' ideas for that lightweight son o' his what'll save him that much in what them Number 1 chorus girls won't take away from him alone."

"Anyway, I done the best I could. A sap named Grant has no right to be a Dixie bug. An' if that funny lookin' Reub thinks it's a sign of honesty to ride a horse, he's nutty—Jesse James rode one for a livin'." (Copyright, 1920, By Jack Lait.)

THE NET VALUE ^{OF A} LACE FROCK LIES IN ITS SOPHISTIC- ATION

Such a Silhouette Reflects the Gay Mood of a Summer Night

IN SEASONS gone by the lace frock preferred to suggest the Dresden type, using a pastel either for its underdress or for its girdle. The present season evinces as much interest in the lace frock as any preceding it. However, the new lace frock is of a different type.

Not primarily dainty, but rather stunning; not primarily "pastelly," but rather vivid, is the lace frock as interpreted by the present season. It reveals ever so slightly the tendency of the day which is crudely expressed in the term "vampishness."

The frock of white chiffon whose skirt is deeply weighted by lace has a rather simple kimono waist and a long waist line. About the waist goes a narrow girdle of flowered ribbon which is caught together with a few violets. The long end is finished in the same flower-like way. The whole frock is posed not over a pastel, but over a black taffeta.

Eyelet-embroidered chiffon is the stuff of which a festive summer frock can be made. When combined with filet, then indeed is the success of a frock a foregone conclusion. Very simply is this chiffon-lace frock developed, but the surprise of it appears in the color of its sash and underdress, which is no other than the rather somber brown.

An outgrowth of the bouffant hip tendency is the model with the lace overskirt which is caught up upon the sides. Of ecru, it surprisingly chooses not a pale, summery shade, but rather a navy blue taffeta for its foundation. Truly for contrast, nothing could be very much more striking, and so beautiful is the lace that it can stand the severe relief which a dark underdress effects.

But there remain a few frocks which are not posed over dark colors. Most striking of these is a frock whose skirt consists of loops of wide valenciennes banding. There is a perfectly plain waist, to be sure, but with such a distinctive skirt and a girdle so smart as the new cuff one, what might a waist do to add further glory to the frock? The girdle is merely a double cuff of poppy red velvet.
